Varied Issues On Monday's Ballots

By LARRY MacINTYRE
Staff Writer

Village and city elections, a school property tax issue and a recall election will be among issues decided when voters in 20 southwestern Michigan communities go to the polls Monday.

Then, on Tuesday, Niles city voters get a seventh chance to vote on a new home-rule charter proposal. Polling places will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. in the various communities.

There are 17 general village elections, with races in seven of them. In addition, voters in Lawrence will decide whether liquor-by-the-glass will be permitted in the village, and in Saugatuck, the village council is looking for voter approval to enter into a series of contracts that will lead to the construction of a new post office in that community. Villages in which there are races for political offices are Eau Claire, Galien, Stevensville, Three Oaks, Bloomingdale, Lawrence and Cassopolis.

The only city election is in New Buffalo, where there is also a race. Villages where candidates are unopposed are Baroda, Berrien Springs, Grand Beach, Shoreham, Breelsville, Decatur, Lawton, Paw Paw, Douglas and Saugatuck.

In the only school election, voters in the Buchanan school district will decide a 20-mill property tax issue being sought by the board. The issue includes the renewal of a 17-mill levy that expired and an additional three mills. And in Allegan county's Clyde township, supervisor-assessor Reginald King is the target of a recall election.

Some township residents have charged that the 33-year-old King is not qualified for the job as assessor and that he has made unfair judgments of tax assessments. The elections Monday represent the first large-scale trek of voters to the polls in what promises to be a busy election year.

Other elections coming up this year include the May 18 presidential primary; annual school elections in June; the primary elections in August; and the November general election.

Russian Agriculture Shakeup Fruitless, St. Joseph Man Says

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

The Soviet Union's agriculture minister was ousted yesterday, but a St. Joseph man who toured Russian farms last year believes that country's agricultural problems won't be solved by naming a "scapegoat."

Russian agriculture suffers from adverse weather, workers who lack incentive and an extraordinary bureaucracy, according to Russell H. Hahn. Hahn, assistant secretary for technical activities for the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, which is headquartered in St. Joseph, toured the Soviet Union for three weeks last September. He talked about the trip yesterday to members of the Southwestern Michigan Agricultural Service club.

Hahn noted that just yesterday it was announced that the name of Agriculture Minister Dmitry S. Polyansky was removed from the Politburo. He said "Apparently he's going to be the scapegoat for their agricultural production problems in 1975."

Russia's 1975 grain production was disappointing. It was reportedly the smallest harvest in a decade.

Hahn's tour of Soviet factories and farms indicated another problem — Soyuzselkhoztekhnika (Soyuz). As the name implies, Soyuz is a huge, rigid bureau.

Soyuz does everything from supplying the countryside with machinery and fertilizer to operating agricultural experiment stations. It does most of the maintenance work. And it employs 1,300,000 people. And therein is why they have some production problems, in my opinion," said Hahn.

For example, Soyuz designed and had built a large number of large four-wheel drive tractors. It proudly shipped the tractors to farms all over the country.

But Hahn and the other three American agricultural engineers with him noticed that the tractors were never used to pull heavy loads. "We theorized there is some basic design flaw in the large tractor," he concluded.

He said his trip was a step in the attempt to standardize parts and fittings on American and Russian machinery so that the countries could trade in agricultural equipment.

The USSR has 50 per cent more agricultural land than the United States, "but much lower yields," he said. A real problem is lack of rainfall. Sixty per cent of the farmland here gets at least 28 inches of rain each year; only one per cent of the farmland in Russia gets that much, he said.

Hahn said that there are no independent Russian farmers. All are members of a state farm or a collective. Everything belongs to the state, "and in my opinion they (Russian farmers) aren't too concerned because they don't own anything," said Hahn.

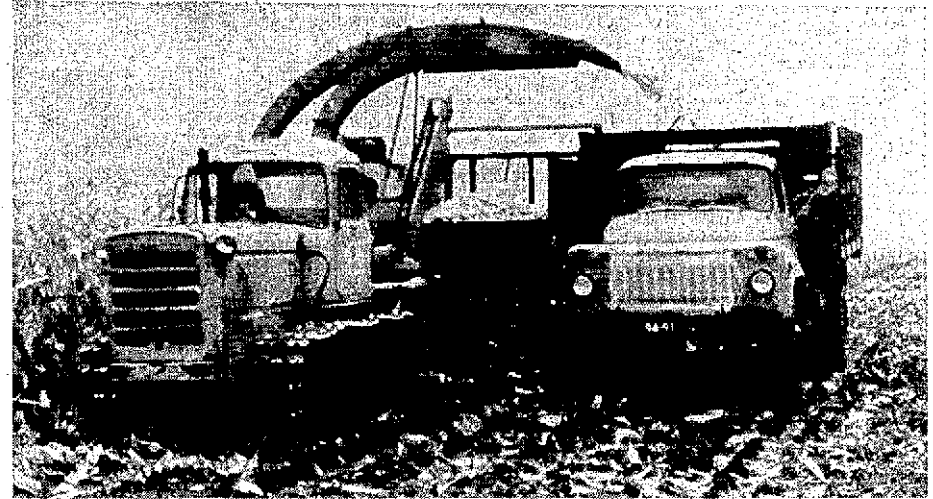

Figures indicate that 30 per cent of Russia's workers are involved in farming, a comparable U.S. figure is five per cent. Hahn observed that Russia is devoting people and dollars to agriculture, "but they're not getting the return."

Will Spend His Honeymoon In Prison

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A Benton township man intends to get married in the next few days but he'll be spending the honeymoon in Jackson prison.

John Paul Yakel, 19, of 1111 McIntosh, was issued a marriage license Thursday by the Berrien county clerk's office. Friday he was sentenced in Berrien Circuit court to concurrent prison terms of 3 to 5 and 6 to 10 years. Det. Robert Kinmerly, of the Berrien sheriff's department, said arrangements have been made to allow Yakel to marry his fiancée in the jail before Yakel is taken to prison. Yakel intends to marry Vanessa Darlene Christopher, 18, of Benton Harbor.

Yakel was sentenced to 6 to 10 years in prison by Judge William S. White for larceny from a person — the theft of $1, an identification bracelet, rings, and a lighter, from Ricky A. Rhodes Jan. 1 at the Spot Tavern in Benton township. He got 3 to 5 from Judge Chester J. Byrns for three probation violations — failing to attend General Education Development classes, failing to get a job, and pleading guilty to the larceny from a person charge. Yakel in July had been placed on two years probation by Byrns for attempted breaking and entering at the Cass Dairy store in Benton township. Before sentencing, Yakel told Judge White he was going to get married and a prison sentence would disrupt his plans. "You should have thought of that before," the judge told him.

SOVIET SHUFFLE: The name of Agriculture Minister Dmitry S. Polyansky (left) was removed from the Politburo, the Soviet Union's most powerful body, Friday. According to Russell Hahn of St. Joseph, Soviet agriculture has root problems that staff changes won't cure. Soviet Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev also announced new members are Grigory V. Romanov (center), Leningrad regional party chief, and Dmitry F. Ustinov (right), party secretary in charge of armaments. (AP Wirephoto)

Post Office Closings Get Judicial Sanction

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, armed with judicial sanction, is resuming a policy expected to deprive hundreds of small communities of their post offices.

The mail agency on Friday reinstated its policy of closing certain unprofitable rural post offices. Earlier, a federal judge ruled that no laws on post offices "preclude the Postal Service from being fiscally responsible."

Fifty-one members of Congress and two associations of postmasters had challenged the policy on closing or consolidating post offices, calling it "a massive assault on the country's small communities."

The Postal Service says it will close a post office only when equivalent or better mail service can be provided by other means.

When a rural post office is closed it is replaced by rural delivery or a "community post office" operated as a part-time venture by a local citizen under contract with the Postal Service.

U.S. Dist. Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. endorsed this policy, calling it "an attempt to combine sound economics with quality service."

The agency had closed 186 post offices since last July 1 for an annual saving of nearly $2 million. The closings came to a halt Feb. 25 when Smith issued a temporary restraining order against the policy.

Smith allowed this order to expire Friday, clearing the way for additional closings. The Postal Service is scrutinizing 600 small post offices for possible closing and this could be merely the beginning.

The General Accounting Office has said that 12,000 of the country's 30,000 post offices could be closed without hurting service. The GAO said this would save the financially-troubled Postal Service $100 million per year.

Rural interests generally have not challenged the assertion that fewer post offices would lead to a more efficient Postal Service. But they say a town loses its identity when it loses its post office.

Smith said the laws "do not mandate deficit operations in rural areas."

Smith did enjoin the Postal Service to follow its own regulations on the closings. Plaintiffs had said the agency in two instances had failed to follow its own policy of giving 90 days' notice before closing a post office.

"Where literally hundreds of rural post offices are under scrutiny for closing by the Postal Service, the agency cannot ignore the procedural protections it has established for its mail-users," Smith said.

EXPLOSION: The flash of an explosion in electrical wires lights the Madison sky during ice storm this week. The explosion was among many caused when overburdened wires shorted out during the storm that left an estimated 600,000 persons in southern Wisconsin without power at least for some time. Next To Teens, Older Drivers Are The Worst

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Drivers over 65 have the second-highest accident-per-mile rate because of diminished vision, alertness and reaction time, a University of Michigan researcher says. "Unlike the rest of the population, the elderly driver is seldom cited for speeding, tailgating or drunkenness," Prof. Leon Pastalan of the Institute of Gerontology explains. "His accidents are most often related to the normal physical changes that occur with aging."

Over-65 drivers are second in accident frequency only to teenagers, Pastalan said.

The researcher said when the number of accidents involving those over 65 are viewed in proportion to the time they spend on the road, the record nears that of the under-20 group. Without the driving-time consideration, the older driver causes less than six per cent of all traffic accidents.

Older drivers cause just as many fatalities as teenagers, Pastalan said.

"Few states have faced up to this problem," Pastalan said. "Less than half require periodic license reexamination. Laws that require only persons over a certain age be required to take areneval test may be ruled age-discriminatory and thus unconstitutional."

Pastalan, a U-M architecture professor and director of research at the Michigan-Wayne State University Institute, has been studying ways to help older drivers compensate for their limitations.

He has helped develop "The Older Driver Refresher Course," with a grant from the National Retired Teachers' Association and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

"There are 10 million drivers over the age of 65 in the United States today," Pastalan said. "That's one out of 10, compared with only one out of 20 in 1955."

NILES — "Moderate to minor" flooding along the banks of the St. Joseph river near Niles and Three Rivers is expected to occur early next week due to recent heavy rains, according to the National Weather Service office in Detroit.

However, according to a flood bulletin issued by the weather service yesterday, flooding is not expected to occur along the banks of the St. Joseph river near the Twin Cities

State police from the Niles post reported they received the bulletin Friday about 2:30 p.m. Sgt. Richard Kolenda said the bulletin named 22 cities throughout lower Michigan where "moderate to minor" flooding is predicted.

Niles is the only Berrien county community where some flooding might occur, he said.

Kolenda said the flood stage (in depth, how much water the banks can hold before flooding) for the Niles area is 11 feet. He said Friday the depth of the river along the banks was 9.6 feet and the forecast is for it to reach 12 to 13 feet by Tuesday.

Kolenda said in Three Rivers the flood stage is 8.5 feet. Friday the river level was at 8.1 feet and is expected to reach about 9.5 feet by Monday.

According to Kolenda, the moderate to minor flooding should only cause "some erosion and landscape damage" with possible basement flooding, but no families should be forced out of their homes.

A Democratic Politico We Hate To See Retire

The decision of Michael Joseph Mansfield not to seek re-election to the Senate this year, though it fits perfectly with the conception that no one should hang on to a job indefinitely, reminds one there are exceptions to all rules.

The Montana Democrat, universally known as Mike, by his office staff included, has been a Congressional fixture since first being elected to the House in 1942.

Ten years later he gambled the time was ripe in his home territory to try for the Senate. His judgment proved correct, the Eisenhower landslide to the contrary which swept many a Congressional and high placed local Democrat from office.

Due to celebrate his 73d birthday this March 16th, Mansfield informed the Senate session on Thursday that his decision not to pursue a fifth term rests on his paraphrase of the oft quoted reference in Ecclesiastes which he stated as, "There is a time to stay and a time to go."

Considering his unassailable entrenchment in Montana, his leave taking is not projected upon an apprehension in facing the home front once again.

Rather one has to believe the ex-professor of Latin American and Far Eastern history at Montana State University feels the leadership mantle can wear out unless it is passed along to younger shoulders from time to time.

Upon entering the Senate, Mansfield gradually worked his way up the ladder, first as party whip which involves serving as floor leader for his partisan colleagues.

He took the assignment with considerable misgiving, saying at the time, "Every Senator is a prima donna in some way. It's a miracle that we can achieve any harmony in the Democratic party because we cover the whole political spectrum."

His real boss was Lyndon B. Johnson who as Senate majority leader never held any doubt on how to keep fractious troops in line.

Pursuant to the time honored seniority rule, Mansfield took over as majority leader when LBJ was elected Vice President on the Kennedy ticket in 1960.

The operational styles of the two men were total opposites.

LBJ was the arm twister supreme.

Mansfield was the persuader.

As the exponent of the idea that everyone should voice his opinion, however ridiculous it might be, he drew considerable criticism from all sides within his party as being less than a leader.

The record totally disproves the complaint.

He steered Kennedy's New Frontier legislation through some decidedly hostile barriers and against his own feelings on the Viet Nam excursion, Mansfield kept LBJ's charter on course. His performance during the Nixon and presently the Ford residences in the White House has been one of bargaining or trying to bargain on the merits between contentious positions.

Little wonder that his counterpart on the Republican side, Pennsylvania's Hugh Scott who also is bowing this year failed to control a quiver in his voice when paying tribute to Mansfield.

The compelling feature in Mansfield's makeup is the common sense he used to assess the political motivation which is the life blood of Washington, and the honesty and decency accorded to those creating the motivation.

He managed to put across the point in a conversational tone.

All too many in and around Congress seem to think nothing can be heard unless the rhetoric is delivered in machine gun cadence and jet aircraft decibels.

Churchill's Iron Curtain Descending Once More?

The phrase "iron curtain" has been one of the most enduring and consequential ever uttered by that champion phrase-maker, Winston Churchill. He spoke the words 30 years ago on March 5, 1946, at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo. The British leader, at that time of office at home but on a triumphant tour of the United States, once again commanded the English language and sent it into battle. This time it was the Cold War which was then dawning.

"From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic," he said, "an iron curtain has descended across the continent. Behind that line lie all the capitals of the ancient states of Central and Eastern Europe. Warsaw, Berlin, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest and Sofia, all these famous cities and populations around them lie in what I must call the Soviet sphere, and all subject in one form or another, not only to Soviet influence but...of control from Moscow." This, he added, "is certainly not the liberated Europe we fought to build up." After setting forth the menace he perceived in Soviet policies, he pleaded for the United States and Britain to unite as guardians of the peace.

Churchill's speech that day in President Truman's home state might be called the beginning of public awareness that bitter post-war problems were arising with Russia. The war in Europe had been over less than a year and few people wanted to turn their thoughts once more to that blood-stained continent. Churchill's sentiments were not universally accepted — the speech touched off a debate between Secretary of State James Byrnes and Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace — but it could not be ignored. And the phrase "iron curtain" became memorable, catching the fancy of headline writers and serving an entire generation with a shorthand expression that conveyed — and perhaps colored — their attitude toward Soviet Russia.

With the coming of détente the phrase has fallen into disuse. But the words still live and pack a lot of meaning. Who knows, they may even become fashionable again. Détente has been battered lately by dissenting opinion in Washington and Moscow, and condemned implicitly from Peking by no less than one of its original architects, Richard M. Nixon. Even President Ford said this week he doesn't intend to use the word détente any more. That's political pressure, not semantics.

What you are about to read, I report to you because you deserve to know.

Approximately two years ago, an industrial-business development management system was brought to the Benton Harbor Area Schools, MBO (Management by Objectives) was "introduced" under the contrivance of the Superintendent of Schools, Richard E. Helser. The "package" was ill-conceived and poorly designed and "imported" from Houston, Texas. It was handed to administrators to be made operational beginning the school year 1974-1975. The goals and objectives were already determined and there was no inservice education for administrators to help them use this system. Administrators were told salary would be tied to one's MBO design, but no one was told how this would be done. In this Houston system there were 45 goals to be used. All of these goals were for school principals. How those of us who were not school principals were to use these MBO's was never made clear. To this day these shortcomings and problems exist.

Because the Superintendent wants to continue his folly and apparently does not want to deal with the truth of MBO failure, the Benton Harbor Area Schools Administrators only six administrators said they were asked for input regarding the concept of MBO or its implementation in the district — 35 said they were NOT. Five administrators said the objectives given them were developed in the district — 25 said they were not, and eleven said they did not know. When asked if they put together an MBO package LAST school year, twenty-four administrators said they had — 17 said they had not. When asked if they had developed an MBO package THIS year, eleven administrators had not done so. Please note that all administrators were supposedly charged with developing an MBO package, but several have never received the encouragement or the help necessary to do so.

The survey also indicated that ONLY eleven administrators last year and eight this year have had their MBO's critiqued by their supervisor!! In regard to last school year, administrators were asked if they had even been evaluated on their MBO's — three had and thirty-eight HAD NOT. In addition, only two of the three administrators indicating they had been evaluated had a WRITTEN evaluation. Finally, in response to the question, "Has your supervisor ever observed you in the field over the past 1½ years for the express purpose of monitoring a competency (goal)?" Five administrators said they had; thirty-four said they had not been observed.

Now, let me point out to you, Mr. and Mrs. Resident, how you were "had." Last summer, central administration and the superintendent were given anywhere from 8% to 18% salary increase based on this confused mess called MBO. Some may have warranted this increase, but not in the name of Management by Objectives.

Let me now offer you a challenge. Don't just take my word for what is reported here. Find out the facts for yourself. Ask for a copy of the MBO package from the Superintendent; find out if there has ever been any inservice education so that administrators can try to do the job correctly; ask for a

Burns May Be 'Secret Weapon'

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Candidate Gerald Ford has a secret weapon named Arthur Burns. Known to most of us as the controversial, stubborn, some say "drone," independent theoretician who runs the Federal Reserve Board with an iron hand.

On second thought, Burns could turn out to be Mr. Ford's nemesis — a stone about the candidate's neck — if this academic controller of the nation's money supply should take it in his head to clamp down on the number of dollars floating through the banking system.

Mr. Nixon blamed his 1960 defeat on the lagging economy, due in part to Federal Reserve Board stringency, when he was Vice President under General Eisenhower. Mr. Nixon made certain there was no such problem facing him in 1972. Some say we are still suffering from that overheating of the economy.

For now, Burns, though it's clear he is dominated by economic formulas and not politics, is doing well by Mr. Ford. He's expanding the money supply at a relatively rapid pace, considering everything — and prosperity seems around the corner. The rate of inflation is sliding down, somewhat erratically to be sure, but down. Employment is inching up, having risen 2 million since last March. The decline in unemployment, however, has been unsatisfactory, down only to 7½ per cent from 8, leaving seven million unemployed and an average unemployment period of nearly 17 weeks at a time when many have exhausted their benefits.

Promising for the months ahead, however, is the fact that industrial output rose almost 1 per cent in December and another 0.7 per cent in January, and that man hours worked in private nonfarm industries increased at an annual rate of more than 8 per cent those same two months. More work for those already on the job, is usually a prelude to increased hirings in the months that follow.

Overall, since last April, the combined output of factories, mines and power plants has increased at an annual rate of 11.5 per cent.

Exports are on an upswing and expected to continue to improve as the economies of Japan and other industrial nations move out of the doldrums.

On the home front, mortgage money is available and rates are edging down.

Burns is still talking a worry game. But Burns, always worries. He is happiest when he's fretting. And he's always threatening to clamp down on the money supply to prevent runaway inflation.

He seems to fall into a new school of economics — protagonists of the Keynesians, — who hold that a too liberal supply of money leads to inflation, causes consumers to tighten their belts and spend less, even though they have more money.

Right now, says Burns, however, consumers are loosening their pocketbooks in anticipation of better days. His goal is to keep just enough funds in our pockets to keep us all optimistic and spending, and panting for more, but not enough so that we overspend, drive prices up, then retreat in panic and caution, causing the economy to stumble.

If Burns is successful in this tightrope walking between too much and too little money, and few Federal Reserve Board chairmen have proven themselves adept at this juggling, then, polls or no polls, primaries or no primaries, the past relationships between presidential elections and the anticipation of prosperity certainly would favor Mr. Ford providing he keeps his nose clean and makes no outrageous blunders.

Some Campaigns Use '72 Style

Admirals and generals always prepare for the last war, and the same seems to be true for the major Democratic contenders for the presidency. — with the interesting exception of Jimmy Carter. Carter's difference from the rest of the pack showed up in his solid New Hampshire win and his continuing momentum elsewhere.

In 1914, the French generals were all set for the Franco-Prussian war of 1873. Their Plan 17, calling for all-out attack and a war of movement, reflected the tactics the Prussians had used so successfully at Sedan. The only trouble with Plan 17 was that it ignored the development of the machine gun.

In 1941, our own planners were ready for a naval war based upon the battleship — Jutland all over again. By obligingly sinking our dreadnoughts at Pearl Harbor, the Japanese forced us to employ a much superior strategy based on the carrier task force.

In their efforts to secure the Democratic nomination, Bayh, Udall, and Harris have been pursuing the "classic" intra-mural Democratic strategy, and only stylistic differences distinguish them, one from the other.

In this "classic" strategy, the candidate first establishes a firm base on the left edge of the party. That is where the "activists" reside. There, too, one finds the zealous liberal campaign contributors, the Park Avenue and Beverly Hills millionaires.

After consolidating such a base, the candidate, according to classic strategy dictates, then moves toward the center, picking up whatever "regular" Democratic support he can.

Morris Udall clearly decided to be the successor of the Gene McCarthy and George McGovern-styled candidacy, stressing new-politics, upper middle class themes. On the liberal Volkswagen, the McGovern sticker is pasted over a McCarthy sticker, and this year a Udall sticker is pasted on top of both. Udall is the thinking woman's candidate, the residual heir of Democratic neo-puritanism. But, unlike McGovern, Udall is not strident. A likable, angular, humorous fellow, he clearly hoped to improve upon McGovern in personal style, and the like, while consolidating his ties with big labor. The latter would be his bridge to the center.

Birch Bayh's version is quite similar. He obviously decided to be the liberal-labor candidate. He would bid for the left with superorthodoxy on issues like abortion, boasts about blocking Judge Clement Haynsworth, busing, amnesty, and the like, while consolidating his ties with big labor. The latter would be his bridge to the center.

Fred Harris tried a schizophrenic strategy, combining a self-consciously "populist" style with orthodox radical-chie positions on busing, amnesty, abortion — hardly "populist" positions — and stirring it all up with a pseudo-radical attack on the "big corporations."

But all of these candidates have been fighting the last war, that is, the 1972 contest for the nomination.

Jimmy Carter tried another gambit. He perceived that the left wing of the Democratic party now lacks the cohesion provided by Vietnam. The left exists, but the old McCarthy-McGovern foot-soldiers cannot be mobilized as effectively as they once were. The radical chic millionaires, moreover, are restrained by the new campaign financing laws.

Carter, therefore, rejected the "classic" strategy. Carter offers himself not as "another liberal" but as a distinctive personal entity, a new possibility, and a Southerner on top of it all. Few of those New Hampshire voters wearing Jimmy Carter ski hats know where he stands on the issues, but they do respond to him as a person.

A Democratic Politico We Hate To See Retire

The decision of Michael Joseph Mansfield not to seek re-election to the Senate this year, though it fits perfectly with the conception that no one should hang on to a job indefinitely, reminds one there are exceptions to all rules.

The Montana Democrat, universally known as Mike, by his office staff included, has been a Congressional fixture since first being elected to the House in 1942.

Ten years later he gambled the time was ripe in his home territory to try for the Senate. His judgment proved correct, the Eisenhower landslide to the contrary which swept many a Congressional and high placed local Democrat from office.

Due to celebrate his 73d birthday this March 16th, Mansfield informed the Senate session on Thursday that his decision not to pursue a fifth term rests on his paraphrase the oft quoted reference in Ecclesiastes which he stated as, "There is a time to stay and a time to go."

Considering his unassailable entrenchment in Montana, his leave taking is not projected upon an apprehension in facing the home front once again.

Rather one has to believe the ex-professor of Latin American and Far Eastern history at Montana State University feels the leadership mantle can wear out unless it is passed along to younger shoulders from time to time.

Upon entering the Senate, Mansfield gradually worked his way up the ladder, first as party whip which involves serving as floor leader for his partisan colleagues.

He took the assignment with considerable misgiving, saying at the time, "Every Senator is a prima donna in some way. It's a miracle that we can achieve any harmony in the Democratic party because we cover the whole political spectrum."

His real boss was Lyndon B. Johnson who as Senate majority leader never held any doubt on how to keep fractious troops in line.

Pursuant to the time honored seniority rule, Mansfield took over as majority leader when LBJ was elected Vice President on the Kennedy ticket in 1960.

The operational styles of the two men were total opposites.

LBJ was the arm twister supreme. Mansfield was the persuader.

As the exponent of the idea that everyone should voice his opinion, however ridiculous it might be, he drew considerable criticism from all sides within his party as being less than a leader.

The record totally disproves the complaint.

He steered Kennedy's New Frontier legislation through some decidedly hostile barriers and against his own feelings on the Viet Nam excursion, Mansfield kept LBJ's charter on course. His performance during the Nixon and presently the Ford residencies in the White House has been one of bargaining or trying to bargain on the merits between contentious positions.

Little wonder that his counterpart on the Republican side, Pennsylvania's Hugh Scott who also is bowing this year failed to control a quiver in his voice when paying tribute to Mansfield.

The compelling feature in Mansfield's makeup is the common sense he used to assess the political motivation which is the life blood of Washington, and the honesty and decency accorded to those creating the motivation.

He managed to put across the point in a conversational tone.

All too many in and around Congress seem to think nothing can be heard unless the rhetoric is delivered in machine gun cadence and jet aircraft decibels.

Churchill's Iron Curtain Descending Once More?

The phrase "iron curtain" has been one of the most enduring and consequential ever uttered by that champion phrase-maker, Winston Churchill. He spoke the words 30 years ago on March 5, 1946, at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo. The British leader, cast out of office at home but on a triumphant tour of the United States, once again commanded the English language and sent it into battle. This time it was the Cold War which was then dawning.

"From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic," he said, "an iron curtain has descended across the continent. Behind that line lie all the capitals of the ancient states of Central and Eastern Europe. Warsaw, Berlin, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest and Sofia, all these famous cities and populations around them lie in what I must call the Soviet sphere, and all subject in one form or another, not only to Soviet influence but...of control from Moscow." This, he added, "is certainly not the liberated Europe we fought to build up." After setting forth the menace he perceived in Soviet policies, he pleaded for the United States and Britain to unite as guardians of the peace.

Churchill's speech that day in President Truman's home state might be called the beginning of public awareness that bitter post-war problems were arising with Russia. The war in Europe had been over less than a year and few people wanted to turn their thoughts once more to that blood-stained continent. Churchill's sentiments were not universally accepted — the speech touched off a debate between Secretary of State James Byrnes and Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace — but it could not be ignored. And the phrase "iron curtain" became memorable, catching the fancy of headline writers and serving an entire generation with a shorthand expression that conveyed — and perhaps colored — their attitude toward Soviet Russia.

With the coming of detente the phrase has fallen into disuse. But the words still live and pack a lot of meaning. Who knows, they may even become fashionable again. Detente has been battered lately by dissenting opinion in Washington and Moscow, and condemned implicitly from Peking by no less than one of its original architects, Richard M. Nixon. Even President Ford said this week he doesn't intend to use the word detente any more. That's political pressure, not semantics.

DEMOLITION UNDERWAY: Coloma train depot, constructed in 1911, is being demolished by two men. Material removed is to be used to construct both a house and addition to house. Demolition started in October and will end April 1. Men found date depot was constructed written on pink siding paper.

Coloma Depot Being Demolished; Will Be Recycled Into New Homes

By CLIFF STEVENS
Coloma Correspondent

COLOMA — This community's train depot, built in 1911, is being demolished by two men, but the material from the depot will find a new use.

The men, Joe Miller of Hartford and Dannie Shirley of Benton Harbor, plan to use materials from the old train depot to build a new house and for an addition to an existing house.

Miller, purchased the train depot from a Coloma township couple, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kuchinsky, for $500 late last year, after plans to relocate the depot by the North Berrien Historical society did not materialize.

The society had hoped to use the structure as a museum to house relics belonging to society members, but a cost of $30,000 to move the building (depot) could not be raised.

The Kuchinskys purchased the depot from the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad and planned to donate it to the society, but the society been able to relocate the structure.

According to Miller, everything in or on the depot will be used for the planned construction projects, with the exception of wood rotted by age. He plans to build a house, containing 1,800 square foot, on a private road beyond Austin street, Hartford, along the bank of the Paw Paw river. Had new material been purchased, he estimated the house would have cost around $20,000.

Shirley said his addition will be a 16 by 27 foot project expanding his house at 1831 Maple Lane in Hagar township.

The men said the work on demolishing the depot goes on between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. weekdays and at different times on weekends.

Both Miller and Shirley said between 12,000 and 13,000 bricks, weighing 7½ pounds each, were removed during a three-week period from the exterior and interior of the depot, and all the bricks will be used in the construction projects.

The demolition process will continue through April 1, the deadline for having the structure cleared on the railroad property.

Miller and Shirley are confident the structure will be gone, but feel they might need a time extension for removing the concrete base for the depot.

Work on demolishing the depot started in October, but went unnoticed by the public, as the work was being done inside the depot, said Shirley.

Another BH City Official To Go?

Maurice Bishop, chairman of the Benton Harbor recall drive, this morning issued to this newspaper a statement saying he has been informed that another city official "is going to lose their job."

He did not mention his source of information, or identify the city official who will lose the job.

But in his open letter to the citizens of Benton Harbor, Bishop termed Monday's upcoming meeting of the city commission as the "day of reckoning" and urged all interested citizens to attend.

Bishop is heading up a recall drive to have Mayor Charles F. Joseph and four fellow commissioners, all members of the "Clean Slate," ticket, removed from office.

The recall drive began after the commission voted not to renew then City Manager Charles Morrison's contract in December. Since then the commission, dominated by the "Clean Slate," has voted to fire City Atty. Yvonne Hughes.

Complete text of Bishop's letter is as follows:
"To the citizens of Benton Harbor:
"This is the day of reckoning!"

THIS IS IT!

"Evaluate what has happened to our city in the past nine weeks.

"Have you been interested enough to keep up with what has been happening? I have because I am involved.

"I have been informed another department official is going to lose their job.

"Citizens, can we afford to sit by any longer? I am suggesting that you attend the city commissioners meeting Monday night.

"Maybe we can save another job.

"As of April 1, approximately 117 people employed by the City of Benton Harbor will be laid off from work. Of the 117, approximately 85 (employed by CETA) will not receive unemployment benefits unless the money is paid to the state.

"Our responsibilities as citizens is to come together Monday night in a humble-like manner to beg the Mayor and the Clean Slate to give us back our town (what's left of it).

"We have placed petitions for nine members of the recall (Commissioner Winston Minott) with the city clerk's office, but we are informing the public that as of 6 p.m. Friday, March 6, 1976, we will not turn in any more petitions until the city clerk (Mrs. Evelyn Grenawitzke) recovers from her operation. This could be from 10 days to three weeks.

"We have copies of all the petitions we turned in and we have reservations about turning the rest of them in.

"If you are really interested in Benton Harbor's future, I will meet all of you Monday night at city hall.

"God be with all of us." The letter was signed Maurice Bishop, Chairman Recall.

Wind Damage $150,000 To Mobile Homes

Damage to Lincolnwood Estates Mobile Home park, worst hit area in the path of Thursday night's destructive windstorm through Berrien and Van Buren counties, has been estimated at $150,000.

Robert Groat, manager of the mobile home park at 404 West John Deere road in Lincoln township, said damages amounted to approximately $150,000 resulting from major damage to 13 mobile homes and minor damage to many others.

Nine people were reported injured and 13 homes — mostly mobile homes — were reported damaged as the narrow windstorm cut a northeasterly path from the Stevensville area in Berrien county to the Lawrence area in Van Buren.

Groat said several residents reported sighting a funnel cloud and several others described sounds similar to "a train going over their houses" as the windstorm hit the mobile home park.

The National Weather Service, however, has termed the windstorm "a narrow, hard and straight-line wind" with "unconfirmed funnel clouds."

Sheriff's Lt. Tom McCall, director of the Berrien office of emergency preparedness, said the wind had "all the ingredients" of a tornado, but said no sighting of a tornado has been verified.

Groat said all but one of the 13 mobile homes damaged in a strip along the south side of the park had "tie-downs" which secure the unit to the ground.

The windstorm appeared to move along a narrow corridor through Lincoln, Royalton, Solus and Brainbridge townships in Berrien county, and through the Keeler and Lawrence areas in Van Buren. Temperatures dropped from 65 to 38 degrees in about ½ hour and winds were recorded at up to 80 miles an hour during the windstorm.

Also reported damaged by high winds were roofs of three houses south of Stevensville, a house trailer in Keeler, and the roof of the Van Buren County Skills center near Lawrence.

Four of the nine people reported injured in the storm remained in hospitals this morning.

Mrs. Neva Versaw, 83, was listed in "stable" condition at Benton Harbor Mercy hospital. Mrs. Versaw resides at 1115 Circle drive, Benton township, was injured inside a mobile home she was visiting at Lincolnwood Estates, when the storm hit.

Listed in "good" condition at St. Joseph Memorial hospital were, Margaret Stohrer, 56,

BH Man Is Fined $185 For Two Traffic Violations

Lawrence C. Sherman, 24, of Towline road, Benton Harbor, was sentenced yesterday in Berrien Fifth District court to a total of $185 in fines and costs for two traffic violations. Sherman was part of a local delegation that met with federal officials last November in Washington, D.C., and aired complaints including charges of police harassment. He was sentenced by District Judge Leo Cook, who last month found Sherman guilty of the two charges during non-jury trials. His sentences yesterday were $150 for reckless driving Sept. 18 and $35 for failure to yield right-of-way at a stop sign Nov. 21. Both violations occurred in Benton Harbor. A second charge filed Nov. 21, that he fled police after running the stop sign, was later dismissed. The incident led Sherman to charge that Mayor Charles F. Joseph failed to respond to Sherman's request for assistance made after his arrest. Police Chief Andrew Rodez reported to the city commission that no police harassment was indicated in the arrest.

DEMOLITION UNDERWAY: Coloma train depot, constructed in 1911, is being demolished by two men. Material removed is to be used to construct both a house and addition to house. Demolition

Coloma Depot Being Demolished; Will Be Recycled Into New Homes

By CLIFF STEVENS
Coloma Correspondent

COLOMA — This community's train depot, built in 1911, is being demolished by two men, but the material from the depot will find a new use.

The men, Joe Miller of Hartford and Dannie Shirley of Benton Harbor, plan to use materials from the old train depot to build a new house and for an addition to an existing house.

Miller, purchased the train depot from a Coloma township couple, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kuchinsky, for $500 late last year, after plans to relocate the depot by the North Berrien Historical society did not materialize.

The society had hoped to use the structure as a museum to house relics belonging to society members, but a cost of $30,000 to move the building (depot) could not be raised.

The Kuchinskys' purchased the depot from the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad and planned to donate it to the society, had the society been able to relocate the structure.

According to Miller, everything in or on the depot will be used for the planned construction projects, with the exception of wood rotted by age.

He plans to build a house, containing 1,800 square foot, on a private road beyond Austin street, Hartford, along the bank of the Paw Paw river. Had new material been purchased, he estimated the house would have cost around $20,000.

Shirley said his addition will be a 16 by 27 foot project expanding his house at 1831 Maple Lane in Hagar township.

The men said the work on demolishing the depot goes on between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. weekdays and at different times on weekends.

Both Miller and Shirley said between 12,000 and 13,000 bricks, weighing 7½ pounds each, were removed during a three-week period from the exterior and interior of the depot, and all the bricks will be used in the construction projects.

The demolition process will continue through April 1, the deadline for having the structure cleared on the railroad property.

Miller and Shirley are confident the structure will be gone, but feel they might need a time extension for removing the concrete base for the depot.

Work on demolishing the depot started in October, but went unnoticed by the public, as the work was being done inside the depot, said Shirley.

The Deacon Is Wife Of Nurse

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — The nurse is married to the deacon — only he's the nurse and she's the deacon.

"People have a tendency to do a slight doubletake," said Keith Matthews, the state's first woman Episcopal deacon, who uses her maiden name.

"It's a fun thing to play around with when we meet people for the first time," said James Roeder, an emergency room nurse at Charleston General hospital.

A Charleston native, she is in a training program at St. Matthew's church. She received her divinity degree in California and met Roeder there when she was in a ministerial intern program at the same hospital where he was working.

She is optimistic that the Episcopal church will open the priesthood to women.

Roeder became interested in nursing as a hospital corpsman in the Navy.

"I was the only man in my nursing school class," he recalls, "and I had some hassles, but nothing unbearable. I got talked over a lot. The textbooks all said 'she' and 'her' and occasionally I got memos addressed to Miss Roeder, but I didn't have any real problems."

"I've never viewed her job as strictly a man's or mine as strictly a woman's. Both are people's jobs that have to get done. I see no sexual connotation at all," he said. "As a matter of fact, I've often said that a person should be at least 5-foot-10 and 160 to 165 pounds to even consider going into nursing. It's a physically taxing job."

The two also divide housework in their Charleston home.

"Neither of us feel that one is more responsible for running the house than the other," she said. "We share the housework and so he ends up fixing things. The job goes to the one with the necessary skills."

"I do the general cleaning and all the laundry and ironing because I'm better at it. It's an outgrowth of my life in the Navy, I guess," he said.

She points out that "I am a feminist only in the sense that I am for the liberation of all people. As long as people think out what they want to do with their lives and are doing it, they're liberated as far as I'm concerned."

COMMUNITY CONCERTS

Song For Everyone

By ARLYS DERRICK
Women's Editor

The New Christy Minstrels had a song for everyone in the capacity audience at Lakeshore high school Thursday night.

The eight young singers and instrumentalists appeared for Community Concerts with broad smiles and happy voices to present a program that ranged from the tradition of the folk song to contemporary songs that are fast becoming classics.

Solos were numerous and included those beautifully sung by the three women in the group.

Karen Sue Sparks sang the haunting "Beautiful Dreamer" by Stephen Foster and the beautiful contemporary "Make Someone Happy" by Lolita Afifa contrasted the serious "God Bless The Child" from "Lady Sings The Blues" with a lively performance of Mae Davis' "Hell Of A Woman" and Jan Jamieson touchingly sang a song to a child, "Billy."

Traditional melodies included an enthusiastic "Preacher and The Bear" and the happy "Lord of the Dance."

From the early repertoire of the New Christy Minstrels, the group sang "Green, Green," "Saturday Night," and "Down The Ohio," as well as the Academy Award nominated "Today."

Proof that the group is popular in any language was "Chitty, Chitty, Bang, Bang" sung in Japanese with "Everybody Loves Saturday Night" in several dialects.

Even the announcement of Hank Williams' "Jambalaya" brought enthusiastic response from the audience.

One of the highlights of the program was the tribute to the late Jim Croce with his "I've Got A Name," "Leroy Brown," "Operator," "You Don't Mess Around With Jim," "I'll Have To Tell You I Love You In A Song," and "Time In A Bottle."

For pure comedy there were the novelties, "Cherokee Chant," "TV Roulette," and a really tongue-in-cheek performance of the William Tell overture by the English member of the group, Mike Hall.

Especially effective in the Bicentennial year were the patriotic "United Souls of America" by Scott Newell who has just recently left the group, "Mighty Mississippi," the dramatic "Ballad For Americans," John Latouche and Earl Robinson, and the concluding hand-clapping Woody Guthrie's "This Land Is Your Land."

For an encore to a standing ovation, the New Christy Minstrels sang the philosophy that has made them so popular throughout the world: "For You We Sing."

COMMUNITY CONCERTS

Song For Everyone

By ARLYS DERRICK
Women's Editor

The New Christy Minstrels had a song for everyone in the capacity audience at Lakeshore high school Thursday night.

The eight young singers and instrumentalists appeared for Community Concerts with broad smiles and happy voices to present a program that ranged from the tradition of the folk song to contemporary songs that are fast becoming classics.

Solos were numerous and included those beautifully sung by the three women in the group.

Karen Sue Sparka sang the haunting "Beautiful Dreamer" by Stephen Foster and the beautiful contemporary "Make Someone Happy;" Lolita Afifa contrasted the serious "God Bless The Child" from "Lady Sings The Blues," with a lively performance of Mac Davis' "Hell Of A Woman," and Jan

Jamieson touchingly sang a song to a child, "Billy."

Traditional melodies included an enthusiastic "Preacher and The Bear" and the happy "Lord of the Dance."

From the early repertoire of the New Christy Minstrels, the group sang "Green, Green," "Saturday Night," and "Down The Ohio," as well as the Academy Award nominated "Today."

Proof that the group is popular in any language was "Chitty, Chitty, Bang, Bang" sung in Japanese with "Everybody Loves Saturday Night" in several dialects.

Even the announcement of Hank Williams' "Jambalaya" brought enthusiastic response from the audience.

One of the highlights of the program was the tribute to the late Jim Croce with his "I've Got A Name," "Leroy Brown," "Operator," "You Don't Mess Around With Jim," "I'll Have

To Tell You I Love You In A Song," and "Time In A Bottle."

For pure comedy there were the novelties, "Cherokee Chant," "TV Roulette," and a really tongue-in-cheek performance of the William Tell overture by the English member of the group, Mike Ball.

Especially effective in the Bicentennial year were the patriotic "United Souls of America" by Scott Newell who has just recently left the group, "Mighty Mississippi," the dramatic "Ballad For Americans," John Latouche and Earl Robinson, and the concluding hand-clapping Woody Guthrie's "This Land Is Your Land."

For an encore to a standing ovation, the New Christy Minstrels sang the philosophy that has made them so popular throughout the world: "For You We Sing."

tertainers, musicians and special guests well-known in the Christian music field as well as some top-name entertainers will appear on the program. Telethon host will be M.G. The Deacon Is Wife Of Nurse

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The nurse is married to the deacon — only he's the nurse and she's the deacon.

"People have a tendency to do a slight doubletake," said Keith Matthews, the state's first woman Episcopal deacon, who uses her maiden name.

"It's a fun thing to play around with when we meet people for the first time," said James Roeder, an emergency room nurse at Charleston

General hospital.

A Charleston native, she is in a training program at St. Matthew's church. She received her divinity degree in California and met Roeder there when she was in a ministerial intern program at the same hospital where he was working.

She is optimistic that the Episcopal church will open the priesthood to women.

Roeder became interested in nursing as a hospital corpsman in the Navy.

"I was the only man in my nursing school class," he recalls, "and I had some hassles, but nothing unbearable. I got talked over a lot. The textbooks all said 'she' and 'her' and occasionally I got memos addressed to Miss Roeder, but I didn't have any real problems."

"I've never viewed her job as strictly a man's or mine as strictly a woman's. Both are people's jobs that have to get done. I see no sexual connotation at all," he said. "As a matter of fact, I've often said that a person should be at least 5-foot-10 and 160 to 165 pounds to even consider going into nursing. It's a physically taxing job."

The two also divide housework in their Charleston home.

"Neither of us feel that one is more responsible for running the house than the other," she said. "We share the housework and so he ends up fixing things. The job goes to the one with the necessary skills."

"I do the general cleaning and all the laundry and ironing because I'm better at it. It's an outgrowth of my life in the Navy, I guess," he said.

She points out that "I am a feminist only in the sense that I am for the liberation of all people. As long as people think out what they want to do with their lives and are doing it, they're liberated as far as I'm concerned."

THE BIBLE

No. 229. A Time for Everything

"Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher, vanity of vanities; all is vanity. What profit hath a man of all his labour which he taketh under the sun? One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh; but the earth abideth forever. The sun also riseth, and the sun goeth down, and hasteth to his place where he arose." (Ecclesiastes 1:2-5)

These familiar words introduce the reader to one of the most remarkable and controversial books of the entire Old Testament. A further quotation: "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven. A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up; that which is planted; a time to kill, and a time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance; a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing; a time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away; a time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak; a time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace." (Ecclesiastes 3:1-8)

THE BIBLE

No. 229. A Time for Everything

"Vanity of vanities, saith the Preacher, vanity of vanities: all is vanity. What profit hath a man of all his labour which he taketh under the sun? One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh; but the earth abideth forever. The sun also riseth, and the sun goeth down, and hasteth to his place where he arose." (Ecclesiastes 1:2-5)

These familiar words introduce the reader to one of the most remarkable and controversial books of the entire Old Testament. A further quotation: "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven. A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted; A time to kill, and a time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance; A time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing; a time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away; A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak; A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace." (Ecclesiastes 3:1-8)

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Too Young To Worry

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 13-year-old daily reader of your column and I am very mad at the kids I go to school with. The reason is you.

Every day, the first thing I hear when I walk into class is, "Did you read Ann Landers today?" Then they laugh and make fun of the people who write to you, as if they are all nutty or something.

Why don't they realize that a problem isn't funny to the person who has it? I'll bet every one of those kids who is laughing now will end up with some kind of trouble you might be able to help them with. But they will be too ashamed to ask you for help because they made fun of you so often.

Please print this letter so the bylines will stop laughing. — Your Booster

Dear Booster: Let 'em laugh, honey. If they need me I'll be here. Yesterday's knocker is tomorrow's friend.

Honorable

Dear Ann Landers: As you undoubtedly are aware, a great deal is being said against the funeral service profession of late. I would like to present the other side of the controversy since almost everything I have read casts the funeral director in the role of the rip-off artist who takes advantage of poor people by making them feel guilty if they don't put Pa or Ma away in a $4,000 bronze casket.

The charges against the profession are based on an infinitesimal sampling of families, made in one small area of the United States. The statistics I have seen indicate that there were approximately 100 complaints from nearly a million families who were served. This compares very favorably with any profession in the United States. In fact, I believe it's a testimony to the integrity of the profession. Will you please comment? — Unjustly Maligned

Dear U.M.: Every profession has its chiselers, con-artists and incompetents. Funeral directors, along with the physicians, lawyers, bankers, etc., have their share. But I'm sure the overwhelming majority of morticians are honorable people who perform a service we could not do without. Moreover, they perform it with dignity and sensitivity and are extremely even-handed in that they offer a wide range of financial alternatives for people of every economic level.

I know of a funeral director in Chicago whose family has been in business since 1884. Rarely does this firm charge more than a token fee for the burial of an infant and in cases of financial hardship they either donate their services or they will accept as a fee whatever the family can afford.

No Loans

Dear Ann Landers: I have a 24-year-old brother who acts like a 10-year-old kid. He has a good job but is always broke. Why? Because he keeps lending money to deadbeats and buying gifts for goldiggers.

Hank now owes me $110 and I'm not exactly the U.S. Mint. It burns me up to see the way his friends take advantage of him. He says he knows he's being taken for a sucker, but he just can't say no. What can I do? — Sister Of A Sap

Dear Sis: For openers you can stop lending him money. Next you can suggest that Hank get some counseling and find out why he has such a low opinion of himself that he believes he wouldn't have any friends unless he played Santa Claus.

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Teaches Sign Language

INSTRUCTOR: Jan Williams, left, a freshman at Andrews university, shows Dean Coridan, one of her 21 pupils, a word in sign language in a class for hearing students being offered as part of the Eau Claire school district's Continuing Adult Education program.

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Jane Williams, a communications freshman at Andrews university, is instructing a sign language class as part of the Eau Claire school district's Continuing Adult Education program.

The eight-week class is offered each quarter during the regular school year.

Beginning with the alphabet, the class progresses through simple words to more complex phrasing.

Deanna Duerksen, one of the students, said, "My husband and I hope to use the language in our church work when he finishes his studies at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary."

Faith Slikkers, who had some experience with sign language while caring for an elderly deaf man, said, "I would like to teach students in a deaf high school someday."

One student said, "It is surprising how logical sign language is. It makes it easy to learn."

Miss Williams, who plans to work in audiology, has gained experience from interpreting church services, starting first in the Detroit Metropolitan Seventh-day Adventist church. Now she interprets at Pioneer Memorial and Berrien Springs Village Seventh-day Adventist churches on alternate Saturdays.

She also works for the Michigan Department of Education Vocational Rehabilitation office in assisting the deaf students to communicate with their counselors about jobs.

Miss Williams said, "In some areas of the country, television programs are translated in a corner of the screen. I would like to see more such programs."

After the eight lessons, Miss Williams will instruct interested students through five more lessons and further practice.

She said, "I am always willing to teach people sign language because I feel that the difficulties the deaf face are often unnoticed. Learning sign language helps in understanding the deaf person's problems."

Dr. Lester Coleman

"Color scanning" of the thyroid gland has become a significant contribution to the better understanding about the thyroid function. An instrument known as the Picker Dynacamera used in conjunction with radiostopes can give a color picture of the thyroid in health and in disease.

Overactive thyroids, goiters, non-cancerous and cancerous growths of the thyroid can more readily be determined by those who specialize in this technique. The color scanning has enlarged the horizons of understanding of all problems relating to disorders of the thyroid.

Dr. Fuad S. Ashkar of the Miami School of Medicine believes that the color scan is a highly sensitive indicator of the function of the thyroid. He feels that "it adds a three-dimensional quality" to the study of the thyroid gland.

Hodgkin's disease has for many years threatened the lives of patients. More and more instances of the cure of Hodgkin's disease have been brought to light by the recent advances in medicine and in science.

Dr. Saul A. Rosenberg of the Stanford University School of Medicine at Palo Alto, California, believes that "patients with limited disease have a 90 per cent chance of long-term control."

The reason for this lies in improved early diagnosis and early use of X-ray treatment and chemotherapy.

Hodgkin's disease has yielded many of its secrets to the persistence of scientific research.

An interesting concept about nutrition has been released by the University of Chicago. Dr. Robert Wissler, director of a research program in arteriosclerosis, points out that "when baby chickens grow up and are properly prepared, they offer one of the best and least expensive sources of animal protein, low in cholesterol and saturated fat."

Dr. Wissler and his colleagues have carried on extensive studies in experimental animals in an effort to decrease cholesterol deposits in the arteries. He emphatically states that "most populations around the world that eat a low cholesterol and low fat diet have a low incidence of cholesterol-filled arteries and fewer heart attacks." Dr. Wissler warns against being tempted to deny the important relationship between cholesterol and heart disease.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled "Alcoholism...A Family Disease." It probes this grave problem and offers hopeful advice. For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Alcoholism booklet), P.O. Box 5178, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017. Please mention the booklet by title.

This brings up to a story about this hand. West, a young player with roving eyes had seen the entire North and South hands during the bidding and therefore had no problem about leading that seven of hearts.

South, a native-looking elderly lady also had no problems. She rose with dummy's king of hearts, drew trumps, ruffed out the queen of clubs and made seven.

"How did you figure that out?" asked West.

"Chest your cards, young man," was the reply.

Eat Meal In Morning

People give many excuses for skipping breakfast.

Studies indicate that persons who skip breakfast choose mid or late-morning snacks high in calories relative to other nutrients.

This is one reason it's especially important for people who are trying to lose weight to eat a good breakfast.

March 7, 1976

This year it is very likely that you will make some positive changes in your basic life style. That which you strive to improve will benefit others of your family as well.

March 8, 1976

Opportunities that could enhance you materially may suddenly open up this coming year. They won't produce a proper return if they're managed carelessly.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Too Young To Worry

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 13-year-old daily reader of your column and I am very mad at the kids I go to school with. The reason is you.

Every day, the first thing I hear when I walk into class is, "Did you read Ann Landers today?" Then they laugh and make fun of the people who write to you, as if they are all nutty or something.

Why don't they realize that a problem isn't funny to the person who has it? I'll bet every one of those kids who is laughing now will end up with some kind of trouble you might be able to help them with. But they will be too ashamed to ask you for help because they made fun of you so often.

Please print this letter so the hyenas will stop laughing. — Your Booster

Dear Booster: Let 'em laugh, honey. If they need me I'll be here. Yesterday's knocker is tomorrow's friend.

Honorable

Dear Ann Landers: As you undoubtedly are aware, a great deal is being said against the funeral service profession of late. I would like to present the other side of the controversy since almost everything I have read casts the funeral director in the role of the rip-off artist who takes advantage of poor people by making them feel guilty if they don't put Pa or Ma away in a $4,000 bronze casket.

The charges against the profession are based on an infinitesimal sampling of families, made in one small area of the United States. The statistics I have seen indicate that there were approximately 100 complaints from nearly a million families who were served. This compares very favorably with any profession in the United States. In fact, I believe it's a testimony to the integrity of the profession. Will you please comment? — Unjustly Maligned

Dear U.M.: Every profession has its chiselers, con-artists and incompetents. Funeral directors, along with the physicians, lawyers, bankers, etc., have their share. But I'm sure the overwhelming majority of morticians are honorable people who perform a service we could not do without. Moreover, they perform it with dignity and sensitivity and are extremely even-handed in that they offer a wide range of financial alternatives for people of every economic level.

I know of a funeral director in Chicago whose family has been in business since 1864. Rarely does this firm charge more than a token fee for the burial of an infant and in cases of financial hardship they either donate their services or they will accept as a fee whatever the family can afford.

No Loans

Dear Ann Landers: I have a 24-year-old brother who acts like a 10-year-old kid. He has a good job but is always broke. Why? Because he keeps lending money to deadbeats and buying gifts for goldiggers.

Hank now owes me $110 and I'm not exactly the U.S. Mint. It burns me up to see the way his friends take advantage of him. He says he knows he's being taken for a sucker, but he just can't say no. What can I do? — Sister Of A Sap

Dear Sis: For openers you can stop lending him money. Next you can suggest that Hank get some counseling and find out why he has such a low opinion of himself that he believes he wouldn't have any friends unless he played Santa Claus.

Are drugs O.K. if you learn how to control them? Can they be of help? The answers are in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dog on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Teaches Sign Language

INSTRUCTOR: Jan Williams, left, a freshman at Andrews university, shows Dean Coridan, one of her 21 pupils, a word in sign language in a class for hearing students being offered as part of the Eau Claire school district's Continuing Adult Education program.

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Jane Williams, a communications freshman at Andrews university, is instructing a sign language class as part of the Eau Claire school district's Continuing Adult Education program.

The eight-week class is offered each quarter during the regular school year.

Beginning with the alphabet, the class progresses through simple words to more complex phrasing.

Deanna Duerksen, one of the students, said, "My husband and I hope to use the language in our church work when he finishes his studies at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary."

Faith Slikkers, who has some experience with sign language while caring for an elderly deaf man, said, "I would like to teach students in a deaf high school someday."

One student said, "It is surprising how logical sign language is. It makes it easy to learn."

Miss Williams, who plans to work in audiology, has gained experience from interpreting church services, starting first in the Detroit Metropolitan Seventh-day Adventist church. Now she interprets at Pioneer Memorial and Berrien Springs Village Seventh-day Adventist churches on alternate Saturdays.

She also works for the Michigan Department of Education Vocational Rehabilitation office in assisting the deaf students to communicate with their counselors about jobs.

Miss Williams said, "In some areas of the country, television programs are translated in a corner of the screen. I would like to see more such programs."

After the eight lessons, Miss Williams will instruct interested students through five more lessons and further practice.

She said, "I am always willing to teach people sign language because I feel that the difficulties the deaf face are often unnoticed. Learning sign language helps in understanding the deaf person's problems."

For Monday, March 8, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Be careful today so thoughtless remarks won't slip out that another may find offensive, even though you didn't intend them to be so.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
It's possible that you could be careless today in small financial transactions. Count your change. Keep sales slips.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Today you could feel you want to dominate the conversation. Remember: we also learn by listening.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
It may be heard for you today to hold back from repeating some information told you in confidence. Best you don't.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
So you won't be bored to tears today, avoid the company of a friend who does a lot of talking but seldom has anything to say.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
It won't be the big things today that others will find fault with. It could be something trivial that may hurt your image.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Before announcing your plans prematurely today, stop and consider whether the person you're talking with should know them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Rather than drop in unexpectedly on someone, call first. To be sure this person doesn't have other plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Be sure what you volunteer to do for another today doesn't have some hidden costs that could be easily overlooked.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You'll be in the mood for some fun-type activity today, especially toward afternoon. If you have no plans, you're apt to grow very restless.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Hasty or rash judgments could be your downfall today. Allow ample time to collect your thoughts before making important moves.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Prudent management of resources is a must today, especially if you're involved in an enterprise with friends. Shun extravagance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
It would be unwise to take on more than you can handle today competitively. Size-up your opposition realistically.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Being sly or too shrewd when dealing today could misfire and not produce the results you hope for. Be candid and open.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Don't volunteer advice today, but if you know what you're talking about or you may cause a problem.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Allies who are usually helpful may not be there when you need them today. Don't bank too heavily on others to get you out of tight spots.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Try not to bring up issues today with associates that could lead to debate. It might be like opening a Pandora's box.

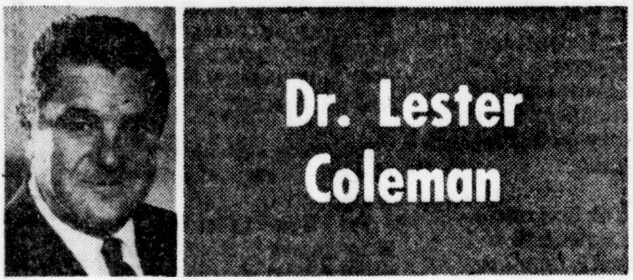

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Business or commercial dealings today may be a bit more complicated than they appear on the surface. Scrutinize them cautiously.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Be careful if making agreements or important commitments today. Get an expert's advice if you have doubts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Usually you face up to your responsibilities readily, but today there's a possibility you may try to shift them to another.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You may find chancy or speculative ventures very tempting today. It's unwise to rely solely on Lady Luck. She may desert you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
The outcome of an event that could exert an influence on your finances may still be up in the air today. Don't spend what isn't there.

"Color scanning" of the thyroid gland has become a significant contribution to the better understanding about the thyroid function. An instrument known as the Picker Dynacamera used in conjunction with radioisotopes can give a color picture of the thyroid in health and in disease.

Overactive thyroids, goiters, non-cancerous and cancerous growths of the thyroid can more readily be determined by those who specialize in this technique. The color scanning has enlarged the horizons of understanding of all problems relating to disorders of the thyroid.

Dr. Fuad S. Ashkar of the Miami school of medicine believes that the color scan is a highly sensitive indicator of the function of the thyroid. He feels that "it adds a three-dimensional quality" to the study of the thyroid gland.

Hodgkin's disease has for many years threatened the lives of patients. More and more instances of the cure of Hodgkin's disease have been brought to light by the recent advances in medicine and in science.

Dr. Saul A. Rosenberg of the Stanford University School of Medicine at Palo Alto, California, believes that "patients with limited disease have a 90 per cent chance of long-term control."

The reason for this lies in improved early diagnosis and early use of X-ray treatment and chemotherapy.

Hodgkin's disease has yielded many of its secrets to the persistence of scientific research.

An interesting concept about nutrition has been released by the University of Chicago. Dr. Robert Wissler, director of a research program in arteriosclerosis, points out that "when baby chickens grow up and are properly prepared, they offer one of the best and least expensive sources of animal protein, low in cholesterol and saturated fat."

Dr. Wissler and his colleagues have carried on extensive studies in experimental animals in an effort to decrease cholesterol deposits in the arteries. He emphatically states that "most populations around the world that eat a low cholesterol and low fat diet have a low incidence of cholesterol-filled arteries and fewer heart attacks." D. Wissler warns against being tempted to deny the important relationship between cholesterol and heart disease.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled "Alcoholism...A Family Disease." It probes this grave problem and offers hopeful advice, for your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Alcoholism booklet), P.O. Suggests 30.4% 'Blues' Rate Hike

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A 30.4 per cent increase in Blue Cross-Blue Shield rates is needed this year to keep the health insurer financially sound because hikes in the past two years were too low, a special hearings examiner says.

The boost, recommended Friday by Spencer Kimball of Chicago, would mean the Blues'

5.2 million subscribers would pay an average $25 more a month. The increase would raise $304 million more annually for the state's largest health insurer.

A final decision on the increase must be made this month by state Insurance Commissioner Thomas Jones, who will review both Kimball's recommendation and the 28 per cent hike suggested by the Inurance Bureau staff.

Following several days of testimony by the Blues and the bureau staff, Kimball, who is executive director of the American Bar Foundation, concluded the Blues' financial reserves are "dangerously low," as the company claimed.

Blues senior vice president Clifford Gardner said in his testimony the company would be forced to drop its high-risk customers — mostly the elderly — if rates were not raised enough this year.

The company had no comment on Kimball's recommendation, although Blues' officials have labeled the record 35 per cent increase made last fall the "absolute minimum" needed. The requested amount would mean $355 million more a year to the health insurers.

Former insurance commissioner Daniel Demlow, now chairman of the State Public Service Commission, which sets utility rates, consistently allowed the Blues to raise rates much less than they wanted. He said this was partly because he felt the firms did not do enough to keep health care costs down.

But Kimball said Demlow's position contributed in part to the Blues' sad financial shape now.

"However justified the commissioner's orders may have been in 1974 and 1975, the need now is to preserve the viability of the enterprise, not further to 'punish' management," he said.

Blues testimony showed its reserves — the company's financial security cushion — fell to $88 million last December, a loss of $129 million last year, because of inadequate rates and soaring health care costs.

Kimball suggested the rate hike take effect in April, with a surcharge on those who renew their policies in April through July, when increases began in the past.

Revenue collected from those surcharges, however, would not go toward rebuilding the depleted reserves until July, he said.

Kimball agreed with the commission staff, however, that the Blues have not done enough to help blunt rising health care costs.

"But, I do not believe effective pressure can be applied through the rate approval process because of the necessity of maintaining the company's viability," he said.

Demlow last year gave the Blues $100 million of the $310 million increase they sought, partly because they failed to implement programs to trim health care costs.

This year, the Insurance Bureau staff complimented the Blues for getting programs started, although one bureau official said the benefits of the Blues' attempts to keep costs down probably wouldn't be felt by customers for several years.

Milliken Unveils PBB Plan

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has unveiled a five-pronged program on PBB he says could ease public confusion and hasten settlement payments to farmers.

"The plan also provides for burial of more animals and intensified scientific investigation to determine the effects of PBB on humans."

Milliken said Friday the plan is designed to "help end the rumors and half-truths that often surround this issue."

Since 1973, when polychlorinated biphenyl or PBB, a toxic fire retardant, was mixed with Michigan cattle feed, thousands of Michigan cattle have been destroyed.

State officials say there is no short-term evidence of any danger to people who ate products from contaminated animals with levels above the federal guidelines, but the state is planning a 15-year study to gauge long-term effects.

Under his plan Milliken: —Appointed a five-member scientific advisory panel to review PBB data and report its findings to Milliken within a month.

—Named a three-member "oversight" committee to review the progress of insurance settlements for farmers whose contaminated cattle were destroyed and report to the governor.

—Arranged for the burial of more than 400 additional cattle at state cost at the state's burial site in Kalkaska.

—Ordered the agriculture department to quickly complete

testing about 3,200 livestock still under quarantine.

—Ordered the public health department to step up efforts to provide clinical services to farm families to assess the affect of PBB.

Winner Still On 'Sideline'

BROOKINGS, S.D. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern says the current crop of Democrats scrambling for the party's presidential nomination is the "second team."

McGovern, in an interview with the Brookings Register, said none of the eight major candidates now running can garner enough support to get the party's nomination this summer. He said the probable winner is still on the sidelines.

Key parts of the law being challenged in the suits relate to financial disclosure by $10,000 state and local officials and rules for Michigan lobbyists who spend more than $1,000 a year.

Kavanaugh said the existence of the lower court suits "gives me a little pause about issuing an advisory opinion" on ten questions submitted to the court by the legislature.

The court apparently did not know of the lower court suits until ten attorneys gave oral arguments on the constitutionality of the law Friday before the seven justices. Kavanaugh was clearly surprised to hear of the suits.

Supreme Court advisory opinions are not binding on lower courts, but indicate how the high court would probably rule if the issue came before it again.

Kavanaugh said he hoped the high court's opinions would be issued within a month. The law takes effect April 1, though procedures to enforce its rules will probably not be operating until fall.

The Wayne County Circuit Court suit, filed by the Socialist Workers Party, challenges the law's provisions for complex reporting of contributions to minor party campaigns. Detroit attorney Ronald Rosati said Friday in his arguments.

He said minor parties are subject to harassment and intimidation from government officials and private citizens and reporting of even small donations could frighten away important potential contributors.

Suggests 30.4% 'Blues' Rate Hike

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A 30.4 per cent increase in Blue Cross-Blue Shield rates is needed this year to keep the health insurer financially sound because hikes in the past two years were too low, a special hearings examiner says.

The boost, recommended Friday by Spencer Kimball of Chicago, would mean the Blues'

5.2 million subscribers would pay an average $25 more a month. The increase would raise $304 million more annually for the state's largest health insurer.

A final decision on the increase must be made this month by state Insurance Commissioner Thomas Jones, who will review both Kimball's recommendation and the 28 per cent hike suggested by the Insurance Bureau staff.

Following several days of testimony by the Blues and the bureau staff, Kimball, who is executive director of the American Bar Foundation, concluded the Blues' financial reserves are "dangerously low," as the company claimed.

Blues senior vice president Clifford Gardner said in his testimony the company would be forced to drop its high-risk customers — mostly the elderly — if rates were not raised enough this year.

The company had no comment on Kimball's recommendation, although Blues' officials have labeled the record 35 per cent increase made last fall the "absolute minimum" needed. The requested amount would mean $355 million more a year to the health insurers.

Former insurance commissioner Daniel Demlow, now chairman of the State Public Service Commission, which sets utility rates, consistently allowed the Blues to raise rates much less than they wanted. He said this was partly because he felt the firms did not do enough to keep health care costs down.

But Kimball said Demlow's position contributed in part to the Blues' sad financial shape now.

"However justified the commissioner's orders may have been in 1974 and 1975, the need now is to preserve the viability of the enterprise," he said.

Blues testimony showed its reserves — the company's financial security cushion — fell to $88 million last December, a loss of $129 million last year, because of inadequate rates and soaring health care costs.

Kimball suggested the rate hike take effect in April, with a surcharge on those who renew their policies in April through July, when increases began in the past.

Revenue collected from those surcharges, however, would not go toward rebuilding the depleted reserves until July, he said.

Kimball agreed with the commission staff, however, that the Blues have not done enough to help blunt rising health care costs.

"But, I do not believe effective pressure can be applied through the rate approval process because of the necessity of maintaining the company's viability," he said.

Demlow last year gave the Blues $160 million of the $310 million increase they sought, partly because they failed to implement programs to trim health care costs.

This year, the Insurance Bureau staff complimented the Blues for getting programs started, although one bureau official said the benefits of the Blues' attempts to keep costs down probably wouldn't be felt by customers for several years.

Milliken Unveils PBB Plan

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has unveiled a five-pronged program on PBB he says could ease public confusion and hasten settlement payments to farmers.

The plan also provides for burial of more animals and intensified scientific investigation to determine the effects of PBB on humans.

Milliken said Friday the plan is designed to "help end the rumors and half-truths that often surround this issue."

Since 1973, when polybrominated biphenyl or PBB, a toxic fire retardant, was mixed with Michigan cattle feed, thousands of Michigan cattle have been destroyed.

State officials say there is no short-term evidence of any danger to people who ate products from contaminated animals with levels above the federal guidelines, but the state is planning a 15-year study to gauge long-term effects.

Under his plan Milliken: —Appointed a five-member scientific advisory panel to review PBB data and report its findings to Milliken within a month.

—Named a three-member "oversight" committee to review the progress of insurance settlements for farmers whose contaminated cattle were destroyed and report to the governor.

—Arranged for the burial of more than 400 additional cattle at state cost at the state's burial site in Kalkaska.

—Ordered the agriculture department to quickly complete testing about 3,200 livestock still under quarantine.

—Ordered the public health department to step up efforts to provide clinical services to farm families to assess the affect of PBB.

'Advisory Opinion' Delayed

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Suits pending in lower courts could force the state Supreme Court to decline giving an opinion on the constitutionality of much of Michigan's new political ethics law.

In response to questioning, Chief Justice Thomas G. Kavanagh said Friday suits in Ingham and Wayne County Circuit Courts "might be" improperly clouded if the highest court in Michigan gives its opinion before the lower courts decide them.

Key parts of the law being challenged in the suits relate to financial disclosure by 30,000 state and local officials and rules for Michigan lobbyists who spend more than $1,000 a year.

Kavanagh said the existence of the lower court suits "gives me a little pause about issuing an advisory opinion" on ten questions submitted to the court by the legislature.

The court apparently did not know of the lower court suits until ten attorneys gave oral arguments on the constitutionality of the law Friday before the seven justices. Kavanagh was clearly surprised to hear of the suits.

Supreme Court advisory opinions are not binding on lower courts, but indicate how the high court would probably rule if the issue came before it again.

Kavanagh said he hoped the high court's opinion would be issued within a month. The law takes effect April 1, though procedures to enforce its rules will probably not be operating until fall.

The Wayne County Circuit Court suit, filed by the Socialist Workers Party, challenges the law's provisions for complex reporting of contributions to minor party campaigns. Detroit attorney Ronald Reosti said Friday in his arguments.

He said minor parties are subject to harassment and intimidation from government officials and private citizens and reporting of even small donations could frighten away important potential contributors.

Winner Still On 'Sideline'

BROOKINGS, S.D. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern says the current crop of Democrats scrambling for the party's presidential nomination is the "second team."

McGovern, in an interview with the Brookings Register, said none of the eight major candidates now running can garner enough support to get the party's nomination this summer. He said the probable winner is still on the sidelines.

Reagan Escalates 'Get Tough' Plan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It was the most blistering exchange yet in Patricia Hearst's trial for bank robbery. In a hushed courtroom, her chief defense attorney accused a publicity-shy prosecution witness of trying to fix the trial's outcome — then heard himself called a liar.

F. Lee Bailey angrily assailed Dr. Joel Fort's qualifications to testify as an expert psychiatric witness for the government Friday.

Shifting his voice to a virtual roar that startled the 22-year-old defendant, Bailey glared at Fort and yelled, "Did you go to them, (Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Hearst) Dr. Fort, and try to fix this case behind my back?"

At one point, Bailey accused Fort of making a "false" reply. "You're lying about it, Mr. Bailey," responded Fort.

Bailey lost his bid to have Fort disqualified, and the physician testified that he had spent a total of 15 hours interviewing Miss Hearst.

Farmers' Criticism Felt By President

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's new Agricultural Policy Committee contains elements of a political curtsy to farm groups who had chided him for not listening enough to the farmer.

Ford, in a speech Friday to farmers in Illinois, said he was naming Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz as chairman of the committee, which will consolidate "all agricultural policy-making functions" of the executive branch.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest farm group, and others had criticized Ford for allegedly undercutting Butz and leaning toward Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and others in matters of agricultural export policy.

Earlier this year the federation, a conservative organization which is especially strong in Illinois, warned Ford that he was in trouble politically with farmers because of last summer's Russian grain sale embargo.

Allen Grant, federation president, said in January that he had asked Ford to put Kissinger "back on the track" regarding farm policy and had urged that Butz and the Agriculture Department be given a greater voice.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., another critic, has said repeatedly that Kissinger and others have influenced farm trade have continued criticizing the White House for the embargoes and have been pushing Ford to make amends with farmers.

Ford said in Springfield, Ill., that he was proud of Butz and that he was asking the secretary to "assume a new and vital role" in strengthening the administration's farm policy.

"This new committee — and its leadership — reasserts the importance I attach to Secretary Butz as my chief agricultural policy adviser and spokesman," Ford said. "I am confident that this bolstering of agricultural policy within the executive branch will benefit the farmers of Illinois and all Americans."

Ford's announcement pleased Dole, who said he had made a similar suggestion to the President.

"It's the right thing to do and it's good politics," Dole said.

Michigan's Jobless Rate Declines

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's unemployment rate in February was 12.9 per cent of the labor force, down from January's 13.4 per cent, the Michigan Employment Security Commission reported Friday.

S. Martin Taylor, commission director, said estimates show there were 514,700 unemployed in February and 535,000 in January.

The jobless rate for the Detroit metropolitan area also declined, Martin said. The area is defined as Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Livingston, Lapeer and St. Clair counties.

He said February's number of unemployed dropped to 246,000 from January's 257,200. This represented 12.9 per cent of the work force in February and 13.3 per cent in January.

The figures represent what Taylor described as a substantial improvement from a year ago February when Michigan was at the low point of the recession.

In 1975, the statewide unemployment figure was 621,300; with a rate of 15.5 per cent. The metropolitan area had 317,500, and a rate of 18.4 per cent.

Taylor said the decline in unemployment over the month resulted largely from seasonal workers leaving the labor force.

Northern Michigan made a poor showing in the unemployment figures. Chelvygan County showed a 31.8 per cent unemployment rate in mid-January, while Alpena County registered a 23.7 per cent figure.

Oscoda County has a 26.3 per cent rate, with another half dozen counties with unemployment levels at or near 20 per cent, including Roscommon county, 21.1; Presque Isle 18.7; Montmorency, 20.7; Crawford, 20.6; and Alcona and Alcona counties, 17.1.

collision course with Russia in the thermonuclear age "can leave the human race in ashes," he warned.

Reagan planned to continue his campaign in Florida today, and Ford was scheduled to spend another day in Illinois.

The Democratic race in Florida continued to generate sparks. Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter and Washington Sen. Henry Jackson traded barbs again. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace struck out at those who call him a regional candidate and Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp continued to plug his educational trust fund proposal.

The embargoes last summer on grain sales to Russia and Poland were irksome to Dole and others who felt Ford had listened to others besides his agriculture experts. In the case of the Polish embargo, Butz opposed it while Kissinger argued for it and won.

Eventually, the embargoes were lifted. But Dole and other farm belt members of Congress

HIGH WATER: Water from Lake St. Clair, driven by winds that gusted up to 50 m.p.h., washes over seawalls, flooding low areas around lakeside homes near Pearl Beach, Mich., Friday. Rain, Winds Slow Storm Repair

By Associated Press
Rain and high wind struck across the southeastern portion of the state Friday, adding to the problems of utility crews attempting to restore power to areas hit by an ice storm earlier in the week, the National Weather Service reported.

High levels on Lake St. Clair spurred by high winds resulted in some flooding. In Clay Township police said boats were ready to evacuate residents if necessary and temporary housing had been set up at a junior high school. The Weather Service said winds were gusting up to 50 miles an hour.

Officials estimated that water was a foot deep in some places with some main roads in the area under water. Michigan 29 from Ira Township to Pearl Beach was reported flooded and a store on Harsen's Island reported four to five inches of water inside.

High winds caused dozens of concrete blocks, each weighing from 150 to 200 pounds, to be catapulted off the top of the 25-story First National Building in downtown Detroit.

Miraculously, nobody in the lunch-hour throng on the sidewalk below was injured. "For a second we didn't know what was happening — we saw people ducking and waving their arms," said Detroit policeman Richard Williams. "Then my partner started screaming at them on the loudspeaker to get the hell out of there."

Meanwhile, lights were still out and refrigerators warming for an estimated 215,000 Michigan residents in the wake of the massive ice storm.

Detroit Edison and Consumers Power Co. officials say nearly two million Michigan residents have been without heat and light at some point since last Tuesday's devastating ice storm.

An Edison spokesman said high winds in the Detroit area Friday caused many trees to go down. He said the trees had been weakened earlier by ice — and took power lines down with them.

Saginaw and Oakland County were two areas hard hit by power outages. Many central Michigan dairy farmers resorted to auxiliary generators to operate milking machines and heat chicken coops, but others were forced to milk their cows by hand.

In Muskegon, the county extension office reported 200 cattle herds had gone without water because there was no power for the electric well pump.

Detroit Edison officials said 135,000 customers remained without service Friday. An estimated 120,000 households had been restored to power since the icy sleet started late Tuesday.

About 40,000 persons remained without power in the Thumb area, and Edison officials said the other problem areas were in parts of Oakland County and Detroit's East Side, including the Grosse Pointes.

In the Upper Peninsula, heavy snow and high winds were forecast with four or more inches predicted and temperatures dipping to zero.

Service School Drop-Outs Costly

By JOHN LENDEL

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The high drop-out rate at the service academies constitutes a waste of the taxpayer's money, congressional auditors say.

A General Accounting Office study said Friday that between 13 and 18 per cent of the costs of five service academies are spent on persons who ultimately drop out.

"For each student who leaves the academy, the government incurs measurable costs for the period of time he was at the academy. The longer the student is at the academy before he drops out, the greater the costs which the academy will have incurred," the GAO said.

"In the final analysis, every student who drops out increases the cost of an academy graduate," it said.

In its study of the military, Air Force, naval, merchant marine and Coast Guard academies, GAO said the institutions are losing enrollees at a near-record rate.

The Air Force Academy class of 1975 lost 46 per cent of its original members. The lowest figure for the five academies was 36 per cent for the Military Academy.

At the Coast Guard Academy,

$12,000 of the $66,200 cost per graduate, or 18 per cent, is attributed to dropouts, the GAO said. The lowest percentage was 13 per cent at the Naval Academy.

GAO said dropouts: —Were not firmly committed in the first place to a service career.

—Were especially incompatible with the military environment at first, and disliked the intense competition.

—Resented what they took as an overemphasis on memorizing military lore, terms, and going through ceremonies and drill.

—Seemed to think the military course of study would be more varied, not as technically oriented as it is.

—Seemed more concerned with personal growth while the academies are concerned with stability.

GAO said military faculties and some cadets tended to blame the dropout rate on generalities such as affluence, permissiveness and the Vietnam War.

The government agency recommended that the academies increase the size of entering classes to offset attrition, much of which occurs in the first two years.

GAO also said the Cabinet secretaries responsible should do their own studies, examine the need for the current level of drills and ceremonies and explain the limited curriculum to prospective cadets.

In addition, dropouts should be required to pay for what education they do receive, GAO said.

Conyers Pushing Gun Control Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring the time has come to "end the arms race in this country," Rep. John Conyers said Friday his subcommittee would meet again in an attempt to pass a compromise gun-control bill.

Conyers, chairman of the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Crime, made his comments after the full Judiciary Committee earlier this week rejected a subcommittee gun bill by a one-vote margin.

"If I can get a bill out of the full committee and subcommittee," the Michigan Democrat said, "I can get it through Congress."

The stumbling block centered on an amendment by Rep. Martin Russo, D-Ill., to ban handguns that can be concealed easily, a type often used by criminals.

Objections to the amendment centered on the fact that such a ban would outlaw many target handguns owned by sportsmen as well as the so-called Saturday Night Special. The latter is generally defined as a cheap, easily concealable handgun and has been called the primary sidearm of the armed street thug.

Young Is Challenged

DETROIT (AP) — Ernest Browne Jr., a Detroit city councilman, said the only thing that could keep him out of the mayor's race in 1977 would be if "drastic improvements and drastic changes occur." Browne said Mayor Coleman Young was not communicating effectively with the legislative branch of government and was not challenging the people of Detroit to do their best. The 50-year-old councilman is the first to declare he might run against Young, Browne, a black and a moderate, is serving his second city council term.

SOME PEOPLE FOIL SAFEGUARDS

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

No matter how many safeguards manufacturers devise to protect users of electrical tools and equipment, there always are some people who find ways to circumvent them.

Three-pronged plugs on portable power tools enjoyed a wave of popularity a few years ago because they seemed to provide a form of automatic grounding. Which they did — but only when used in outlets with a special three-wire ground conductor. So people cut off the third prong used an adapter and neglected to ground it.

The current effort to protect users of portable electric tools and appliances against themselves is through what is usually called double insulation. Tools so protected usually have the conventional two-pronged plugs and thus can be used in ordinary outlets. This has worked wonders in preventing accidents because of short circuits. But, in a few cases, it doesn't provide 100 per cent protection against ALL electrical hazards.

Users are warned that double insulated equipment should not be grounded, since an improper wiring connection could make exposed metal parts live.

No matter how remote the possibility of a shock with a double insulated tool or appliance — and it is remote — it is foolhardy not to read the instructions that come with the unit.

equipment or wiring, the device interrupts the circuit and cuts off the current.

It has been so effective that the National Electrical Code has mandated its use in bathrooms and outdoor receptacles, places where dangerous electrical shocks are likely to occur.

But even this protective device can only protect a person against current leading through the body to the ground. It can't protect you when you become the path for the current between the hot wire and the neutral wire of a circuit.

Here's the Answer

Q. — In putting beveled wood siding on one side of our house, which is listed as the first of my future projects, how much overlap should there be on the horizontal courses?

A. — Beveled siding 6 inches wide should have at least 1 inch overlap between courses. Siding 8 inches or wider should overlap 1 to 1½ inches.

Q. — Ever since we had storm windows put up on our house, the condensation on the inside windows has ended, but now it takes place on the storm windows. What's the problem?

A. — It means that warm, moist air from inside the house is getting to the storm windows, resulting in condensation. Take steps to make the inside windows airtight or drill a few holes in the frame of the storm windows so the moist air can escape.

Q. — I have purchased a new house for $12,000. It was built before March 28th, so I know that it qualifies for the $2,000 tax credit. As I understand it, a tax credit means that I can deduct the entire $2,000 from my income tax liability. But there is a possibility that my income tax this year will not equal $2,000. Will the government make up the difference?

A. — No. The law is that you can deduct 5 per cent of your tax liability up to a maximum of $2,000. If, however, you owe the government only $1,800 for 1975, your tax credit will be $1,800, not $2,000. If you owe $1,500, and so on. The government will not send you anything extra to bring the credit up to $2,000.

SOME PEOPLE FOIL SAFEGUARDS

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

No matter how many safeguards manufacturers devise to protect users of electrical tools and equipment, there always are some people who find ways to circumvent them.

Three-pronged plugs on portable power tools enjoyed a wave of popularity a few years ago because they seemed to provide a form of automatic grounding. Which they did — but only when used in outlets with a special three-wire ground conductor. So people cut off the third prong used an adapter and neglected to ground it.

The current effort to protect users of portable electric tools and appliances against themselves is through what is usually called double insulation. Tools so protected usually have the conventional two-pronged plugs and thus can be used in ordinary outlets. This has worked wonders in preventing accidents because of short circuits. But, in a few cases, it doesn't provide 100 per cent protection against ALL electrical hazards.

Users are warned that double insulated equipment should not be grounded, since an improper wiring connection could make exposed metal parts live.

No matter how remote the possibility of a shock with a double insulated tool or appliance — and it is remote — it is foolhardy not to read the instructions that come with the unit.

Another development designed to prevent trouble is the ground fault interrupter. If there's a shock-causing ground fault condition in electrical equipment or wiring, the device interrupts the circuit and cuts off the current.

It has been so effective that the National Electrical Code has mandated its use in bathrooms and outdoor receptacles, places where dangerous electrical shocks are likely to occur.

But even this protective device can only protect a person against current leading through the body to the ground. It can't protect you when you become the path for the current between the hot wire and the neutral wire of a circuit.

SEVEN MINUS FIVE

WEAVERVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Seven spiral staircases leading from sidewalks to balconies adorned the outsides of buildings here more than a century ago. Today only two still stand.

SIDING COMES INSIDE: Garage was converted into a family room with the help of Masonite brand Bayside lap siding. The owner-installed siding features a multi-level, shingle-like texture. In the conversation area a vinyl sofa and molded tub chair are combined with contemporary chests and cubes. A striped canopy transforms an ordinary garage door into a dramatic entryway. A totem pole decorates entryway.

Here's the Answer

Q. — In putting beveled wood siding on one side of our house, which is listed as the first of my future projects, how much overlap should there be on the horizontal courses?

A. — Beveled siding 6 inches wide should have at least 1 inch overlap between courses. Siding 8 inches or wider should overlap 1 to 1½ inches.

Q. — Ever since we had storm windows put up on our house, the condensation on the inside windows has ended, but now it takes place on the storm windows. What's the problem?

A. — It means that warm, moist air from inside the house is getting to the storm windows, resulting in condensation. Take steps to make the inside windows airtight or drill a few holes in the frame of the storm windows so the moist air can escape.

Q. — I have purchased a new house for $42,000. It was built before March 26th, so I know that it qualifies for the $2,000 tax credit. As I understand it, a tax credit means that I can deduct the entire $2,000 from my income tax liability. But there is a possibility that my income tax this year will not equal $2,000. Will the government make up the difference?

A. — No. The law is that you can deduct 5 per cent of your tax liability up to a maximum of $2,000. If, however, you owe the government only $1,800 for 1975, your tax credit will be $1,800, not $2,000. If you owe $1,500, and so on. The government will not send you anything extra to bring the credit up to $2,000.

Safety Violations Cited In Blast

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Department of Labor said a Michigan Farm Bureau subsidiary committed three violations of state safety laws which allegedly contributed to a grain elevator blast in Zilwaukee where five workers were killed and 11 others injured.

The explosion Jan. 22 at the Michigan Elevator Exchange was blamed on a welding-cutting operation which ignited organic dust in the 12-story elevator, the department said Friday.

"The evidence is fairly conclusive that a spark from a cutting or welding torch set off the dust," said Labor Director Keith Molin.

Moreover, the investigation revealed that the welding operation was conducted in direct violation of the safety law," he said.

Molin said the department will fine the company $10,000 for each of the violations. He said criminal charges could have been filed but were not because the company had made some effort to insure the safety of the welding-cutting operation.

The company is charged with: —Failing to properly seal off and isolate the area where the welding-cutting was underway to prevent volatile grain dust from getting in.

—Failing to shut down dust-producing machinery in nearby areas.

—Failing to properly clean the area before the welding-cutting operation was undertaken.

Black Commander Praised

DETROIT (AP) — A black Detroit Police precinct commander may have his transfer cancelled after the predominantly white residents in his area protested the officer's move. More than 80 residents of the 4th Precinct attended a Board of Police Commissioners meeting Thursday to ask Police Chief Philip Tannian to drop plans to promote Commander Richard Dungey to Tannian's headquarters staff. Several residents praised Dungey's accomplishments in his 18 months as a precinct commander, saying he had helped reduce muggings and burglaries. Dungey, 40, was the first black commanding officer in the precinct on the city's southwest side. Residents credit him with improving community relations by instituting an "open door" policy for citizen complaints.

Increase Labeled 'Excessive'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken says a proposed Detroit-area increase in the property transfer tax would be "excessive" and not the proper way to provide the local share of funds for a mass transit system. Milliken on Friday reiterated his earlier stand in urging the legislature to authorize instead a three-county increase in the motor vehicle weight tax or license plate fee to raise local funds. Legislation calling for a huge increase in the property transfer tax in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties is expected next week.

Flint Special Election

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — A special election limited to the two precincts in which a voting device discredited Flint's mayoral election has been ordered by Genesee County Circuit Judge Ollie Bivins Jr. Bivins' ruling Friday came in suits to void the election brought by Floyd McCree, Genesee County registrar of deeds and the Flint Area League of Women Voters, to void the election. McCree lost the election in James Rutherford. Bivins said the entire election should not be declared void "because there was not fraud, corruption or widespread error. The error occurred on both sides and it is not practicable to say whether Rutherford profited more by it than McCree." Bivins, in an 18-page opinion, said the special election would be held under court supervision in precincts 51 and 52.

Whalen Wants Jewelry Back

DETROIT (AP) — Government Informer John Whalen is suing law enforcement officers for the return of jewelry police confiscated from him in Hamtramck last December. Whalen, 30, charges that authorities have no legal right to keep the jewelry because they are unable to prove that it belongs to anyone other than Whalen. Police discovered the diamond-studded bracelet, brooch and gold earrings next to Whalen on the front seat of a car. Since then, police have circulated photographs of the jewelry around the country in an effort to determine whether it was stolen. "We can't come up with a thing on ownership," said Hamtramck police detective Solomon McCormick.

Winner Of Pageant

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Kevin Gale, 22, of Dearborn Heights, won the Miss Michigan-Universes pageant Friday night in competition with 83 other contestants. Miss Gale will go on to compete for the Miss U.S.A. title in Niagara Falls, N.Y. May 15.

Hamtramck Accused

DETROIT (AP) — State and federal agencies should withhold funds from Hamtramck because it discriminates against blacks, says the Michigan chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Michigan SCLC members told a news conference Friday they have asked the city officials to correct the alleged discriminatory practices. The SCLC says that as a result of city harassment, Hamtramck's black population dropped from 8,000 in 1946 to 3,270 today. The total city population is 27,245. Ray Johnson, executive director of Michigan's SCLC, said alleged abuses of the 88 per cent white city are so great that "we question whether...it (Hamtramck) can continue to exist as a city even." Mayor William V. Kozerski and other city officials disputed the charges.

Charges Are Dropped

DETROIT (AP) — Charges were dropped Friday against a bail bondsman indicted in the alleged bribery conspiracy case of former Michigan Gov. John Swainson. The indictment charged Charles B. Goldfarb with perjury, conspiracy and mail fraud in the case was dismissed by Detroit Federal Judge Carl B. Rubin. Rubin acted in response to a motion by Robert Ozer, head of the federal Organized Crime Strike Force which prosecuted Swainson. Ozer won a conviction against the former Democratic Michigan governor on perjury charges. Goldfarb, though indicted with Swainson, was never tried.

Go Jogging, Governor?

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State House Speaker Bobby Crim has asked Gov. William Milliken to run alongside him on a five-mile benefit jog in Bay City later this month. The 44-year-old Democratic lawmaker asked the Republican executive to join him in the Bay City Run-A-Thon March 14, about two weeks before Milliken's 54th birthday. "I plan to run only five miles, which is a moderate distance for people like you and me who enjoy clean living," Crim told Milliken by letter, adding in the postscript: "no minutes please." Crim also suggested: "We can bring (state athletic director) Gerry Miller along to review the budget as we run." Milliken had not seen Crim's invitation Thursday, and asked would not speculate if he'd accept.

Wounded Chaplain Dies

DETROIT (AP) — The police chaplain who was shot in the head by a barricaded gunman he was trying to help died Friday at Detroit General Hospital. The Rev. William A. Paris was trying to talk gunman Chauncey West Jr. into surrendering Thursday in a hotel where West was holed up after shooting the hotel manager in the chest. Paris was shot when West told him he would talk with him and Paris stepped in his line of fire. The reverend was shot in the head. West was later shot to death by a police sharpshooter. "Bill Paris and I had discussed the heroics of chaplains," Police Officer Edward McQueen, co-ordinator of the 28-member chaplain's corps, said Friday after Paris died. "He didn't believe in heroics, he just believed in doing his job."

Training For Officials

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A $454,000 federal grant has been awarded to Michigan to help improve personnel in public service agencies. The grant, from the United States Civil Service Commission, will fund projects including inservice training programs for local government officials and a personnel management improvement program. Programs to be funded will be recommended by the Michigan Intergovernmental Personnel Advisory Council and approved by the state Civil Service Commission.

Continue Phone Discounts

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill to continue phone discounts for telephone company employees and pensioners has been sent to the full House. The House Public Utilities Committee unanimously approved the bill this week. Public Service Commission consideration of dropping the discounts sparked the introduction of the bill by Rep. Harold Scott, D-Flint. Scott said the discounts have been given to employees for over 40 years, and the PSC would be infringing in bargaining rights of both employers and employees if it were to discontinue the discounts.

Coloma Glad Festival Committee Will Meet

COLOMA — The monthly meeting of the Coloma Gladolus festival committee, planners for the annual Gladolus festival in August, will be held Wednesday, March 10, at 8 p.m. at the Coloma township hall. Mike Dilts, festival president, said plans regarding this year's festival — extended to one week — will be discussed, including special events being scheduled. According to Dilts, the newly chosen Miss Coloma 1976, Kimberly Hampton, and her court and Miss Congeniality have been invited to attend the meeting. Area residents interested in volunteering their services to assist in the festival may attend this meeting, said Dilts.

The 44-year-old Democratic lawmaker asked the Republican executive to join him in the Bay City Run-A-Thon March 14, about two weeks before Milliken's 54th birthday. "I plan to run only five miles, which is a moderate distance for people like you and me who enjoy clean living," Crim told Milliken by letter, adding in the postscript: "no substitutes please." Crim also suggested: "We can bring (state auditor) Gerry Miller along to review the budget as we run." Milliken had not seen Crim's invitation Thursday, and aides would not speculate if he'd accept.

Paris was shot when West told him he would talk with him and Paris stepped in his line of fire. The reverend was shot in the head. West was later shot to death by a police sharpshooter. "Bill Paris and I had discussed the heroics of chaplains," Police Officer Edward McQueen, co-ordinator of the 28-member chaplain's corps, said Friday after Paris died. "He didn't believe in heroics, he just believed in doing his job."

Continue Phone Discounts

The House Public Utilities Committee unanimously approved the bill this week. Public Service Commission consideration of dropping the discounts sparked the introduction of the bill by Rep. Harold Scott, D-Flint. Scott said the discounts have been given to employees for over 40 years, and the PSC would be infringing in bargaining rights of both employers and employees if it were to discontinue the discounts.

Smuggling Patriotic For A While For A Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smuggling was both profitable and patriotic during the Revolutionary War.

But many Americans continued the practice after the war was over and the 13 colonies had won their independence, according to the National Geographic.

Alexander Hamilton, the nation's first secretary of the treasury, did something about it. He prevailed on Congress to authorize 10 armed vessels to enforce payment of customs duties on goods entering American ports.

President Washington then signed an order appointing Hopley Youton of New Hampshire "Master of a cutter in service of the U.S. for protection of revenue."

That was the beginning of the present day Coast Guard.

BIG PROMISE: Sheriff Billy G. Williams says bootlegging ruins a close second to coal in Harlan county, in Eastern Kentucky. He has promised to wipe it out during the remaining 23 months of his term. Williams says part of the problem lies with judges who refuse to hand out 30-day jail sentences to offenders. Instead they fine them $37.50, which Williams calls nothing more than a fee for bootlegging. (AP Wirephoto)

Age Proves A Factor In Driving

major form of transportation — the private car — they have come to depend heavily on driving for seeing doctors, obtaining groceries and meeting with friends," Pastalan notes.

"Nearly half of the elderly live in small towns or rural communities without public transportation. Without a car, many would be isolated and helpless."

Pastalan said most older drivers learned to drive by experience instead of formal training. Their knowledge, he said, may be incomplete or out of date.

The 10-hour refresher course covers all the points in the National Safety Council's defensive driver course, but focuses on the special needs and capabilities of the elderly, he said.

"The older driver may not realize the extent to which his processes have slowed down — or even that they have changed at all," the U-M researcher said.

Pastalan said the refresher course for older drivers will be distributed nationally by the Institute of Gerontology and the AARP. It will be administered by AARP volunteers, as well as by professional instructors in high school and community colleges, he said.

Carlos Faces Challenge

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Regionalism, economics and politics are mixing to give the new Spanish regime of King Juan Carlos its most serious challenge after three months in power. With the first government of the post-Franco era still feeling its way toward liberalization, a rash of labor unrest appears to be outstripping what the king and Spain's new leaders propose. One almost certain victim will be the government's rigid union system, set up by Gen. Francisco Franco after winning the Spanish Civil War. Syndicates Minister Rodolfo Martin Villa acknowledged the need to revamp the system, a point nearly always mentioned by demonstrators as they shout for both union and political rights.

Struggle For Survival

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The fractured Peronist movement prepared today to elect new leaders in a struggle for survival in the face of a national political crisis and a newly declared "state of economic emergency." Some political analysts say the party congress is Peronism's last chance to bring dissident factions together to avert a military takeover.

Members of the present ruling council all resigned recently because of disagreement over how best to confront the national crisis. Their replacements are expected to be chosen from among members whose loyalty to President Isabel Peron is not in question. There is little doubt that Mrs. Peron will be reaffirmed in her position as head of the movement.

Record Crops To Be Burden

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The record production of 1975 will burden producers of major food crops during 1976, according to extension economists at the North Carolina State University.

They say supplies of most crops increased in 1975, causing a drop in prices and farmer profits. Supplies are expected to remain high during 1976, resulting in a continuing price-cost squeeze.

Carlos Faces Challenge

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Regionalism, economics and politics are mixing to give the new Spanish regime of King Juan Carlos its most serious challenge after three months in power. With the first government of the post-Franco era still feeling its way toward liberalization, a rash of labor unrest appears to be outwacing what the king and Spain's new leaders propose. One almost certain victim will be the government's rigid union system, set up by Gen. Francisco Franco after winning the Spanish Civil War. Syndicates Minister Rodolfo Martin Villa acknowledged the need to revamp the system, a point nearly always mentioned by demonstrators as they shout for both union and political rights.

Struggle For Survival

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The fractured Peronist movement prepared today to elect new leaders in a struggle for survival in the face of a national political crisis and a newly declared "state of economic emergency." Some political analysts say the party congress is Peronism's last chance to bring dissident factions together to avert a military takeover.

Members of the present ruling council all resigned recently because of disagreement over how best to confront the national crisis. Their replacements are expected to be chosen from among members whose loyalty to President Isabel Peron is not in question. There is little doubt that Mrs. Peron will be reaffirmed in her position as head of the movement.

Lebanese Truce In Danger

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Reports from northernmost Lebanon said Moslem and Christian private armies were locked in fresh fighting today, imperiling a 44-day-old truce in Lebanon's civil war. Moslem Premier Rashid Karami's six-man government met with Christian President Suleiman Franjeh in an attempt to stop the flareup and prevent further garrison mutinies in the nation's 18,000-man army. Syria, which sponsored the current truce, urged the Lebanese government to "take the firmest possible measures to stop the garrison war and prevent further disintegration of the Lebanese army," officials here said.

Carey's Action Not Final

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey has signed a bill to bar the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic jet from landing at Kennedy International Airport here. But the airport is run by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey and governors of both states have veto power over decisions concerning the agency and its facilities. Therefore, New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne will have to sign a similar bill being prepared by his state's legislature to make the anti-Concorde statute effective.

Doubts Hughes Will Show

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Billionaire recluse Howard Hughes has been ordered to show up Monday in Washington, D.C., for a deposition in a case involving his Summa Corp. The federal judge who issued the order says he doubts Hughes will appear. U.S. Dist. Judge Alfonso Zirpoli on Friday directed Hughes to give a deposition to Securities and Exchange Commission lawyers in the SEC's $45 million civil lawsuit. The suit alleges Hughes, Summa, and associates violated securities laws in the purchase of the airline now called Hughes Airwest. Zirpoli said he doubts the mysterious billionaire will appear. Hughes has not been seen publicly for more than 20 years and did not obey a similar deposition order Jan. 12.

Sewer Fees Are New Buffalo Issue

NEW BUFFALO — Smoldering under the surface of what appears to be an uneventful campaign by four candidates for two city council seats here is an issue that reaches deeply into the pocketbooks of about 220 property owners.

The issue centers on the way the 220 property owners are being assessed to pay for a required sewage collection system to be installed in areas of the city now without sewers.

Some residents of the Sunset Shores subdivision, the largest single area without sewers, believe the mandatory tap-on fee of $1,565 for each connection is too much to pay for sewers and unfair to homeowners. Two of those residents are candidates for city council now quietly campaigning among their neighbors. The subdivision is located along Lake Michigan in the northwest corner of the city.

"The Sunset Shores area is getting clobbered," said one of the subdivision's candidates, William H. Alderson. He said he would try to stop the project and find a fairer way of making the assessments if elected.

The other candidate from Sunset Shores is Frank Sedlock who along with Alderson is challenging incumbent Councilman Frank Magro and Carl R. Keefer, chairman of the city parks board. The top two vote-getters in the March 8 nonpartisan election will win three-year terms on the council.

Explaining why he thinks the assessment is unfair, Alderson said, "The guy with 1,500 (lineal) feet and a possible 500 users gets charged the same as the lady with a 50-foot lot. There's got to be a more equitable way to do it."

The lot with 1,500 lineal feet Alderson said he was referring to is the Sunset Harbor marina, owned and operated by the family of Mayor Roland Oselka. Oselka is stepping down from the council this month to move to a new home outside the city.

Alderson's statement is misleading, according to William Marx, city manager. The marina will be required to pay for at least four connections to the sewer system, and each will cost $1,555, Marx said.

"Actually, the assessment should be made by lineal foot," argued Alderson. He also said it was unfair to exclude the owners of vacant lots from paying the tap-on fee until such time as they may need sewers.

Sedlock, the subdivision's other candidate, agreed with Alderson's view that the assessment is unfair, but Sedlock said he would not commit himself to trying to stop the project.

Sedlock said he was unhappy with the way the city council adopted the assessment plan.

"The whole thing was jammed down everybody's throat. I am against the fact that there was no information put out to the general public pertaining to this issue," Sedlock said. "It seems that no one ever asks the citizens if this is what they want."

Magro, the incumbent who voted for the plan when it was approved in December, said he was surprised to learn of the surfacing controversy because there had been few complaints at the many meetings last year when the council was planning the project.

"They had their say. Nobody came to any of our meetings. There's never been anything done behind closed doors," he said.

He said at least six of the meetings were advertised in a local newspaper. "Truthfully, I think our biggest show was one person," he said.

Magro's own home at 529 Buffalo street is now without sewers and he said he paid the tap-on fee before Jan. 1 when the city was charging $1,325 as a way of encouraging early payments.

Keefer has not taken a public stand on the issue either way. His home at 127 South Harrison street has sewer service.

Alderson, a newcomer to city politics, said he was hoping the issue did not get overly publicized before the election.

"If we really get hot on the sewer thing, the other side of town is going to come out in droves against us. A low profile is our best course," he said.

The sewage collection construction project in the city is only a small part of the $29 million Galien River Sanitary Sewer district project now getting underway. The project calls for the construction of a new sewage treatment plant to serve the city and the townships of New Buffalo and Chikamingas as well as collector systems for areas without sewer lines.

Installation of the sewage collection system in the city is estimated to cost about $750,000, according to Marx. State and federal grants will provide all but $325,000 of that amount, he said.

The local assessments will provide the funds for the city's share of the project cost, he said.

Construction on the sewer lines is expected to begin in June, he said.

Alderson, 54, a New Buffalo resident since 1969, is an insurance agent for the National Home Assurance company, Valley Forge, Penna., and lives at 1150 Shore drive. He and his wife, Shirley, have four children.

Keefer, 34, is a life long New Buffalo resident and is a lineman for Northern Indiana Public Service company in Michigan City.

He and his wife, Bonnie, have two children.

Magro, 53, is seeking his second term. He owns a shoe store in Michigan City, and he and his wife, Laura, have two sons.

Sedlock, 50, has lived in New Buffalo for one year but has been a summer resident for the past four. A sales manager consultant for the Benton Harbor Tent and Awning company, Sedlock and his wife, Emily, live at 628 Lake drive and have one son.

Ballots will be cast at city hall on the corner of Smith street and US-12 from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. All registered voters living within the city limits may vote.

Eau Claire Will Choose Village Clerk

EAU CLAIRE — Voters will choose a village clerk in a two-way race between the Democratic incumbent and a Republican challenger in the March 8 village elections here. Candidates for all other village offices are uncontested on the ballot.

In the race for clerk, incumbent James H. Newman, 44, a Democrat, is being challenged for the two-year post by Mrs. Ruth L. Sharpe, 67, a Republican.

Newman was appointed clerk in October, 1974, replacing Mrs. Joyce Harris. He is a machinist for Clark Equipment company, and he and his wife, Nancy, live at box 147, Fifth Street. They have three children.

Mrs. Sharpe is a retired school teacher. She and her husband, George, live at 7422 Maple street, and the couple has two children.

MRS. RUTH L. SHARPE
Challenger

Running for the two-year village president post is J. Caswell Crowder, 62, a trustee for the past 13 years. Crowder, 6663 East Berrien street, defeated the incumbent village president, Marvin LaVanway, in the Democratic primary race Feb. 16.

Three candidates are running unopposed for four-year trustee seats on the village council.

Incumbent Democrats Billy J. Durham, 45, East Berrien street, and Frank T. James, 33, box 233, Linn street, are seeking a return to the council and Republican Nelson J. Nagle, 35, box 371 Porter drive, is seeking his first term.

Incumbent Democrat Mrs. Margaret (Peggy) LaVanway, 48, box 143 Keigley street, is running unopposed for the two-year treasurer's position.

Another incumbent Democrat, Kenneth L. Karn, 36, Keigley street, is unopposed for the two-year assessor's post.

Ballots will be cast at the village hall, 9625 Main street, from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. All registered voters living within the village limits may vote, according to Mrs. Carol Rumbaugh, deputy clerk.

Only a picture of Mrs. Sharpe is being used with this article because Newman declined to pose for, nor would he furnish, a photograph of himself.

Berrien GOP Will Hear Candidates

The Berrien county Republican committee in 1976 is replacing its traditional Lincoln day dinner with a Bicentennial kickoff Monday, March 22, at Ramada Inn, south of Benton Harbor.

Mrs. John (Betsy) Hammond said candidates for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate have been invited. Entertainment will be several types of American music by groups from Lake Michigan college and Niles, plus a Bicentennial salute by the St. Joseph high school stage band directed by Robert Brown.

Mrs. Hammond said tickets at $8 each can be obtained from Robert U. McDonald, ticket chairman, from county elected Republican officials and county commissioners, or from county GOP headquarters, 203 Inter-City bank building, Benton Harbor. The event starts at 6 p.m.

One Father Jailed, Another Warned

Two men were sentenced Friday by the same Berrien Circuit court judge for falling behind in their child support payments, with one father owing $230 and the other $8,180.

The dad with the $230 arrearage got 60 days in jail, while the father owing $8,180 was given 90 days to find work and avoid jail.

Edward Pastrick, special investigator for the Berrien friend of the court's office, said Judge William S. White imposed the jail sentence on John R. Shanks, of 308 South Mechanic street, Berrien Springs, after finding him in contempt of court for $230 arrears for two children not on ADC, and placed him on one year probation.

Pastrick noted Shanks has not made a support payment since the order was entered in June, 1975.

Threatened with six months in jail if he doesn't find employment within 30 days was Richard L. Carpenter of Baldwin. White told him in contempt and placed him on two years probation for $8,180 arrears for five children on ADC, and ordered him to pay $55 weekly child support plus $10 weekly on the arrearage. Pastrick said Carpenter has made only 14 support payments in five years.

White said the difference in sentences was because "Shanks was in a position to pay but wouldn't," while Carpenter is out of work but has been seeking employment. The judge told Shanks he can be released if he pays a substantial amount on the arrearage.

Two Lakers' Coaches Cut By Glass

WATERVLIET — Two Lake Michigan Catholic coaches were struck by glass when the front window of their bus was shattered by an unknown object as the basketball team was returning home from a tournament game here Thursday night.

Assistant Coach Harold Wheeler sustained minor facial cuts and head Coach Al Nixon apparently received glass flakes in the eyes which caused irritation. A hospital examination showed no apparent damage, Nixon said.

Watervliet police said people aboard the bus reported the object came from a car described as an early 1970 model Maverick, light green, with a dent on the right rear side. The car allegedly had been harassing the team bus in the parking lot earlier at Watervliet high school.

Nixon said the object shattered the windshield on the passenger's side but did not come into the bus. The incident occurred just north of the I-94 interchange.

The Lakers defeated Bangor Thursday and return tonight to play Decatur for the district championship.

Joseph Seiler, 53, in the position in a 4 to 1 vote. The term will run through 1979.

Citing "strictly personal reasons" in his letter of resignation, Lineberry in a statement to the press said that he was stepping down because he could no longer function in a government "of the city manager, for the city manager and by the city manager." He refused to elaborate further.

Lineberry, the ranking councilman with nine years experience, has been a frequent critic of City Manager Albert Pierce.

He was the only member of a coalition of candidates to win election last November on the platform of improving communication between the city council and city employees via the city manager.

Lineberry, 57, of 529 Humphrey street, is the second councilman to quit in the midst of a term in the last two years. William Andrus resigned in the fall of 1974, citing the council's inability to work as a team.

Mayor Richard Lewis said Lineberry's resignation was presented to him yesterday afternoon. The resignation was accepted "with regret" in a unanimous vote of the five members present. Second ward Alderman Norvan Books and Lineberry were absent.

Lineberry, production control manager at Adams Electronics in Bangor, was the council's representative to the board of public utilities. He served as mayor pro tem for six years until this January.

Seiler was elected in a secret ballot from two candidates presented by Mayor Lewis. The other candidate was Neville Ferguson, an unsuccessful opponent against Lineberry in last fall's election.

Seiler, of 327 Cherry street, is a lifelong resident of South Haven. He has served on the planning commission approximately 18 years and has held appointments on the zoning board of appeals and redevelopment commission. He has never sought an elective office.

He is owner of Seiler Models of South Haven, a firm that constructs architectural models.

He and his wife Alice have two children, Mark and Joan. Mrs. Seiler is principal at Hartman elementary school, South Haven.

Seiler will be sworn into office at the March 15 city council meeting, according to Clerk Rita Verdonk.

Twenty Mills Rides On Buchanan Ballot

BUCHANAN — School district voters go to the polls here Monday to vote on a 20-mill property tax levy proposed by the school board to finance school operations for the 1976-77 school year.

The 20-mill package includes 17 mills that expired with the last tax collections and an additional three mills.

School officials have said the extra three mills is needed to restore programs cut earlier this year when state aid was cut and to offset an expected decrease in the school district's tax base.

The district expects to lose nearly $17 million from its $77,250,881 tax base because of a change in state laws on taxing business inventories.

Buchanan Supt. Richard Dougherty said that because of the tax base loss, even if the extra three mills are approved, the district would receive about $100,000 less in local taxes in the coming year than it expects to collect from local taxes for this school year.

If approved, the district's tax levy would be increased from this year's 27.991 mills (17 for operating, 8.378 county allocated and 2.615 debt retirement) to 30.991 mills.

The new higher levy would help finance the district's 1976-77 budget of $3.1 million, about $250,000 higher than the 1975-76 budget.

Family Planners Hit 72 Per Cent

Planned Parenthood association of southwestern Michigan campaign leaders learned at their second report meeting that 72 per cent of their campaign goal of $58,000 has been pledged.

Mrs. James Skinner, chairman of this year's fund raising campaign, reports that $42,095 has been raised to date by the three soliciting and reporting sections of the campaign: Special Gifts section, with a goal of $51,000, has raised $37,460 or 73 per cent; Individual Subscribers section, with a goal of $4,500, has raised $3,570 or 79 per cent; and General Membership section, with a goal of $1,500, has raised $460 or 32 per cent. Miscellaneous contributions to date total $656.

A final report meeting has been set for March 17 at 4 p.m. at the Planned Parenthood office in Benton Harbor.

Berrien Residents Offered Oven Tests

The Berrien county health department has purchased a microwave oven tester for detection of any radiation leaks from door seals of the ovens, according to Jerome A. Erickson, acting director of the department. Erickson said the radiation is hazardous to people who have implanted pacemakers. Any resident of Berrien county who wants to have an oven tested, may call the environmental health division of the department, 788 E. Piquette street, Benton Harbor, 326-7121, to arrange an appointment for testing.

Woman Ordered To Pay $1,606

A Benton Harbor woman was sentenced to make restitution of $1,606 for welfare fraud under $500 by Berrien Fifth District Court Judge John T. Hammond.

Jessie M. Wilson, 38, of 673 Territorial, was also sentenced yesterday to fine and costs of $100 and two years probation.

She was charged with receiving $1,606 in ADC overpayments between September of 1973 and May of 1975. While receiving ADC for one child she failed to report income from a job. A charge of fraud over $500 was dismissed when she pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor.

Baroda Township Hikes Assessments

BARODA — Property assessments in Baroda township for 1976 have been raised an average of 20 per cent, in order to comply with the new state law requiring all assessments to equal 50 per cent of the true market value of the property. Orland Mead, township supervisor, said due to the increase in assessments, the township's equalization factor, which was 1.1881 in 1975, should move nearer to 1.00. The township board of review will meet Tuesday, March 9, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Wednesday, March 10, from 1 to 8 p.m.

Berrien GOP Will Hear Candidates

The Berrien county Republican committee in 1976 is replacing its traditional Lincoln day dinner with a Bicentennial kickoff Monday, March 22, at Ramada Inn, south of Benton Harbor.

Mrs. John (Betsy) Hammond said candidates for the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate have been invited. Entertainment will be several types of American music by groups from Lake Michigan college and Niles, plus a Bicentennial salute by the St. Joseph high school stage band directed by Robert Brown.

Mrs. Hammond said tickets at $8 each can be obtained from Robert U. McDowell, ticket chairman, from county elected Republican officials and county commissioners, or from county GOP headquarters, 203 Inter-City bank building, Benton Harbor. The event starts at 6 p.m.

One Father Jailed, Another Warned

Two men were sentenced Friday by the same Berrien Circuit court judge for falling behind in their child support payments, with one father owing $230 and the other $8,180.

The dad with the $230 arrearage got 60 days in jail, while the father owing $8,180 was given 30 days to find work and avoid jail.

Edward Pastrick, special investigator for the Berrien friend of the court's office, said Judge William S. White imposed the jail sentence on John R. Shanks, of 308 South Mechanic street, Berrien Springs, after finding him in contempt of court for $230 arrearage for two children not on ADC, and placed him on one year probation.

Pastrick noted Shanks has not made a support payment since the order was entered in June, 1975.

Threatened with six months in jail if he doesn't find employment within 30 days was Richard L. Carpenter of Baldwin. White held him in contempt and placed him on two years probation for $8,180 arrears for five children on ADC, and ordered him to pay $55 weekly child support plus $10 weekly on the arrearage.

Pastrick said Carpenter has made only 14 support payments in five years.

White said the difference in sentences was because "Shanks was in a position to pay but wouldn't," while Carpenter is out of work but has been seeking employment. The judge told Shanks he can be released if he pays a substantial amount on the arrearage.

Critic Of City Manager Quits South Haven Council

Two Lakers' Coaches Cut By Glass

WATERVLIET — Two Lake Michigan Catholic coaches were struck by glass when the front window of their bus was shattered by an unknown object as the basketball team was returning home from a tournament game here Thursday night.

Assistant Coach Harold Wheeler sustained minor facial cuts and head Coach Al Nixon apparently received glass flakes in the eyes which caused irritation. A hospital examination showed no apparent damage, Nixon said.

Watervliet police said people aboard the bus reported the object came from a car described as an early 1970 model Maverick, light green, with a dent on the right rear side. The car allegedly had been harassing the team bus in the parking lot earlier at Watervliet high school.

Nixon said the object shattered the windshield on the passenger's side but did not come into the bus. The incident occurred just north of the I-94 interchange.

The Lakers defeated Bangor Thursday and return tonight to play Decatur for the district championship.

Joseph Seiler, 53, to the position in a 4 to 1 vote. The term will run through 1979.

Citing "strictly personal reasons" in his letter of resignation, Lineberry in a statement to the press said that he was stepping down because he could no longer function in a government "of the city manager, and by the city manager."

He refused to elaborate further.

Lineberry, the ranking councilman with nine years experience, has been a frequent critic of City Manager Albert Pierce.

He was the only member of a coalition of candidates to win election last November on the platform of improving communication between the city council and city employees via the city manager.

Lineberry, 57, of 529 Humphrey street, is the second councilman to quit in the midst of a term in the last two years. William Anderson resigned in the fall of 1974, citing the council's inability to work as a team.

Mayor Richard Lewis said Lineberry's resignation was presented to him yesterday afternoon. The resignation was accepted "with regret" in a unanimous vote of the five members present. Second ward Alderman Norvan Books and Lineberry were absent.

Lineberry, production control manager at Adams Electronics in Bangor, was the council's representative to the board of public utilities. He served as mayor pro tem for six years until this January.

Seiler was elected in a secret ballot from two candidates presented by Mayor Lewis. The other candidate was Neville Ferguson, an unsuccessful opponent against Lineberry in last fall's election.

Seiler, of 327 Cherry street, is a lifelong resident of South Haven. He has served on the planning commission approximately 18 years and has held appointments on the zoning board of appeals and redevelopment commission. He has never sought an elective office.

He is owner of Seiler Models of South Haven, a firm that constructs architectural models.

He and his wife Alice have two children, Mark and Joan. Mrs. Seiler is principal at Hartman elementary school, South Haven.

Seiler will be sworn into office at the March 15 city council meeting, according to Clerk Rita Verdonk.

Twenty Mills Rides On Buchanan Ballot

BUCHANAN — School district voters go to the polls here Monday to vote on a 20-mill property tax levy proposed by the school board to finance school operations for the 1976-77 school year.

The 20-mill package includes 17 mills that expired with the last tax collections and an additional three mills.

School officials have said the extra three mills is needed to restore programs cut earlier this year when state aid was cut and to offset an expected decrease in the school district's tax base. The district expects to lose nearly $17 million from its $77,250,681 tax base because of a change in state laws on taxing business inventories.

Buchanan Supt. Richard Dougherty said that because of the tax base loss, even if the extra three mills are approved, the district would receive about $100,000 less in local taxes in the coming year than it expects to collect from local taxes for this school year.

If approved, the district's tax levy would be increased from this year's 27.991 mills (17 for operating, 8.376 county allocated and 2.615 debt retirement) to 30.991 mills.

The new higher levy would help finance the district's 1976-77 budget of $3.1 million, about $250,000 higher than the 1975-76 budget.

Family Planners Hit 72 Per Cent

Planned Parenthood association of southwestern Michigan campaign leaders learned at their second report meeting that 72 per cent of their campaign goal of $58,000 has been pledged.

Mrs. James Skinner, chairman of this year's fund raising campaign, reports that $42,095 has been raised to date by the three soliciting and reporting sections of the campaign: Special Gifts section, with a goal of $51,000, has raised $37,460 or 73 per cent; Individual Subscribers section, with a goal of $4,500, has raised $3,570 or 79 per cent; and General Membership section, with a goal of $1,500, has raised $480 or 32 per cent. Miscellaneous contributions to date total $585.

A final report meeting has been set for March 17 at 4 p.m. at the Planned Parenthood office in Benton Harbor.

Berrien Residents Offered Oven Tests

The Berrien county health department has purchased a microwave oven tester for detection of any radiation leaks from door seals of the ovens, according to Jerome A. Erickson, acting director of the department. Erickson said the radiation is hazardous to people who have implanted pacemakers. Any resident of Berrien county who wants to have an oven tested may call the environmental health division of the department, 769 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor, 926-7121, to arrange an appointment for testing.

Woman Ordered To Pay $1,606

A Benton Harbor woman was sentenced to make restitution of $1,606 for welfare fraud under $500 by Berrien Fifth District Court Judge John T. Hammond.

Jessie M. Wilson, 38, of 673 Territorial, was also sentenced yesterday to fine and costs of $100 and two years probation.

She was charged with receiving $1,606 in ADC overpayments between September of 1973 and May of 1975. While receiving ADC for one child she failed to report income from a job. A charge of fraud over $500 was dismissed when she pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor.

Baroda Township Hikes Assessments

BARODA — Property assessments in Baroda township for 1976 have been raised an average of 20 per cent, in order to comply with the new state law requiring all assessments to equal 50 per cent of the true market value of the property. Orland Mead, township supervisor, said due to the increase in assessments, the township's equalization factor, which was 1.1881 in 1975, should move nearer to 1.00. The township board of review will meet Tuesday, March 9, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Wednesday, March 10, from 1 to 9 p.m.

Vandalism Latest Incident In Marshall-MSU Feud

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A key was mysteriously broken in a lock and the panic bar was unscrewed from a metal door as Los Angeles Dodger Mike Marshall and friends continued practice in the Michigan State University intramural building Friday.

Apparently no witnesses saw the vandalism. The 33-year-old Cy Young Award winner later denied he knew anything about the broken lock and the missing $100 panic bar — the horizontal bar used to push open a door.

"They fabricated that incident. It's just another attempt to get Mike Marshall," Marshall said of MSU officials.

But as he denied knowledge of the damage in the latest incident of his feud with MSU, he repeated one of his favorite slogans: "Only a demented person would lock up a recreational facility. I'll cut the chain off any recreational facility, playground, anything, when I don't see a reason for locks."

MSU officials said they are looking into the incident, which culminated two hours of pitching and hitting practice by Marshall in the intramural building. School officials said they didn't try to eject Marshall because his friends reserved the space for him in a proper manner.

Although Marshall used to have an automatically reserved practice time, officials said they have required him to reserve space a day ahead because of overcrowding and complaints by other students that he interferes with their tennis.

Marshall, an MSU graduate student working on a doctorate in physiology, charged Friday that MSU possesses no written complaints against him.

"It's slander and rumor-mongering (by school officials) and hearsay," Marshall snapped.

But Harris F. Beeman, intramural director, showed reporters a letter purportedly written by a woman tennis player Feb. 22. The letter said Marshall and his friends pulled the hitting-pitching net over by the tennis courts without explanation, infringing on tennis games.

When a male tennis player complained, the letter related, Marshall "had the man backed against the batting cage and was standing nose-to-nose, yelling, 'You touch that net and you touch me!'"

"The man," the letter continued, "was petrified and it was obvious to me that Marshall was trying to start a fight. When he saw he wasn't going to get one, he simply walked away and went about his business."

Beeman said, "You can't have one student terrorizing or abusing other students. He has a right to question my regulations and judgment but he can't do this to other students. We had 85,000 students in the building fall term and 87,000 the first month of winter term."

Marshall was arrested Feb. 24 for dragging the long hitting-pitching net out and interfering with nearby tennis-playing students who reserved the space. He was arrested again last Sunday for bringing an NBC sports crew into the building for practice without a reservation, school officials said.

Last Wednesday, he used a hacksaw to break a chain around the pitching net, 10 minutes before he would have been allowed to use the net legitimately. A police report on the incident is being processed, the Ingham County prosecutor's office said.

Also, a bit of collusion appeared to surface Friday between Marshall and two women tennis players who were using the court next to the batting net without complaining.

Marshall implied the women were strangers who simply proved "tennis and baseball can exist together.... They are students who agreed to share this area, in contrast to the other people who couldn't share and had to have the building to themselves."

However, reliable sources disclosed one of the women was not an unknown student but a friend of Marshall's wife, Nancy, and Mrs. Marshall asked her to reserve formally the area a day early as a favor.

Marshall also has said he will not play pro ball until a disagreement is resolved over the design of the intramural arena. He charged Beeman is unreasonable in refusing to redesign the arena to add another tennis court and accommodate more students.

But Beeman said Friday Marshall's favorite design would reduce the base court from 21 feet to 12 feet. Furthermore, storage of the baseball net would chop the base court to six feet, Beeman said.

Marshall's plan also would leave only four feet between the courts, Beeman charged.

Sends Catfish Illegal Contract

Finley Strikes Again

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Leave it to Charles O. Finley to get people's minds off the grim dispute between owners and players that has delayed the start of spring training.

Finley, the often controversial owner of the Oakland A's, sought to line up additional pitching depth behind Vida Blue and Ken Holtzman Friday by sending a contract to Catfish Hunter, a perennial 20-game winner.

It was not the same contract. Finley breached some 15 months ago when Hunter pitched in the kelly green, Fort Knox gold and wedding gown white attire of the A's. Nor was it a legal contract since Hunter, last winter's celebrated free agent, now pitches in the fiery of the New York Yankees, one of Finley's old sparring mates.

The Finley-Yankee feud, of course, goes back more than a decade ago to the A's Kansas City days when Charlie O. — Burned a bus to signify an end to the series of one-sided deals that saw many of the A's top players, including Roger Maris, shuffling off to help New York win another pennant in return for the lame and the hall, if not the blind.

— Built what he called a "half-pennant porch" in the KC ballpark with the same dimensions as Yankee Stadium's 290-foot short porch in right field.

Hunter turned Finley's contract over to his lawyer, who informed Yankee President Gabe Paul, who ran screaming to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Lee MacPhail shouting such words as "tampering."

If Paul was angered, how about Hunter? Finley's offer was for a mere $100,000, which amounts to little more than pin money for the Catfish, who is in the second year of a five-year Yankee pact worth $3.25 million.

If Finley wants to give his money away, he might try Tom Seaver, who reportedly is seeking a three-year $1 million deal from the New York Mets that would make him the highest paid ballplayer of all time.

"That's in the ballpark," Seaver said of the million-dollar figure. "That's about it. It's not too high an estimate. But I am waiting to see what happens in the labor negotiations. I won't sign until an agreement is reached on the reserve clause."

While the owner-player stalemate continued, third baseman Pete Rose, winner of the Hickok Bell as 1975's Pro Athlete of the Year, signed his 1976 contract with the world champion Cincinnati Reds.

Rose received a healthy boost but said he signed for less than $200,000, which leaves Johnny Bench the highest-paid member of the Reds.

"The only raise I ever had that was any bigger was when I was Most Valuable Player (1973)," Rose said. "I know what I am and what I can be. In football, it's the guy who throws the touchdown pass that makes the big money and in baseball it's always been the guy who hits the home runs."

Gap Remains Wide In Baseball Talks

No Future Meetings Slated

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring training camps remained shut tight today and indications were they would stay that way for awhile after negotiations between the Major League Players Association and baseball owners broke off with no future meetings scheduled.

Friday's meeting was the third this week between the two sides and the shortest, lasting only one hour. Afterwards, Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' union, reported that no progress had been made and announced a Saturday press conference, "to set forth some facts."

Asked if the conference would be positive or negative, Miller snapped, "negative."

Miller refused any other comment on Friday's session but indicated that the gap between the players and management remained wide after the 25th meeting between the two sides.

Earlier in the week there had been hopeful signs that the representatives of players and owners might be getting closer to an agreement. They met for five hours on Monday in Fort Lauderdale and seemed to be making progress. But the freeze set in Wednesday in Miami when talks broke off after only 2½ hours. And Friday's session was even shorter, but not sweeter.

Afterwards, the owners acknowledged the breakdown of negotiations. "No date has been set for the next meeting but both sides will remain in contact by telephone over the weekend," a management spokesman said.

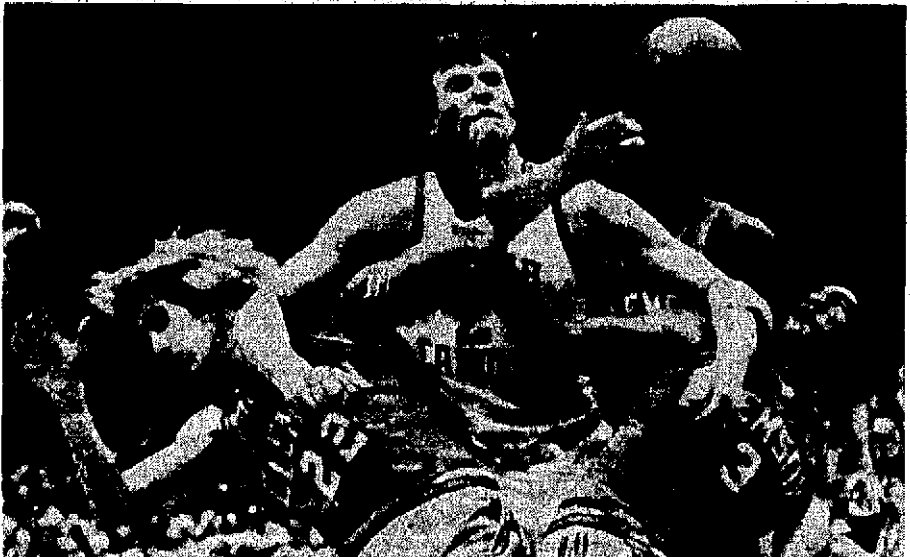

"The problem over the applicability of current contracts remains the focal point of the discussions," the owners said. "The clubs contend that the (Players) Association has the obligation to bargain in good faith on the reconstruction of a workable reserve system."

But Miller denied that "the applicability of current contracts" had been discussed Friday. Apparently, that phrase refers to the Player Relations Committee's demand that any agreement reached on the reserve clause issue apply to contracts already in force.

Miller has said that current contracts cannot be changed by whatever new agreements are reached in these negotiations. However, he has said he could secure waivers of reserve rights from most of the players, provided a reasonable alternative could be presented to them.

There is considerable speculation that the talks have broken down while both sides await a Circuit Court's ruling on the owners' appeal of the Andy Messersmith-Dave McNally free agent decision. Arbitrator Peter Seitz awarded free agent status to the two pitchers last December based on his interpretation of the current reserve rule. That decision, in which a player who does not sign a contract is free after one year, was upheld by a federal judge and is under appeal in a circuit court.

Virginia In ACC Finals Maryland Latest Victim Of Cavaliers

From The Associated Press
And now for the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs: North Carolina vs. Virginia.

Virginia?

"In the last half of the season, we have been one of the best — if not the best, team in the ACC," says Coach Terry Holland.

North Carolina, the regular-season champion, may dispute that statement but the Cavaliers have certainly looked as good as Holland's word in the unpredictable ACC playoffs.

The Cavaliers, who finished sixth in the seven-team league during the season, beat their second nationally-ranked team in two nights with a 79-65 whipping of No. 8 Maryland. They trimmed No. 17 North Carolina State 75-63 in Thursday's opening round.

"We'll have to play the same kind of basketball against North Carolina," Holland said. "In fact we have to be even better than we were the last two nights."

The fourth-ranked Tar Heels advanced to tonight's championship round with an 82-74 victory over Clemson.

"We were pleased to have won over a Clemson team that I think is very aggressively defensive," noted North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, whose players were cheered by the crowd of 19,000 in Landover, Md., for slowing down play.

The Tar Heels went to their patented, four-corned offense while holding an 11-point lead with six minutes to play.

"Teams would rather have us keep shooting," Smith said, defending his offensive intentions. "If you were playing football and leading by three or four touchdowns in the fourth quarter, they would rather see you pass on every play. All we are doing is staying on the ground."

The ACC was one of many tournaments underway Friday night to determine berths and pairings for the NCAA playoffs which start later this month.

The newest NCAA entry was decided in the Ohio Valley Conference, where Western Kentucky defeated Morehead 65-60 and advanced to the Midwest Regionals in Dayton, Ohio. The Hilltoppers will play second-ranked Marquette in a first-round game on March 13.

Memphis State, trimmed Louisville 87-78 and 13th-ranked Cincinnati held off Georgia Tech 71-60 to advance to tonight's finals of the Metro-Six Tournament; Texas Tech, defeated Arkansas 70-63 and moved into the finals of the Southwest Conference playoffs against regular-season champion Texas A&M; Weber State nudged Northern Arizona 63-58 and

Boise State defeated Idaho State 83-61 to advance to the finals of the Big Sky Conference playoffs, and Temple beat St. Joseph's 80-72 and Hofstra turned back Lafayette 77-72 in the semifinals of the East Coast Conference.

George Washington and Georgetown will play for an NCAA berth in the ECAC's Southern Regionals. George Washington outscored West Virginia 88-87 and Georgetown walloped Villanova 72-38 to move into tonight's finals.

Marquette, selected a few days ago for an at-large berth to the NCAAs, clobbered Cincinnati Xavier 74-49 Friday night.

The No. 2-ranked Worriors reeled off their 20th consecutive victory with an awesome flurry, outscoring the outmanned Musketeers 20-1 in the last seven minutes to gain the win.

Lloyd Walton led a balanced scoring attack with 16 points.

Kalamazoo Deadlocked

From Associated Press
Kalamazoo overcame a 3-0 deficit with four straight goals, but Dayton's Bill Riley scored with less than 1½ minutes left Friday night to give the Gerns a 4-4 International Hockey League tie with the Wings.

Riley's score, at 18:31 of the third period, came just 18 seconds after Mike Harazny had put the Wings ahead 4-3.

There were 96 minutes in penalties, with Dayton getting 64 minutes and losing Jack Patterson and Gordon Lane with ejections. Patterson was the third man in on a fight and Lane was ousted for too vigorously disputing an official's penalty call.

Paul Nicholson, Steve Self and Mike Powers had given Dayton the 3-0 lead before Terry Ryan, Ken Mann, Mike Wong and Harazny scored for Kalamazoo. Ryan's score came on a power play.

Hamill Eyes World Title

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Olympic champion Dorothy Hamill, bent on returning the ladies figure skating world champion title to the United States after eight years in other hands, faced arch-rival Dianne De Leeuw today with ice show talent scouts waiting in the wings.

Miss Hamill, 19, from Riverside, Conn., beat back her usual stage jitters to win the short program Friday and take the over-all lead ahead of Miss De Leeuw, a California competitor for the Netherlands. Today's decisive final free skating counts for the final 50 per cent of the competition.

East Germany's 1974 world champion Christine Errath was second to Miss Hamill in the short program and remained a potentially dangerous outsider if the American and Dutch girls fail. Linda Fratianne of Los Angeles was sixth over-all and Wendy Burge of Garden Grove, Calif., was eighth.

Meanwhile in Friday's ice dancing finals, the American team of Colleen O'Connor and Jim Mills repeated their Olympic performance and earned a bronze medal.

The Colorado Springs, Colo., couple finished behind two Soviet teams. Ludmilla Pukhotinva and Alexander Gorshkov and Irina Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov. The order of finish was the same as in the Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, where ice dancing was contested for the first time.

The gold medalists led all the way in establishing their superiority, and in the final free dance they received almost unheard of perfect 6.0 marks from seven of the nine judges for their fourth world title.

A crowd of 12,000 in the Scandinavium Arena witnessed the elegant Moscow couple's nearly perfect performance. They were voted No. 1 by all nine judges for 9.0 ordinals and 211.52 points.

Their compatriots had 19 ordinals and 205.44 points while Miss O'Connor and Mills had 28 ordinals and 202.92 points.

Miss Hamill's Coach Carlo Fassi exuded confidence that she would come through again today.

A world and Olympic title could be worth millions of dollars and Miss Hamill as well as Miss De Leeuw, from Paramount, Calif., have indicated they will end their competitive careers here and may turn to ice shows.

—Built what he called a "half-pennant porch" in the KC ballpark with the same dimensions as Yankee Stadium's 296-foot short porch in right field.

Hunter turned Finley's contract over to his lawyer, who informed Yankee President Gabe Paul, who ran screaming to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Lee MacPhail shouting such words as "tampering."

If Paul was angered, how about Hunter? Finley's offer was for a mere $100,000, which amounts to little more than pin money for the Catfish, who is in the second year of a five-year Yankee pact worth $3.25 million.

If Finley wants to give his money away, he might try Tom Seaver, who reportedly is seeking a three-year $1 million deal from the New York Mets that would make him the highest paid ballplayer of all time.

"That's in the ballpark," Seaver said of the million-dollar figure. "That's about it. It's not too high an estimate. But I am waiting to see what happens in the labor negotiations. I won't sign until an agreement is reached on the reserve clause."

While the owner-player stalemate continued, third baseman Pete Rose, winner of the Hickok Belt as 1975's Pro Athlete of the Year, signed his 1976 contract with the world champion Cincinnati Reds.

Rose received a healthy boost but said he signed for less than $200,000, which leaves Johnny Bench the highest-paid member of the Reds.

"The only raise I ever had that was any bigger was when I was Most Valuable Player (1973)," Rose said. "I know what I am and what I can be. In football, it's the guy who throws the touchdown pass that makes the big money and in baseball it's always been the guy who hits the home runs."

Miller has said that current contracts cannot be changed by whatever new agreements are reached in these negotiations. However, he has said he could secure waivers of reserve rights from most of the players, provided a reasonable alternative could be presented to them.

There is considerable speculation that the talks have broken down while both sides await a Circuit Court's ruling on the owners' appeal of the Andy Messersmith-Dave McNally free agent decision. Arbitrator Peter Seitz awarded free agent status to the two pitchers last December based on his interpretation of the current reserve rule. That decision, in which a player who does not sign a contract is free after one year, was upheld by a federal judge and is under appeal in a circuit court.

Kalamazoo Deadlocked

From Associated Press

Kalamazoo overcame a 3-0 deficit with four straight goals, but Dayton's Bill Riley scored with less than 1½ minutes left Friday night to give the Gems a 4-4 International Hockey League tie with the Wings.

Riley's score, at 18:31 of the third period, came just 19 seconds after Mike Harazny had put the Wings ahead 4-3.

There were 96 minutes in penalties, with Dayton getting 64 minutes and losing Jack Patterson and Gordon Lane with ejections. Patterson was the third man in on a fight and Lane was ousted for too vigorously disputing an official's penalty call.

Paul Nicholson, Steve Self and Mike Powers had given Dayton the 3-0 lead before Terry Ryan, Ken Mann, Mike Wong and Harazny scored for Kalamazoo. Ryan's score came on a power-play.

Gap Remains Wide In Baseball Talks

No Future Meetings Slated

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring training camps remained shut tight today and indications were they would stay that way for awhile after negotiations between the Major League Players Association and baseball owners broke off with no future meetings scheduled.

Friday's meeting was the third this week between the two sides and the shortest, lasting only one hour. Afterwards, Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' union, reported that no progress had been made and announced a Saturday press conference, "to set forth some facts."

Asked if the conference would be positive or negative, Miller snapped, "negative."

Miller refused any other comment on Friday's session but indicated that the gap between the players and management remained wide after the 25th meeting between the two sides.

Earlier in the week there had been hopeful signs that the representatives of players and owners might be getting closer to an agreement. They met for five hours on Monday in Fort Lauderdale and seemed to be making progress. But the freeze set in Wednesday in Miami when talks broke off after only 2½ hours. And Friday's session was even shorter, but not sweeter.

Afterwards, the owners acknowledged the breakdown of negotiations. "No date has been set for the next meeting but both sides will remain in contact by telephone over the weekend," a management spokesman said.

"The problem over the applicability of current contracts remains the focal point of the discussions," the owners said. "The clubs contend that the (Players) Association has the obligation to bargain in good faith on the reconstruction of a workable reserve system."

But Miller denied that "the applicability of current contracts" had been discussed Friday. Apparently, that phrase refers to the Player Relations Committee's demand that any agreement reached on the reserve clause issue apply to contracts already in force.

Miller has said that current contracts cannot be changed by whatever new agreements are reached in these negotiations. However, he has said he could secure waivers of reserve rights from most of the players, provided a reasonable alternative could be presented to them.

There is considerable speculation that the talks have broken down while both sides await a Circuit Court's ruling on the owners' appeal of the Andy Messersmith-Dave McNally free agent decision. Virginia In ACC Finals Maryland Latest Victim Of Cavaliers

From The Associated Press

And now for the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs: North Carolina vs. Virginia.

Virginia? "In the last half of the season, we have been one of the best — if not the best, team in the ACC," says Coach Terry Holland.

North Carolina, the regular-season champion, may dispute that statement but the Cavaliers have certainly looked as good as Holland's word in the unpredictable ACC playoffs.

The Cavaliers, who finished sixth in the seven-team league during the season, beat their second nationally-ranked team in two nights with a 73-65 whipping of No. 9 Maryland. They trimmed No. 17 North Carolina State 75-63 in Thursday's opening round.

"We'll have to play the same kind of basketball against North Carolina," Holland said. "In fact we have to be even better than we were the last two nights."

The fourth-ranked Tar Heels advanced to tonight's championship round with an 82-74 victory over Clemson.

"We were pleased to have won over a Clemson team that I think is very aggressive defensively," noted North Carolina Coach Dean Smith, whose players were cheered by the crowd of 19,600 in Landover, Md., for slowing down play.

The Tar Heels went to their patented, four-corner offense while holding an 11-point lead with six minutes to play.

"Teams would rather have us keep shooting," Smith said, defending his offensive intentions. "If you were playing football and leading by three or four touchdowns in the fourth quarter, they would rather see you pass on every play. All we

The ACC was one of many tournaments underway Friday night to determine berths and pairings for the NCAA playoffs which start later this month.

The newest NCAA entry was decided in the Ohio Valley Conference, where Western Kentucky defeated Morehead 65-60 and advanced to the Midwest Regionals in Dayton, Ohio. The Hilltoppers will play second-ranked Marquette in a first-round game on March 13.

Memphis State trimmed Louisville 87-76 and 13th-ranked Cincinnati held off Georgia Tech 71-60 to advance to tonight's finals of the Metro-Six Tournament; Texas Tech nudged Arkansas 70-63 and moved into the finals of the Southwest Conference playoffs against regular-season champion Texas A&M; Weber State nudged Northern Arizona 63-58 and

Boise State defeated Idaho State 93-81 to advance to the finals of the Big Sky Conference playoffs, and Temple beat St. Joseph's 80-72 and Hofstra turned back Lafayette 77-72 in the semifinals of the East Coast Conference.

George Washington and Georgetown will play for an NCAA berth in the ECAC's Southern Regionals. George Washington outscored West Virginia 99-87 and Georgetown walloped Villanova 72-59 to move into tonight's finals.

Marquette, selected a few days ago for an at-large berth to the NAAs, clobbered Cincinnati Xavier 74-49 Friday night.

The No. 2-ranked Warriors reeled off their 20th consecutive victory with an awesome flurry, outscoring the outmanned Musketeers 20-1 in the last seven minutes to gain the win.

Lloyd Walton led a balanced scoring attack with 16 points.

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) —

Olympic champion Dorothy Hamill, bent on returning the ladies figure skating world champion title to the United States after eight years in other hands, faced arch-rival Dianne De Leeuw today with ice show talent scouts waiting in the wings.

Miss Hamill, 19, from Riverside, Conn., beat back her usual stage jitters to win the short program Friday and take the over-all lead ahead of Miss De Leeuw, a California competing for The Netherlands. Today's decisive final free skating counts for the final 50 per cent of the competition.

East Germany's 1974 world champion Christine Errath was second to Miss Hamill in the short program and remained a potentially dangerous outsider if the American and Dutch girls fail. Linda Fratianne of Los Angeles was sixth over-all and Wendy Burge of Garden Grove, Calif., was eighth.

Meanwhile in Friday's ice dancing finals, the American team of Colleen O'Connor and Jim Millin repeated their Olympic performance and earned a bronze medal.

The Colorado Springs, Colo., couple finished behind two Soviet teams, Ludmilla Pakhomova and Alexander Gorshkov and Irina Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov. The order of finish was the same as in the Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, where ice dancing was contested for the first time.

The gold medalists led all the way in establishing their superiority, and in the final free dance they received almost unheard of perfect 6.0 marks from seven of the nine judges for their fourth world title.

A crowd of 12,000 in the Scandinavium Arena witnessed the elegant Moscow couple's nearly perfect performance. They were voted No. 1 by all nine judges for 9.0 ordinals and 211.52 points.

Their compatriots had 19 ordinals and 205.44 points while Miss O'Connor and Millin had 28 ordinals and 202.92 points.

Miss Hamill's Coach Carlo Fassi exuded confidence that she would come through again today.

A world and Olympic title could be worth millions of dollars and Miss Hamill as well as Miss De Leeuw, from Paramount, Calif., have indicated they will end their competitive careers here and may turn to ice shows.

Americans Outshine Top World Skiers

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

COPPER MOUNTAIN, Colo. (AP) — A dream is about to come true for Phil Mittermaier, the West German queen of alpine skiing. And for two American youngsters, it might have come true already.

Miss Mittermaier, at 25 already called the "old lady" of world class amateur skiing, easily won the women's giant slalom at the Copper Mountain World Cup Friday and could clinch the over-all title with a decent showing in the special slalom today.

But outside of Risi, it was an American day. Greg Jones of Tahoe City, Calif., and Phil Mahre of White Pass, Wash., swept the first two places in the men's giant slalom in a field that included the best alpine skiers in the world.

It was an unprecedented showing for the U.S. team.

Along with the Jones-Mahre

sweep, Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., took second in the women's giant slalom. With the sixth and eighth-place finishes of Lindy Cochran and Abbi Fisher, that gave the American women three of the top ten places.

Also in the top ten of the men's event was Phil's identical twin, Steve Mahre, who finished sixth, also giving the men three of the top ten placings.

The United States had never done so well in a World Cup event. Neither had Jones. "It was the first time I've won in the World Cup," said Jones, 22, who beat Phil Mahre by only 23 hundredths of a second. "I'm elated. This takes a lot of pressure off me for the rest of the season. It helps my confidence."

Jones clocked 1 minute, 36.34 seconds over the first men's run and 1:34.17 over the second—the best times for both heats—to win in 3:20.51. Phil Mahre turned in a 1:38.65 on the first run and 1:44.18 on the second; 3:20.83 combined.

Both courses were run through 62 gates over 1,310 meters, the longest allowable in the World Cup. In addition, they were run at an altitude of 11,061 feet—more than two miles high.

Miss Nelson, 20-year-old bronze medalist in the downhill at the Innsbruck Winter Olympics, finished with a time of 1:28.77, more than a second off the pace set by Miss Mittermaier of 1:28.45.

Bernadette Zurbriggen of Switzerland finished third in the women's event in 1:30.10; Brigitte Totsch of Austria was fourth in 1:30.17; and Irene Epple of West Germany was fifth in 1:30.23. Miss Cochran, of Richmond, Va., had a time of 1:30.25, and Miss Fisher, of South Conway, N.H., clocked 1:30.51.

The men's special slalom will be run Sunday, winding up this World Cup stop; then the tour moves to Aspen, Colo.

Slowdown Almost Defeats Beecher

From The Associated Press

Nobody's been able to beat Flint Beecher this high school basketball season, so Flint Powers decided to try the old upset strategy — a slowdown game — in their Class B district championship game Friday night.

It almost worked, but close only counts in horseshoes. Beecher, the No. 1-ranked Class B team, nipped Powers, 31-20, in double overtime.

The teams doctored 20-20 at the end of regulation. Steve Johnson had a free throw opportunity for Powers with no time left on the clock, but he missed. Each team scored four points in the first overtime.

Free throws were the difference. Both teams hit 12 field goals, but while Beecher was seven of nine from the free-throw line, Powers managed to sink just five of 10.

Last year Powers beat Beecher in a slowdown district championship game. Beecher takes a 22-0 record into the regionals, while Powers finished its season at 17-6.

A capacity crowd of 1,700 crammed the Benzie Central gym in Benzonia for seventh-ranked Beecher's showdown clash with Traverse City St. Francis for their district Class

C title.

Despite the absence of star B.J. Lathwell, who could miss several more games because of illness — possibly mononucleosis, Benzie Central took a 58-54 victory. Four players scored in double figures for the winners to help take up the slack for Lathwell: Matt Edinger with 18, Barney Goetings with 13, plus Todd Moss and Fred Blacklock with 12 each.

Donnis Fowins had 18 for St. Francis, which was listed as honorable mention in the poll and wound up with an 18-4 record. Benzie is 21-2.

Three rated teams saw their tourney dreams wiped out in district title games:

Sixth-ranked Garden City West was blasted by seventh-ranked Southfield Lathrup, 66-61, in Class A. In Class B, seventh-ranked Muskegon Catholic was upended by Muskegon Reeths-Puffer, 74-44. And Detroit Lutheran West, the No. 6 Class B squad, was stunned by Detroit St. Mary of Redford, 64-53.

Garden City West's loss was its first in 23 games and Lutheran West's setback was just its second against 30-victories.

Illinois Takes Early Lead In Big Ten Track Meet

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — With Craig Virgin and Charlton Ehlizuelen winning the opening events Friday, Illinois was a step ahead of Indiana going into today's finals of the Big Ten indoor track and field meet.

Indiana's hopes of winning the indoor crown for a fourth consecutive time was enhanced by misfortune when Wisconsin's versatile Tarig Mughal was felled by a pulled hamstring.

It knocked him out of three events in which he was rated a top contender.

"I feel like crying," he said. "It was my big chance after four years. I felt I could win the Big Ten, and now it's gone."

After Friday's two events, the point standings were Illinois 12, Indiana 7, Purdue 6, Michigan State 4, Michigan 2 and Iowa 1.

Michigan had 11 qualifiers and Wisconsin nine. Illinois and Indiana each qualified seven for today's events. Iowa had five, Michigan State and Purdue four apiece, Ohio State and Minnesota three each and Northwestern one.

Virgin, having bettered the conference mark earlier this season, set a meet record in the two-mile run Friday, defeating defending champion Herb Lindsay of Michigan State.

He was clocked at 8:39.1, topping the 1973 mark of 8:43.2. Lindsay won the 1975 event in 8:44.8, and was 8:45.8 this time.

Ehlizuelen took honors again in the long jump, traveling 24 feet, 8 1/2 inches. Purdue's Harold Vaughn was second at 24 feet 7 1/2, and Indiana's Sylvester Wilson had 23 feet 10.

Wisconsin had counted heavily on Mughal in a Butler bid for the indoor crown it last enjoyed in 1971.

He collapsed with the leg injury in the 80-yard dash, and was unable to try also in the 300 and 440.

His best time in the 300 this season was 39.9 seconds, compared with 30.8 Friday by Iowa's Bob Lawson who led qualifiers.

In the 60, Lawson tied with Purdue's John Mitchell. Michigan's Doug Hennig and Wisconsin's Lawrence Johnson at 6.2 seconds. Mughal has done it in 6.1.

Wisconsin's Steve Lacy led mile qualifiers with 4:07.4. Indiana's Steve Ehlizuelen was short of his four-minute time, but qualified at 4:12.6.

Leading 880 qualifiers was Wisconsin's Mark Sang, at 1:53.2.

Illinois' Al Melton paced 70-yard hurdles qualifying with 8.5 seconds, tying teammate James Hamilton.

Without their star forward, who has been lost to the club for at least two weeks with a knee injury, the Celtics seemed like just an ordinary team Friday night — struggling to beat the New Orleans Jazz 88-83.

"We ran and hustled and hit our shots in the first half, but we couldn't hit in the second half worth a darn," said Heinsohn after the close National Basketball Association game. "We had some good shots but we couldn't make them."

The Celtics had a 36-point lead at one time but the Jazz whittled it to just four near the end.

The Celtics rolled to a 73-37 lead in the opening minutes of the third period. But the Jazz outscored Boston 21-4 in a seven-minute stretch to get back in the game. The Jazz actually got within 83-89 with 1:31 remaining in the game, but Charlie Scott converted a three-point play that ended New Orleans' hopes. Scott wound up with 25 points, followed by Jo Jo White's 23 and Dave Cowens' 22.

In the other NBA games, the Philadelphia 76ers whipped the Detroit Pistons 123-112; the Kansas City Kings downed the Seattle SuperSonics 111-83; the Phoenix Suns tripped the Chicago Bulls 99-87; the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Portland Trail Blazers 113-100 and the Los Angeles Lakers outscored the Golden State Warriors 106-99.

Fred Carter scored 29 points and led a 21-point spurt in the last five minutes as Philadelphia defeated Detroit.

Sam Lacey fired in 19 points, all in the second half, to spark Kansas City over Seattle.

Paul Westphal connected on a four-foot shot with 30 seconds to go and Phoenix held on to defeat

Chicago. Campy Russell led a second-quarter surge that helped Cleveland come back from a 19-point deficit to beat Portland.

A hot-shooting fourth quarter by Gail Goodrich and the steady play of Kareem-Abdul Jabbar led Los Angeles past Golden State.

Americans Outshine Top World Skiers

AP Sports Writer

COPPER MOUNTAIN, Colo. (AP) — A dream is about to come true for Rosi Mittermaier, the West German queen of alpine skiing. And for two American youngsters, it might have come true already.

Miss Mittermaier, at 25 already called the "old lady" of world class amateur skiing, easily won the women's giant slalom at the Copper Mountain World Cup Friday and could clinch the over-all title with a decent showing in the special slalom today.

But outside of Rosi, it was an all-American day. Greg Jones of Tahoe City, Calif., and Phil Mahre of White Pass, Wash., swept the first two places in the men's giant slalom in a field that included the best alpine skiers in the world.

It was an unprecedented showing for the U.S. team.

Along with the Jones-Mahre

sweep, Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., took second in the women's giant slalom. With the sixth and eighth-place finishes of Lindy Cochran and Abbi Fisher, that gave the American women three of the top ten places.

Also in the top ten of the men's event was Phil's identical twin, Steve Mahre, who finished sixth, also giving the men three of the top ten placings.

The United States had never done so well in a World Cup event. Neither had Jones. "It was the first time I've won in the World Cup," said Jones, 22, who beat Phil Mahre by only 23 hundredths of a second. "I'm elated. This takes a lot of pressure off me for the rest of the season. It helps my confidence." Jones clocked 1 minute, 36.34 seconds over the first men's run and 1:44.17 over the second—the best times for both heats—to win in 3:20.51. Phil Mahre turned in a 1:36.65 on the first run and 1:44.18 on the second, 3:20.83 combined.

Both courses were run through 62 gates over 1,310 meters, the longest allowable in the World Cup. In addition, they were run at an altitude of 11,061 feet—more than two miles high.

Miss Nelson, 20-year-old bronze medalist in the downhill at the Innsbruck Winter Olympics, finished with a time of 1:29.77, more than a second off the pace set by Miss Mittermaier of 1:28.45.

Bernadette Zurbriggen of Switzerland finished third in the women's event in 1:30.10, Brigitte Totschnig of Austria was fourth in 1:30.17, and Irene Epple of West Germany was fifth in 1:30.23. Miss Cochran, of Richmond, Vt., had a time of 1:30.25, and Miss Fisher, of South Conway, N.H., clocked 1:30.51.

The men's special slalom will be run Sunday, winding up this World Cup stop, then the tour moves to Aspen, Colo.

Slowdown Almost Defeats Beecher

From The Associated Press

Nobody's been able to beat Flint Beecher this high school basketball season, so Flint Powers decided to try to the old upset strategy — a slowdown game — in their Class B district championship game Friday night.

It almost worked, but close only counts in horseshoes.

Beecher, the No. 1-ranked Class B team, nipped Powers, 31-29, in double overtime.

The teams deadlocked 20-20 at the end of regulation. Steve Johnson had a free throw opportunity for Powers with no time left on the clock, but he missed. Each team scored four points in the first overtime.

Free throws were the difference. Both teams hit 12 field goals, but while Beecher was seven of nine from the free-throw line, Powers managed to sink just five of 10.

Last year Powers beat Beecher in a slowdown district championship game.

Beecher takes a 22-0 record into the regionals, while Powers finished its season at 17-6.

A capacity crowd of 1,700 crammed the Benzie Central gym in Benzonia for seventh-ranked Benzie's showdown clash with Traverse City St. Francis for their district Class

C title. Despite the absence of star B.J. Lathwell, who could miss several more games because of illness — possibly mononucleosis, Benzie Central took a 58-54 victory. Four players scored in double figures for the winners to help take up the slack for Lathwell: Matt Edinger with 18, Barney Geetings with 13, plus Todd Moss and Fred Blacklock with 12 each.

Dennis Fewins had 18 for St. Francis, which was listed as honorable mention in the poll and wound up with an 18-4 record. Benzie is 21-2.

Three rated teams saw their tourney dreams wiped out in district title games.

Sixth-ranked Garden City West was blasted by seventh-ranked Southfield Lathrup, 86-61, in Class A. In class B, seventh-ranked Muskegon Catholic was upended by Muskegon Reeths-Puffer, 74-64. And Detroit Lutheran West, the No. 6 Class B squad, was stunned by Detroit's St. Mary of Redford, 64-53.

Garden City West's loss was its first in 23 games and Lutheran West's setback was just its second against 20 victories.

Illinois Takes Early Lead In Big Ten Track Meet

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — With Craig Virgin and Charlton Elhizuelen winning the opening events Friday, Illinois was a step ahead of Indiana going into today's finals of the Big Ten indoor track and field meet.

Indiana's hopes of winning the indoor crown for a fourth consecutive time was enhanced by misfortune when Wisconsin's versatile Tarig Mughal was felled by a pulled hamstring.

It knocked him out of three events in which he was rated a top contender.

"I feel like crying," he said. "It was my big chance after four years. I felt I could win the Big Ten, and now it's gone."

After Friday's two events, the point standings were Illinois 12, Indiana 7, Purdue 6, Michigan State 4, Michigan 2 and Iowa 1.

Michigan had 11 qualifiers and Wisconsin nine. Illinois and Indiana each qualified seven for today's events. Iowa had five, Michigan State and Purdue four apiece, Ohio State and Minnesota three each and Northwestern one.

Virgin, having bettered the conference mark earlier this season, set a meet record in the two-mile run Friday, defeating defending champion Herb Lindsay of Michigan State.

He was clocked at 8:39.1, topping the 1973 mark of 8:43.2. Lindsay won the 1975 event in 8:44.8, and was 8:45.6 this time.

Elhizuelen took honors again in the long jump, traveling 24 feet, 8 1/4 inches. Purdue's Harold Vaughn was second at 24 feet 7 1/2, and Indiana's Sylvester Wilson had 23 feet 10.

Wisconsin had counted heavily on Mughal in a Badger bid for the indoor crown it last enjoyed in 1971.

He collapsed with the leg injury in the 60-yard dash, and was unable to try also in the 300 and 440.

His best time in the 300 this season was 30.9 seconds, compared with 30.8 Friday by Iowa's Bob Lawson who led qualifiers.

In the 60, Lawson tied with Purdue's John Mitchell, Michigan's Doug Hennigar and Wisconsin's Lawrence Johnson at 6.2 seconds. Mughal has done it in 6.1.

Wisconsin's Steve Lacy led mile qualifiers with 4:07.4. Indiana's Steve Heidenreich was short of his four-minute time, but qualified at 4:12.6.

Leading 880 qualifiers was Wisconsin's Mark Sang, at 1:53.2.

Illinois' Al Melton paced 70-yard hurdles qualifying with 8.5 seconds, tying teammate James Hanlon.

Final events of the Big Ten indoor track meet:
Two mile—1, Craig Virgin, Illinois, 8:39.1, meet record; old record 8:43.2, Pat Mander, Indiana, 1973; 2, Herb Lindsay, Michigan State; 3, Don Viscser, Indiana; 4, Greg Meyer, Michigan; 5, Rikk Maglov, Indiana.
Long jump—1, Charlton Elhizuelen, Illinois, 24 1/4; 2, Harold Vaughn, Purdue; 3, Sylvester Wilson, Indiana; 4, Derek Laing, Purdue; 5, Joe Robinson, Iowa.

MSU Icers Down 'M'
— Tom Ross and Brendon Moroney scored two goals apiece as Michigan State defeated traditional rival Michigan, 6-3, Friday night in Western Collegiate Hockey Association action.

The victory clinches the Big Ten championship for MSU in hockey and locks up second place in the WCHA.

The victory also gives the Spartans a home ice advantage for the first round of WCHA playoffs and second round home ice advantage if MSU gets that far in the playoffs.

Paul All Right
BOSTON (AP) — Brad Park, the Boston Bruins' high-scoring defenseman, was reported in excellent condition today after undergoing a 1 1/2-hour operation to repair torn cartilage in his left knee.

Kent State Has Big Swim Lead

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Kent State was expected to clinch its third Mid-American Conference swimming championship in the last four years today leading defending champion Miami by 70 points in the final day of competition.

Kent continued in the dominant position Friday leading with 276 points while Miami overcame Eastern Michigan by 36 points to take second with 208.

Roy Cheran, Ohio University, became the only swimmer in the 24 years of conference competition to win an event four times running. The senior took the 100-yard backstroke in 58.9 winning the event every year since he was a freshman.

Mike Stokley, a junior from Kent State, set a MAC record in the 400 yard individual medley in 4:10.36. Miami's Art Ennsley, who set the record last year with 4:14.72, finished third. Kent freshman Mike Wohl

Warriors Will Get Lakers' No. 1 Pick

NEW YORK (AP) — The Golden State Warriors will get another No. 1 pick in the college basketball draft as a result of losing Gussie Russell.

The Warriors and Los Angeles Lakers finally resolved their differences in the long-standing Russell case Friday with the Warriors receiving the Lakers' first round pick in this year's draft as compensation.

Russell, a 6-foot-5 forward, played out his option with the Warriors on Sept. 1, 1974, then signed with the Lakers. The case has been pending since.

The settlement was the first of its kind in NBA history, according to a league spokesman.

The compensatory action is similar to the "Rozelle Rule" which existed for a long time in the National Football League before a Minneapolis judge

Fires 66 To Top Citrus Open Zarley Making Recovery

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Kermit Zarley, who held the lead halfway through the $200,000 Citrus Open Golf Tournament, had such a severe neck problem that, for years, he had to put himself in traction every night.

"I had this contraption I carried with me on the tour," Zarley said Friday. "Every night when I'd go back to the hotel, I'd attach it to the door, attach it to my head and put myself in traction. I did it for six years."

Then a year ago I was playing in Japan. The door in the hotel wasn't suitable. It didn't work with this contraption I had. And I had to go into traction.

"So I took it out to the golf course and went in the locker room. They had the right kind of doors. I hooked it up and put myself in it."

A few minutes later this little Japanese came in carrying an armload of towels. His eyes got this big and he started yelling and towels went every which way. He'd thought I'd hung myself."

Zarley laughed when he told the story.

But the neck problem, growing out of a teen-age injury, was no laughing matter.

It became progressively worse and forced him to undergo surgery, a neck fusion, last fall.

"I didn't know if I'd ever be able to play again," Zarley said. "Operations on a neck disc don't have all that high a ratio of success. Fortunately, this operation was highly successful."

And the operation and his rounds of 87-66-133 halfway through this event wrote an end to a two-year slump for the veteran who last won an individual title in the 1970 Canadian Open.

His round of 66, interrupted for 20 minutes by a late afternoon rainstorm, served as the best of the day Friday. It came despite the fact he was one over par on the par fives and lifted him two strokes clear of veteran Gary Brewer and Mark Hayes.

Brewer, a 43-year-old former Masters champion, shot a 68 and Hayes had a 70.

John Mahaffey, with a 67, was alone at 136. The group at 137, four shots back, included Bob Murphy, Rick Acton, Pat Fitzsimons and rookie Ed Sabo. Murphy and Sabo shot 68s, Acton 68 and Fitzsimons 70.

Arnold Palmer, defending champion Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf all failed to qualify for the final two rounds. It took a score of 144 to make it. Palmer was 72-146, Weiskopf 74-146 and Trevino 72-147.

Gary Player just made it at 68-144.

Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller are not competing.

Flames Zap Rangers

ATLANTA (AP) — Ed Kea called it Atlanta's biggest game of the year. What New York Ranger Coach John Ferguson called it was unprintable.

Kea led an Atlanta blitz with two goals and a pair of assists Friday night in an 8-3 rout of the Rangers to give the Flames an 11-point edge over the last place New Yorkers in the two-team battle for the final playoff spot in the National Hockey League's Patrick Division.

The Flames have 13 games left to play and the Rangers 14. The two clubs meet again in New York Sunday night.

"I'm just so happy about the win," said Kea who led a four-goal first period with his fifth goal of the season and two assists then added another tally in the final period.

"It's the biggest game for us so far," said Kea. "We wanted to get the first goal and did. It really gave us a lift."

In the only other NHL game, the California Seals nipped the Boston Bruins 4-3.

In the World Hockey Association, the Houston Aeros trimmed the Phoenix Roadrunners 6-3 and the Quebec

Nordiques edged the Edmonton Oilers 5-4 in overtime.

It was only Atlanta's fifth victory in 23 games. The Rangers, however, have lost seven straight.

Ferguson, asked for his comments, was not at all happy.

"Ask the winners, they've got all the answers," he shot back. "There is nothing good to say so I'll say nothing. I got a better effort out of the trainers," he said.

Barry Gibbs, Bill Clement, Kea and Randy Manery scored Atlanta's first-period goals against New York goalie John Davidson and Ferguson replaced him the rest of the way with Dunc Wilson.

Fred Ahern scored the winning goal with 3:28 remaining on a shot from the right circle that went between the pads of goalie Gilles Gilbert, who had won his last 17 games.

Mark Howe scored three goals in the third period after the teams were tied 3-3 at the end of the second period.

J.C. Tremblay's 50-foot goal at 2:05 of sudden-death overtime nullified a three-goal performance by Edmonton's Rusty Patenaude.

Detroit Takes Day Off

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Detroit Tiger players—those who have been working out on their own under the leadership of John Hiller—were given today off.

They've got no place to play. The City of Lakeland, which had been letting them practice their baseball at old Henley Field, promised the field to someone else.

Hiller plans to call practice again for Sunday.

Camps have been closed by major league club owners until a settlement is reached on a new contract with the players association. Negotiations broke off in New York on Friday without any future meetings being scheduled.

Meanwhile, Friday the Montreal Expos cancelled their exhibition game against Detroit which was scheduled for next Thursday. On Sunday Tiger management is expected to announce it will eliminate its exhibition games Wednesday against Boston and Friday against Houston.

Montgomery Paces Hoosier Swimmers

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Indiana, led by record-breaking Jim Montgomery, captured four of six events Friday night to lengthen its lead in the three-day Big Ten Swimming meet here.

Montgomery, winner of the 50-yard freestyle in a Big Ten record-breaking performance Thursday night, set a new American and NCAA record Friday night by winning the 200-yard freestyle in 1:37.65. His effort erased the old standard of 1:37.75 set last year by Tim

O'Donnell of UCLA.

The Hoosiers built their meet-leading point total to 488 heading into Saturday's final day of competition. Meanwhile, Wisconsin moved into second with 288 while Michigan slipped to third with 265.

Illinois finished the night in fourth with 219, followed by Michigan State 216, Ohio State 188, Purdue 99, Northwestern 69, Iowa 56 and Minnesota 33.

Montgomery was also a member of Indiana's 800-yard freestyle relay team which took first place with a time 6:44.77. Bruce Dixon, Fred Tyler and Kim Keim were also members of that winning crew.

Dixon captured the 400-yard individual medley in 4:03.40, and Bill Schulte won the 100-yard backstroke in :52.70 to nail down the Hoosiers' other first place finishes.

Wisconsin's Mike Imhoff won the 100-yard in :50.59 and Jim Shanell of Illinois won the 100-yard breaststroke in :58.91.

Warriors Will Get Lakers' No. 1 Pick

NEW YORK (AP) — The Golden State Warriors will get another No. 1 pick in the college basketball draft as a result of losing Cazzie Russell.

The Warriors and Los Angeles finally resolved their differences in the long-standing Russell case Friday with the Warriors receiving the Lakers' first-round pick in this year's draft as compensation.

Russell, a 6-foot-5 forward, played out his option with the Warriors on Sept. 1, 1974, then signed with the Lakers. The case has been pending since.

The settlement was the first of its kind in NBA history, according to a league spokesman.

The compensatory action is similar to the "Rozelle Rule" which existed for a long time in the National Football League before a Minneapolis judge declared it illegal last December. The rule, named after Commissioner Pete Rozelle, held that a team must be compensated for loss of a ballplayer who played out his option and joined another club.

The compensation rule also was a key issue in the Oscar Robertson suit, filed in 1970 by the NBA Players Association against the league. An out-of-court verbal settlement in the case was agreed upon by both sides at last month's All-Star Game in Philadelphia, but final papers in the suit have not been signed.

One of the basic elements in the compromise agreement was that the NBA compensation system, in effect when a player signs with a second team, would remain in effect until 1980. After that, a right of first refusal will be in effect through 1986.

Socialist Workers Party Angry Over State Ethics Act

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — There is a quiet fury contained upon legal-sized sheets filed by one of Michigan's troubled minority parties.

It is one of 11 briefs submitted to the state Supreme Court last month arguing over the state's new political ethics law. It's words are angry and, in some ways, more stirring than other briefs.

Filed by the Socialist Workers

Party, it is a 20th century reflection of the ideas of English philosopher John Stuart Mill who, more than a century ago, said:

"The only freedom which deserves the name is that of pursuing our own good in our own way, so long as we do not attempt to deprive others of theirs, or impede their efforts to obtain it."

The political ethics law, passed after a heated fight among Michigan lawmakers last summer, will "constrict and narrow political expression" and will end up cushioning the Big Two — Democrats and Republicans — from challenge or criticism, the brief says.

"Indeed, the more intensely and genuinely one holds one's political convictions, the less reason there may seem to permit opposition voices to be heard," the small 150-member party claims.

The Supreme Court has been asked to rule on the constitutionality of various sections of the law, which regulate lobbying, limit campaign contributions, provide for public funding of gubernatorial campaigns, and require financial disclosure by all officials.

Since 1948 when it first began running candidates on Michigan ballots, the Socialist Workers Party — like most other minor parties — has campaigned on conviction alone. It has little money, gets even less serious consideration by the press and public and — not surprisingly — had had no victories.

It's platform have been less than popular, supporting busing and affirmative action over and above seniority rules. It has called for the dismantling of the military, and wants to use the burgeoning defense budget to bring full employment and revitalize America's sagging cities instead.

It's irritation with the law has been bred over the years, as it — like other minor parties — battled not only the tradition of the Democratic and Republican parties, but their memberships of millions and their warehouses of many millions of dollars.

"Frankly," says the SWP's Detroit attorney Ronald Reest, "it [the political ethics law] doesn't do a thing to prevent corruption. It weakens restraints against corruption, because it increases control over the political process by politicians.

"After all, it wasn't the people who corrupted the political process," he says quietly.

Limits on individual campaign contributions to $1,700 mean "the non favored are hindered in their ability to compete in the marketplace of ideas," the brief says.

Acknowledging they've never received a donation that large, the law's provision means they never will, the SWP says.

By allowing candidates to contribute thousands of dollars to their own campaigns, but limiting individual contributions, "candidates from wealthy families will have far greater advantages than at present."

"That's an important provision for minor parties, many of whose candidates are so far from wealthy that they must moonlight their campaigns, working in factories, stores and homes by day."

'Non-Speaking' Role For Dog

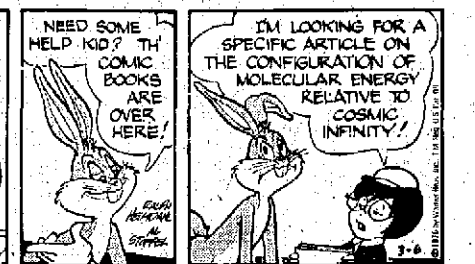

BOSTON (AP) — Boston University is looking for a "well behaved lap dog who likes opera" to be part of a production of the French opera "Mamm" by Mussenet. Adelaide Bishop, associate professor of music, said the dog will play "a small but significant non-speaking role" in the opera.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wind erosion has damaged more than 4.5 million acres of land in the drought-parched Great Plains since last fall, nearly double the damage inflicted last season and the most in nearly two decades, the Agriculture Department says.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Interest Rates Get Attention

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Trading slowed and prices turned mixed in the stock market this past week while investors kept a cautious eye on the outlook for interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks wavered in a relatively narrow range all week, finishing with a token net gain of .31 at 972.92.

New York Stock Exchange volume averaged 25.52 million shares a day, in marked contrast to the 30 million-plus pace of January and February.

The chief question being asked on Wall Street was whether interest rates might be beginning a sustained upward trend under the prodding of the Federal Reserve.

By Monday, most analysts agreed that the Fed had decided to tighten credit by at least a modest amount in response to recent growth in the nation's money supply.

The Fed's weekly statistical report Thursday showed a dropoff in the basic measure of the money supply — cash and checking account deposits in the economy — for the latest reporting week.

But investors seemed inclined to want to see more than one week's drop before concluding that credit conditions had settled down.

In its preoccupation with Fed-watching, the market all but ignored an abundance of favorable news in other parts of the economic picture.

The Commerce Department reported a good sized jump in orders received by manufacturers during January.

The government's wholesale price index registered a 0.3 per cent drop for February, providing another sign that inflationary pressures had eased.

Major retailers posted healthy sales gains for February.

And the Labor Department reported on Friday that the unemployment rate had declined further, to 7.6 per cent in February from 7.8 the month before.

Analysts said the market had taken such developments into account in advance with its dramatic rise at the beginning of the year.

Unlike the Dow, most other market measures showed declines for the week.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was off .60 at 99.11, and the NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks dropped .30 to 53.05.

Losers outpaced gainers 987 to 844 among the 2,056 NYSE-listed issues crossing the composite ticker tape.

New 1975-76 highs among individual issues numbered 216 during the week, against only seven new lows.

Litton Industries, the most active Big Board issue, jumped 3 1/2 to 16. Analysts noted that the stock has attracted heavy trading interest since a Litton subsidiary won a $200 million Navy contract late last month.

Levitz Furniture picked up 1 1/4 to 8 1/2. The company, which operates warehouse-style home furnishings stores across the country, reported a sharp gain in February sales.

Levitz stock traded as high as 60 1/2 a few years ago in Wall Street's initial enthusiasm for the company, and then fell below 2 later on. Its low last year was 13 1/4.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .28 to 103.65.

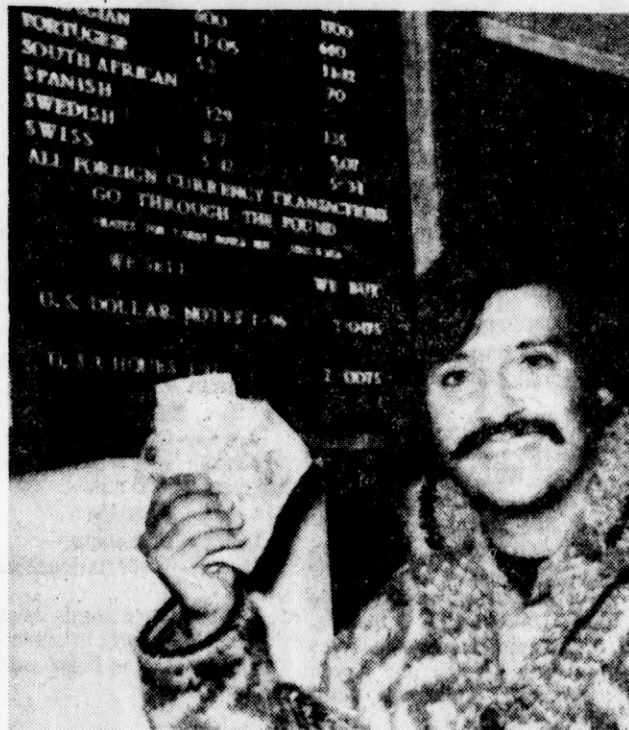

The Associated Press 60-stock average inched up .2 to 304.7.

HUNT FOR LEAK
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Ethics Committee says nobody knows for sure how long or how much money it will eventually take to find out who leaked a secret congressional document to the news media.

Rep. John J. Flynt, D-Ga., said the committee initially is planning a five-month investigation to conclude about July 31.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Double--And Triple--Taxation Is Common

By SAM SHULSKY
Q. A letter from my congressman indicates that some consideration is being given to the problem of double taxation imposed on dividends, capital gains, etc., within the broader framework of helping capital formation. It seems to me unfair that the tax on a corporation imposes the same burden on a 10-share holder as on a 1,000-share holder. It ought to be abolished. All corporate income other than money spent to further the business of the corporation should be passed on to the owners, the shareholders.

A. Your argument has been advanced many times and over a long period of years. There is no question that a corporation's earnings are taxed twice — once at the corporate level and again at the shareholder's. Certainly it seems unfair.

But there is nothing new in double taxation, or triple — or quadruple — taxation. You pay a tax on your salary. When you use some of it to buy a pair of shoes you probably pay two, three or four dozen layers of taxes — all the way up from the cow on the hoof, through the tannery, through the wholesaler, through the retailer.

Double taxation of dividends is only one of the many, many unfair tax procedures. How about the sales tax imposed on food in some states? Should a poor woman buying a loaf of bread and a quart of milk for her family pay a food sales tax? Or how about the silly distinction made — in some states — between buying non-taxable bread but taxed soap and cleaning powders? Want more?

How about the working man paying 25 to 50 (already taxed) cents for a bus ride to work while his boss rides to work in a company-owned, tax-deductible automobile? How about a company receiving tax credit for installing a better machine to make better products and produce more profit and pay more taxes — but the working man who finances his child's college education so that his offspring can earn more money and pay more income taxes must do so with money on which he has already paid income taxes and for which he receives no tax credit?

Your congressman writes: "There is no easy way of dealing with our economic problems, but I can assure you that Congress is aware of the seriousness of the situation." I'll bet. I'll believe it when Congress stops spending money as though it were going out of style.

Shulsky welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column. For information to check on obsolete securities, please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your requests to Sam Shulsky, care of this newspaper.

Holly's Has $1,222 Loss For Quarter

GRAND RAPIDS — Holly's, Inc., restaurant and motor inn chain reported a net loss of $1,222 for its first quarter ended Jan. 31.

Holly's said its full-service restaurants and motor inns continued to show a profit, but the fast-food Steak & "4" division sustained losses. Many customers served by fast-food steak houses have been hit hardest by unemployment, Holly's said. An increase in fast-foods is expected with an improving economy and warmer weather.

Holly's reported sales for the quarter totaled $4,032,231, an increase of $196,249 over the same period a year ago. Net income was $64,244.

The first quarter this year was handicapped by increases in expenses — government imposed payroll costs, workman's compensation and utilities, Holly's reported.

A year ago for the quarter was $64,244.

Listed in "fair" condition at Benton Harbor Mercy hospital was John Kent, 26, of 2817 Territorial road, Benton township.

Township police said Kent was a passenger in an auto that slammed into a tree after traveling off East Napier road near Benton Center road, about 12:37 a.m. today.

Treated and released from Mercy were the driver, Donald Washburn, 22, of Box 226 Easy street, and another passenger, Billy Kent, 17, of 2821 Territorial road, both Benton township.

Police said Washburn reported swerving to avoid a man on the roadway. No summonses were issued, police said.

St. Joseph police said Larry D. Blackmer, 20, of 156 1/2 Grove, Benton Springs, was treated at Memorial hospital after a car he was driving and another collided on Lakeshore drive, near Hawthorne avenue about 12:40 p.m. Friday.

The other driver, Paul F. Gerhardt, 20, of 3609 Ice street, Stevensville, was unhurt, police said. Gerhardt was ticketed for failure to stop in an assured clear distance, police said.

It is important for you to know that the vast majority of administrators are NOT unwilling to give MBO's a chance. What is unfortunate, however, is that what we presently have does not in any way approach acceptable MBO design. Professional integrity does not afford us the luxury of standing by as this practice continues.

In the Benton Harbor Area Schools as presently practiced by Superintendent Helsner, MBO really stands for MISmanagement by Objectives.

SAYS ENTIRE COUNTY AFFECTED

Nearly every day now we read in the paper or hear on the radio the soap opera type of saga unfolding in the city of Benton Harbor. We see people being replaced, resigning, or being ousted. Generally it seems the good guys are being forced out and more of the regime replacing them in office. At higher salaries - creating a lot of fat cats with no qualities of leadership.

The citizens of the city of Benton Harbor - where are they? Why don't they try to stop this? It's their own city that they are allowing to crumble beneath them.

We people of Berrien County are proud of our area. We're proud of our fruit crops, our Lake Michigan, our industry, our cities and towns, and our homes and properties. What happens in the city of Benton Harbor can directly affect each and every one of us!

What happens in the city of Benton Harbor can directly affect every one of us!

The obvious main problem in Benton Harbor is the lack of qualified leadership. The good guys get booted out and someone else runs and gets in office (or appointed to office). Why? Because of the citizens. They don't bother to vote or bother to object to the circus that is going on down there.

That's our tax money they are using to pay all those salaries. Salaries that are being raised dramatically. Monies that are being used for Jamaican and Florida trips, dinners, and luncheons.

How can we be so blind. We are being hoodwinked. You've got to hand it to them - they may not be leaders but they sure know how to get government funds. But then what happens to those funds? Where do they go? Do we ever see any real results?

I beg of you, please tell me what can I do to help stop this problem before it ruins the reputation of all of Berrien County!

ANTI-E.R.A. STAFF 'STRONGLY' PROTESTED

Editor,

I feel I must strongly protest the motion made by Rep. Josephine Hunsinger to repeal the state ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Perhaps if Mrs. Hunsinger's salary was $7,500 a year lower than that of her male counterparts and she was required to wait on them during coffee breaks, or to have their morning coffee ready when they arrived, she might feel differently.

Her statement that men will not have to support their families is ridiculous. If any man decides not to assume his proper responsibilities, no law can make him do so.

As for women in the military, the government has always had the right to draft us in a national emergency, and there are more and more fine young women voluntarily going into every branch of the service.

We women have enough problems to overcome, so we can do without the Mrs. Hunsingers, Phyllis Schafly, Ellen McCormack and Marjorie Morgan, and any others of that ilk. I hope every working woman lets her elected officials know her views on this very serious matter.

ST. JOSEPH SENIOR RAIPS FINAL EXAMS

Editor,

As a concerned student of St. Joseph High school, I feel it necessary to bring into focus an important issue. The issue in question is that of final examinations for seniors. This year, for the first time in five years, seniors are to be required to take finals. I feel that this is ridiculous, as in past years, as I stated earlier, this has not been the case.

The proponents of these pesky things offer many reasons for their existence. On the cover, these reasons seem logical enough. But, under further investigation, one finds that these arguments are invalid. The arguments in favor range from the "one extra grade" routine to the "help me determine how good a teacher I am" fallacy. But, none of them really hold water when scrutinized.

In the first place, you cannot really determine what was learned from just one test. Obviously, the student could have a bad day. So, the alternative is to keep a running total of the student's average, and for that "extra grade" give him what he has been averaging. For one must keep in mind that this is just one test and could easily be cheated on, whereas, it is unlikely that a student could cheat his way through the entire year. The only way to determine if anything has been learned would be to give a battery of tests, or a state administered comprehensive test.

Therefore, let me urge all St. Joe seniors to attend the school board meeting on March 8 and let your position be heard. Let's see if this can't be changed!

ON WAKING UP

Editor,

How do you wake up? At the raucous sound of an alarm that won't run down till you get up? At the insistent nudging of a spouse or parent? Or by your own biological clock, which gently opens your eyes?

How do you face the brand new day? With fear and misgivings about the worst day may bring? Or with the realization that this is the beginning of the rest of your life? Or with a grateful joy for another day to experience God's grace?

What do you look forward to this morning? The glory of a sunrise in the east, which puts the western puff of clouds in the pink? A hearty breakfast to start you on your busy day? The warm and understanding smile of members of your household?

The cheerful greetings of your co-workers and friends?

What will you do with this chance in a lifetime, this day which will never return? Will you make it memorable to others and to yourself? Will you relish the beauty around you and add to the warmth of fellowship with those you meet?

Each morning brings a chance to begin anew, to further or complete, to create, to dare, to face, to learn, to grow, to body and wisdom, gaining favor with God and man.

How glorious to awaken!

MARCH OF DIMES AND RESEARCH

Editor,

At a December 11, 1975 meeting between Michigan Citizens For Life officials and representatives of the March of Dimes in Detroit, Mr. George Voss, Vice-President Public Relations, March of Dimes agreed that a portion of the donor's dollar will go to fund research from which abortion will be the result.

Mr. Voss quoted from a survey of 2200 amniocentesis procedures conducted by the March of Dimes and stated that 2.8% of the children were determined as defective and later destroyed by their parents. So as a result of that process of genetic research 62 babies were aborted.

It was also at the December meeting that March of Dimes representatives said that 90% of the national funds are spent on other than direct patient care, primarily for research.

Amniocentesis involves the removal of fluid from the sac surrounding the child in the womb. Cells in the fluid are then studied to determine if a defect exists. This process is generally initiated after 14 weeks gestation; another three weeks or so are required for the lab work. If the parents of an imperfect child opt to destroy their baby, the abortion is performed close to the 20 week mark.

At 20 weeks a baby weighs about a pound. He is sensitive to pain, and respond to touch, cold, sound and light. He gets hiccups, sucks, his thumb, wakes and sleeps. He can be laughed to be alerted by a first signal for a second one. They move about a great deal in the womb and their kicks are felt by the mother.

This late in pregnancy, babies are destroyed by saline injection or hysterotomy. In a saline abortion, a concentrated salt solution is injected into the womb. The baby swallows it, is poisoned, and dies in about an hour. From 8 to 12 hours later the mother delivers a dead baby.

Hysterotomy is a mini-Caesarian section. The baby is surgically removed from the womb and discarded, generally showing signs of life such as movement and gasping at attempts to breathe, into a bucket.

In past advertisements, the March of Dimes asked mothers to "be good to your babies before they are born." Why in view of the above facts, do they continue to say that "the entire issue of abortion is outside our sphere of interest?"

Sincerely,

copy of any administrator's MBO's (those who have them); take a look at the superintendent's and see what you think. Seek out the facts and draw your own conclusions.

It is important for you to know that the vast majority of administrators are NOT unwilling to give MBO's a chance. What is unfortunate, however, is that what we presently have does not in any way approach acceptable MBO design. Professional integrity does not afford us the luxury of standing by as this practice continues.

In the Benton Harbor Area Schools as presently practiced by Superintendent Helsel, MBO really stands for MISmanagement by Objectives. Rance L. Deckard, President Benton Harbor School Administrators Association

SAYS ENTIRE COUNTY AFFECTED

Nearly every day now we read in the paper or hear on the radio the soap opera type of saga unfolding in the city of Benton Harbor. We see people being replaced, resigning, or being ousted. Generally it seems the good guys are being forced out and more of the regime replacing them in office. At higher salaries — creating a lot of fat cats with no qualities of leadership.

The citizens of the city of Benton Harbor — where are they? Why don't they try to stop this? It's their own city that they are allowing to crumble beneath them.

We people of Berrien County are proud of our area. We're proud of our fruit crops, our Lake Michigan, our industry, our cities and towns, and our homes and properties. What happens in the city of Benton Harbor can directly affect each and every one of us! I repeat — What happens in the city of Benton Harbor can directly affect every one of us!

The obvious main problem in Benton Harbor is the lack of qualified leadership. The good guys get booted out and someone else runs and gets in office (or appointed to office). Why? Because of the citizens. They don't bother to vote or bother to object to the circus that is going on down there. That's our tax money they are using to pay all those salaries. Salaries that are being raised dramatically. Monies that are being used for Jamaican and Florida trips, dinners, and luncheons.

How can we be so blind. We are being hoodwinked. You've got to hand it to them — they may not be leaders but they sure know how to get government funds. But then what happens to those funds? Where do they go? Do we ever see any real results?

I beg of you, please tell me what can I do to help stop this problem before it ruins the reputation of all of Berrien County!

ANTI-E.R.A. Stand 'STRONGLY' PROTESTED

Editor,
I feel I must strongly protest the motion made by Rep. Josephine Hunsinger to repeal the state ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Perhaps if Mrs. Hunsinger's salary was $7,500 a year lower than that of her male counterparts and she was required to wait on them during coffee breaks, or to have their morning coffee ready when they arrived, she might feel differently.

Her statement that men will not have to support their families is ridiculous. If any man decides not to assume his proper responsibilities, no law can make him do so.

As for women in the military, the government has always had the right to draft us in a national emergency, and there are more and more fine young women voluntarily going into every branch of the service.

We women have enough problems to overcome, so we can do without the Mrs. Hunsingers, Phyllis Schafly, Ellen McCormack and Maribell Morgans, and any others of that ilk.

I hope every working woman lets her elected officials know her views on this very serious matter.

ST. JOSEPH SENIOR RAPS FINAL EXAMS

Editor,
As a concerned student of St. Joseph high school, I feel it necessary to bring into focus an important issue. The issue in question is that of final examinations for seniors. This year, for the first time in five years, seniors are to be required to take finals. I feel that this is ridiculous, as in past years, as I stated earlier, this has not been the case.

The proponents of these pesky things offer many reasons for their existence. On the cover, these reasons seem logical enough. But, under further investigation, one finds that these arguments are invalid. The arguments in favor range from the "one extra grade" routine to the "help me determine how good a teacher I am" fallacy. But, none of them really hold water when scrutinized.

In the first place, you cannot really determine what was learned from just one test. Obviously, the student could have a bad day. So, the alternative is to keep a running total of the student's average, and for that "extra grade" give him what he has been averaging. For one must keep in mind that this is just one test and could easily be cheated on, whereas, it is unlikely that a student could cheat his way through the entire year. The only way to determine if anything has been learned would be to give a battery of tests, or a state administered comprehensive test.

Therefore, let me urge all St. Joe seniors to attend the school board meeting on March 8 and let your position be known. Let's see if this can't be changed!

ON WAKING UP

Editor,
How do you wake up? At the raucous sound of an alarm that won't run down till you get up? At the insistent nudging of a spouse or parent? Or by your own biological clock, which gently opens your eyes?

How do you face the brand new day? With fear and misgivings about the worst day of my life may bring? Or with the realization that this is the beginning of the rest of your life? Or with a grateful joy for another day to experience God's grace?

What do you look forward to this morning? The glory of a sunrise in the east, which puts the western puff of clouds in the pink? A hearty breakfast to start you on your busy day? The warm and understanding smile of members of your household? The cheerful greetings of your co-workers and friends?

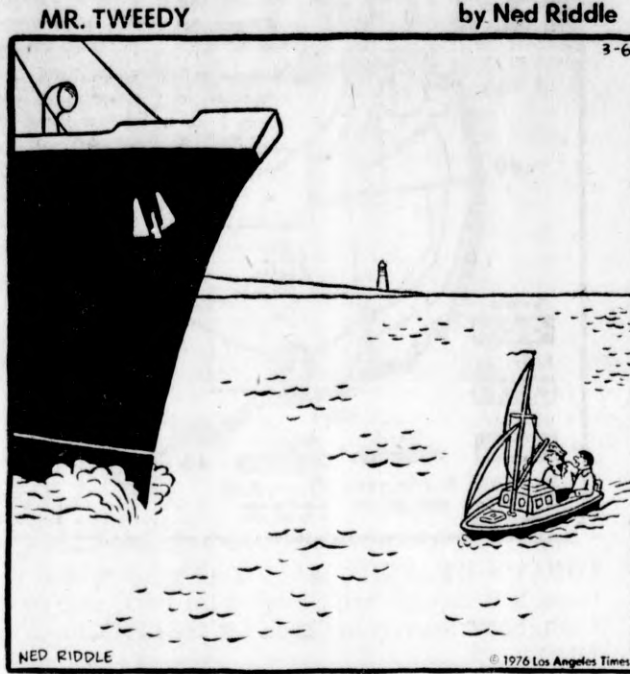

What will you do with this chance in a lifetime, this day which will never return? Will you make it memorable to others and to yourself? Will you relish the beauty around you and add to the warmth of fellowship with those you meet? Each morning brings a chance to begin anew, to further or complete, to create, to dare, to face, to learn, to growing body and wisdom, gaining favor with God and man.

How glorious to awaken!

Editor,
At a December 11, 1975 meeting between Michigan Citizens For Life officials and representatives of the March of Dimes in Detroit, Mr. George Voss, Vice-President Public Relations, March of Dimes agreed that a portion of the donor's dollar will go to fund research from which abortion will be the result.

"JUST THIS ONCE, STEVE, COULDN'T YOU

Mr. Voss quoted from a survey of 2200 amniocentesis procedures conducted by the March of Dimes and stated that 2.8% of the children were determined as defective and later destroyed by their parents. So as a result of that process of genetic research 62 babies were aborted.

It was also at the December meeting that March of Dimes representatives said that 90% of the national funds are spent on other than direct patient care, primarily for research.

Amniocentesis involves the removal of fluid from the sac surrounding the child in the womb. Cells in the fluid are then studied to determine if a defect exists. This process is generally initiated after 14 weeks gestation; another three weeks or so are required for the lab work. If the parents of an imperfect child opt to destroy their baby, the abortion is performed close to the 20 week mark.

At 20 weeks a baby weighs about a pound. He is sensitive to pain, and respond to touch, cold, sound and light. He gets hiccupps, sucks his thumb, wakes and sleeps. He can be taught to be alerted by a first signal for a second different one. They move about a great deal in the womb and their kicks are felt by the mother.

This late in pregnancy, babies are destroyed by saline injection or hysterotomy. In a saline abortion, a concentrated salt solution is injected into the womb. The baby swallows it, is poisoned, and dies in about an hour. From 8 to 72 hours later the mother delivers a dead baby.

Hysterotomy is a mini-Caesarian section. The baby is surgically removed from the womb and discarded, generally showing signs of life such as movement and gasping attempts to breathe, into a bucket.

In past advertisements, the March of Dimes asked mothers to "be good to your babies before they are born." Why in view of the above facts, do they continue to say that "the entire issue of abortion is outside our sphere of interest"?

Sincerely,
Debra Baer

Watervliet Ambulance Now At 983-4191

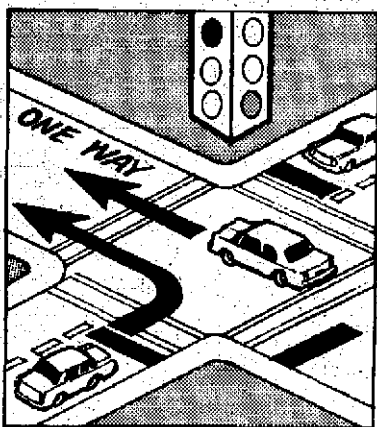

WATERVLLET — A new telephone number for the Watervliet Ambulance service is now in operation, according to Terry Mullen, office manager of the service serving the Watervliet city and township vicinity.

Mullen said the number is 983-4191. According to Mullen, the ambulance service is using the same phone number as the Watervliet fire department, with all calls being answered by the Berrien county sheriff's department.

Both the ambulance and fire department are dispatched by county personnel.

Mullen said combining the two services on one phone number was undertaken to make emergency calls easier for area residents.

Stickers for telephones, containing the telephone numbers of the ambulance-fire department and Watervliet police department, are available free at both the Watervliet city hall and township hall.

The New Michigan "Turn-on-red" Law

TURNING RIGHT ON RED

Left turns on red lights onto one-way streets after traffic clears — unless prohibited by signing — are allowed in Michigan beginning April 1. Automobile Club of Michigan reminds that before turning, motorists must make complete stops and yield right of way to pedestrians. Since the new law also allows motorists to turn right on red, pedestrians must look in all directions.

General Telephone Sends Men North

SOUTH HAVEN — Due to the extremely large number of telephones out of service in the northern and central part of the state as a result of severe ice storms earlier this week, crews of General Telephone men from the local areas have been sent to assist those areas.

Thirty-three workers from the southern area have been dispatched. This includes 5 men from Allegan, 3 from Dowagiac and 7 from South Haven, the phone company said.

Earlier in the week, emergency generators were sent to provide electrical power to offices in those areas.

Because of the need for these workmen to assist in the storm-ridden areas, there will be some delay in service order work and possibly some delay in repair work in the local area. While the local areas escaped serious damage, some problems were caused by heavy rains and wind.

Watervliet Ball Game To Help Buy Uniforms

WATERVLLET — A basketball game featuring Watervliet high school faculty members against area Watervliet alumni will be played Saturday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m. in an effort to raise funds for new high school band uniforms. According to Mrs. Alton Wendzel, band booster fund raising committee chairman, about $5,000 is still needed. She said the band boosters have already raised $5,000 and the school board has contributed another $3,000 toward the $15,000 purchase price of 100 new band uniforms. Admission to the game, at the high school gymnasium, will be $2 for adults and $1 for students. The Watervliet junior high band will perform at 7:15 p.m. and the high school band at halftime.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR REP. JOHN N. ERLBORN (R-ILL.)

Why did you work so hard to get the bill passed to keep teachers from drawing unemployment benefits this summer?—J.R. Smith, Jackson, Tenn.

● Taxpayers do not consider teachers among the unemployed during the summer. They're on vacation. When teachers bargain with the school board about pay, they expect that salary to be sufficient for the year, and so do the taxpayers. Depending on the teacher, the pay may or may not be sufficient for the year, but unemployment compensation is not intended to be an income supplement. It's a bridge between jobs for those who are out of work through no fault of their own, and who are actively seeking work. Surely no teacher would go to a neighbor's house during the summer and pinch a few dollars from her pocketbook. How different is it, really, to have the Government transfer these funds by taxing the neighbor and giving the money to the teacher who has not lost his job?

FOR RAQUEL WELCH

Is it easier or harder to reach stardom now than it was during the days of Bette Davis, Clark Gable and that classic old crowd?—R.A., Decatur, Ill.

● It's the same. Always was, is now and always will be. I had a particularly hard time, because I came on the scene as a sexpot and was an object of criticism and ridicule. No one took me seriously, even when I was serious.

FOR DICK CLARK, host of "810,000 Pyramid"

You're no kid, but you sure do look like one. To what do you attribute your youthfulness?—J.T., Austin, Tex.

● It's either hereditary (my father just turned 79 and looks 60), or else it comes from hanging around youngsters. Youth is a state of mind. It doesn't come from drinking lots of milk and going to sleep early. I do none of that. I do everything wrong from a medical point of view. Being with kids is rejuvenating. It gives me a different perspective—more so than being with my work-mates and pals.

FOR PAUL ANKA

Has being a millionaire enriched your life, beyond making possible every luxury?—B.G., Ogden, Utah

● It buys my personal freedom—I'm not owned by anyone—which is more precious than having material things. I started in this business when I was very young, and I've been exposed to wealth for a long time. That's why I'm realistic, objective and respectful of money, because I know it can also be destructive. Had I made it later in life, with more effort and bitterness, I might have reacted differently.

FOR CHUCK KNOX, head coach of the Los Angeles Rams

Do you think about football much during the off-season?—Mrs. Laurene Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● I have thought about football for some part of every day of every week of the 23 years I have been involved in coaching. That includes the off-season days when I like to go deep-sea fishing. The great thing about deep-sea fishing is that there are always times when there are no fish and you can relax and meditate about life and football.

FOR REDD FOX

How did you come by the name "Redd"?—Mary Bartlett, Utica, N.Y.

● When I was a teenager, singing and playing my washbass, there was another guy around with reddish hair. We were both called "Red." So as to distinguish between us, he became "Detroit Red" and I became "Chicago Red." "Detroit Red" later became famous as Malcolm X. When I became a comic, I added another "d" to the Red and called myself "Redd Foxx."

FOR EVA GABOR

In between your marriages, what do you like most about being single?—A.C., Danville, Ill.

● Swimming in my pool without make-up and putting on an old robe when I come out. (Can't do that when you're married. Must always look good!) Living alone makes one more resourceful . . . making decisions without the help of a husband. It stops the mind from becoming lazy. And when I'm alone, I can sleep crossways in bed without an argument.

FOR ARTHUR GODFREY

As one who knows, what can you say to a patient who is about to undergo surgery for cancer?—Elizabeth G. Delaney, Waterbury, Conn.

● I think the best thing you can say is "congratulations." Why? Because no surgeon worth his salt will venture surgery unless he thinks there's a chance for success. The reason the odds are so bad is because most people wait too long.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

If a boy has his father's name and is called "Junior," can this cause an identity problem?—Mrs. A. Sprecker, Huntington, W.Va.

● Only if one already exists. If a successful man has a son who's a challenge, it could be disturbing. The father might want to press his boy down. If the two are not "friends," the son might feel he's a carbon copy of Dad, and that he's not accepted for himself. However, it's usually a source of great pride and sharing for the two to have the same name.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

I don't know anything about Michael Learned's new marriage. What can you tell me?—A.M., Middletown, Ohio

● Michael is now Mrs. Glenn Chadwick. She married the former ballet dancer on Oct. 18, 1974. They met 10 years ago (while still happily wed to their first spouses) at San Francisco's American Conservatory Theater, where Michael was acting and Glenn was stage manager. Right now Glenn is thinking of giving up the theater for real-estate. Michael now has three stepchildren (Mike, 15, Wendy, 13, and Pam, 11) and her own three sons (Caleb, 13, Christopher, 16, and Lucas, 13). She enjoys having two girls around: "It's wonderful. We got our ears pierced together, go shopping and get our hair cut at the same time." They just moved into a "new" 100-year-old home. Michael says Glenn is "just handsome—not tall or dark."

The Most Interesting Men I've Ever Known

By Shellah Graham

Shellah Graham

From the miserly to the mysterious, from the engaging to the erudite, each of these men has been a "master" in his field and a charmer of the public eye.

Mr. Getty

To me, the most interesting thing about J. Paul Getty is his money. To be the richest man in the world—and perhaps the stingiest—is a subject for conversation whenever his name is mentioned.

My son Robert was a close friend of one of his children—Timmy—from his fifth and last marriage, to society-singer Theodora (Teddy) Lynch. Timmy was 12 when he died in a New York hospital, 18 years ago (can it be that long?). Before that sad event, he and Robert learned to swim together in the pool at the Santa Monica home in which Teddy lived during and after her marriage to Mr. Getty.

Timmy, a miniature of his father when J. Paul was a younger man, always attended my annual Christmas party in Beverly Hills. He would sing Christmas songs with us at the piano and, in between, tell his jokes. At his last party with us, he went to shake my hand—and missed by six inches. A tumor had formed on the optic nerve, and he was going blind.

His mother took him to New York for the operations—about six. At this time Getty had taken up residence in Europe, and because of his fear of flying and all forms of transportation, he did not visit his son in the hospital. But he telephoned him there on his 12th birthday. "I'm giving you a present of a million-dollar trust fund" he told his now totally blind son. "Shucks" Timmy replied, "I'd rather have a hamburger with french fries."

Teddy was planning to return to California with her son when the doctor suggested, "Let's clean up the scars with plastic surgery." Timmy's heart failed under the extra strain of the minor operation. I'm sure Mr. Getty was very unhappy as he was fond of the boy. It would have been nice if he could have attended the funeral.

When the now old man—he looks even older than his 83 years—refused to pay the $2,900,000 ransom for the release of his 17-year-old grandson from another marriage, I was not surprised. I was in Vienna at The Imperial Hotel when I saw him give the equivalent of 25 cents to the concierge to pay for a stamp and heard him ask for the change!

Miserly men are usually unhappy, and one of the latest photographs of the multimillionaire sniffling a daffodil in the ornate drawing room of his 72-room mansion in England bears this out. He is shrinking into himself and spending even more time on his vast business interests. It is obvious that while his money has made J. Paul Getty interesting, it has not made him happy.

Mr. Hughes

Billionaire Howard Hughes has more fun with his money. With age—he is 70—his passion for pretty, bosomy girls has diminished if not vanished. During his stay in London, he was visited by movie-star actress Ava Gardner (they were an item when both were younger). It was sort of a hello-goodbye meeting. Ava had another man on her mind, and Howard was busy keeping his chin above the Watergate investigation.

Whether you like him or not, you have to admit that Howard is a fascinating character, a man you wouldn't believe could exist if you read about him in a novel. But he was not always a recluse. I met him at all the New York parties when I came to this country from England in the mid 30's. In those days, Howard looked like any other rich young playboy on the prowl. I was to look him up, he said, when I came to Hollywood. I did, and we became sort of guarded friends. He sent me a gold and emerald brooch for Christmas when he was producing "The Outlaw" with Jane Russell. After that, six dozen long-stemmed red roses. I looked forward to them each December 25th. He was interested in me as a columnist only, and that was fortunate for us both, as he was not my type. Rich men never have been.

I followed his romances with Ava, Lana Turner, Terry Moore, Mitzi Gaynor, Ginger Rogers and Jean Peters (whom he married and by whom he was divorced).

And Katharine Hepburn. I would never have thought that Miss Hepburn was Howard's type—or vice versa—but she found him interesting. And indeed he was, even down to his unusual hours, toiling through most of the night, sending his car to bring you to him as I was brought one midnight in Beverly Hills for what he thought

Mr. Getty gave someone 25 cents for a stamp, then asked for the change.

Mr. Hughes, back in 1935, was like any other rich young playboy.

Mr. Coward was the darling of society, including members of royalty.

Mr. Fitzgerald was fascinating, even after the one drink too many.

Mr. Celine is a man who can be "crushed" by a beautiful woman.

The chief characteristic of Mr. Hughes is loyalty to those he trusts. But God help you if he thinks you have betrayed that trust. While he is a good friend, he is a dreadful enemy. As of this writing, he has managed to evade those who are trying to bring him into court on various matters. But it wouldn't surprise me if one day he were to appear suddenly and confront his adversaries with an explanation of his so-called misdemeanors.

This clever, shrewd man multiplied the fortune he inherited as a young man, and like Greta Garbo, created a legend of mystery so that the smallest tidbit about him becomes world-wide news—those long fingernails, long white beard, strange illnesses.

I suspected the Clifford Irving biography of Hughes was a hoax when the publicity stated that Howard had discussed the girls he had courted. This subject was strictly taboo, as I learned from the millionaire when I quoted the girls who talked. A man who is secure in his masculinity and bank account doesn't "kiss and tell."

Mr. Coward

I met Noel Coward during rehearsals in London for his review, "This Year of Grace." I had a featured role which diminished almost daily as "the master" became aware of my lack of acting ability. It was in the late 20's, and he was at the height of his fame and productivity. "The Vortex" some years earlier had established him as a major playwright. He was the darling of society, including the younger members of royalty, because of his incisive, biting wit.

His displeasure, which was all too evident, terrified me, and many nights during that agonizing period, I cried myself to sleep. Years later, when I was driving along Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood, I realized how I should have sung those numbers. The next time I saw Noel in London, I insisted on singing the songs correctly, including the satirical number "I Am Just an Ingenue," which I had sung straight. In those years I had no idea of what satire meant. This became our theme song. Whenever a piano was available, he played and I sang. The last time

Teddy was planning to return to California with her son when the doctor suggested, "Let's clean up the scars with plastic surgery." Timmy's heart failed under the extra strain of the minor operation. I'm sure Mr. Getty was very unhappy as he was fond of the boy. It would have been nice if he could have attended the funeral.

When the now old man—he looks even older than his 83 years—refused to pay the $2,900,000 ransom for the release of his 17-year-old grandson from another marriage, I was not surprised. I was in Vienna at The Imperial Hotel when I saw him give the equivalent of 25 cents to the concierge to pay for a stamp and heard him ask for the change!

Miserly men are usually unhappy, and one of the latest photographs of the multibillionaire sniffing a daffodil in the ornate drawing room of his 72-room mansion in England bears this out. He is shrinking into himself and spending even more time on his vast business interests. It is obvious that while his money has made J. Paul Getty interesting, it has not made him happy.

Mr. Hughes

Billionaire Howard Hughes has more fun with his money. With age—he is 70—his passion for pretty, bosomy girls has diminished if not vanished. During his stay in London, he was visited by movie-star actress Ava Gardner (they were an item when both were younger). It was sort of a hello-goodbye meeting. Ava had another man on her mind, and Howard was busy keeping his chin above the Watergate investigation.

Whether you like him or not, you have to admit that Howard is a fascinating character, a man you wouldn't believe could exist if you read about him in a novel. But he was not always a recluse. I met him at all the New York parties when I came to this country from England in the mid 30's. In those days, Howard looked like any other rich young playboy on the prowl. I was to look him up, he said, when I came to Hollywood. I did, and we became sort of guarded friends. He sent me a gold and emerald brooch for Christmas when he was producing "The Outlaw" with Jane Russell. After that, six dozen long-stemmed red roses. I looked forward to them each December 25th. He was interested in me as a columnist only, and that was fortunate for us both, as he was not my type. Rich men never have been.

I followed his romances with Ava, Lana Turner, Terry Moore, Mitzi Gaynor, Ginger Rogers and Jean Peters (whom he married and by whom he was divorced).

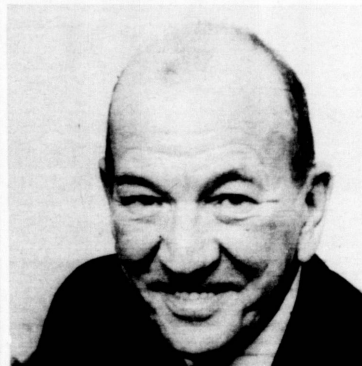

And Katharine Hepburn. I would never have thought that Miss Hepburn was Howard's type—or vice versa—but she found him interesting. And indeed he was, even down to his unusual hours, toiling through most of the night, sending his car to bring you to him as I was brought one midnight in Beverly Hills for what he thought

Mr. Getty gave someone 25 cents for a stamp, then asked for the change.

Mr. Hughes, back in 1935, was like any other rich young playboy.

Mr. Coward was the darling of society, including members of royalty.

Mr. Fitzgerald was fascinating, even after the one drink too many.

Mr. Caine is a man who can be 'crushed' by a beautiful woman.

would be a scoop for me.

The chief characteristic of Mr. Hughes is loyalty to those he trusts. But God help you if he thinks you have betrayed that trust. While he is a good friend, he is a dreadful enemy. As of this writing, he has managed to evade those who are trying to bring him into court on various matters. But it wouldn't surprise me if one day he were to appear suddenly and confront his adversaries with an explanation of his so-called misdemeanors.

This clever, shrewd man multiplied the fortune he inherited as a young man, and like Greta Garbo, created a legend of mystery so that the smallest tidbit about him becomes world-wide news—those long fingernails, long white beard, strange illnesses.

I suspected the Clifford Irving biography of Hughes was a hoax when the publicity stated that Howard had discussed the girls he had courted. This subject was strictly taboo, as I learned from the millionaire when I quoted the girls who talked. A man who is secure in his masculinity and bank account doesn't "kiss and tell."

Mr. Coward

I met Noel Coward during rehearsals in London for his revue, "This Year of Grace." I had a featured role which diminished almost daily as "the master" became aware of my lack of acting ability. It was in the late 20's, and he was at the height of his fame and productivity. "The Vortex" some years earlier had established him as a major playwright. He was the darling of society, including the younger members of royalty, because of his incisive, biting wit.

His displeasure, which was all too evident, terrified me, and many nights during that agonizing period, I cried myself to sleep. Years later, when I was driving along Sunset Boulevard in Hollywood, I realized how I should have sung those numbers. The next time I saw Noel in London, I insisted on singing the songs correctly, including the satirical number "I Am Just an Ingenue," which I had sung straight. In those years I had no idea of what satire meant. This became our theme song. Whenever a piano was available, he played and I sang. The last time was at the party in the Savoy Hotel to celebrate his knight-hood and his 70th birthday.

"The master" always gave me marvelous interviews. He was the first person to tell me the sure-fire method of falling asleep—to relax the muscles one by one, starting with the toes on one foot, then the other, and right up to the neck and head. When I heard that he was very ill, I hoped he was still able to sleep.

Noel was always kind to me—as long as I was not performing for him. He was always generous with his time, always amusing—he had "a talent to amuse"—and always interesting.

Mr. Fitzgerald

I have sometimes been accused of "trading" on my relationship with F. Scott Fitzgerald. I have written two books about him—"Beloved Infidel" and "College of One"—and single chapters about him in other books. But other authors have also written about him—32 books, pamphlets and articles—and there will be more for the same reason that I write about him. He was simply the most interesting human being I ever knew.

Scott was the best companion anyone could wish for. There was nothing trite in his conversation. He had something to say, and he said it beautifully. He was always fascinating, even after the one drink too many. In the last years of his life, when no one was reading his books, he became rather shy with people, except those he knew well. But drunk or sober, he was the center of every group.

He was a great organizer of people, too. He could make the homeliest woman feel beautiful. His charm was always real, and it was irresistible even for men. Children adored him. When we gave a party at the Malibu Beach home I rented for him, the kids next door came over at his invitation and were fascinated with the card tricks he performed for them. He was a great student of the battles of history and spent hours maneuvering his toy army of soldiers and cannon into strategic advances and retreats.

There was no ego when he explained. "This is what Napoleon should have done at Waterloo." As there was no conceit when he called the Princeton football coach at two in the morning to describe a football strategy he had worked out. He was simply carried away by his enthusiasm. And this would be the word to explain the Scott I knew. The people who knew him well can never forget him. I'm glad I am among the privileged few.

Mr. Caine

"Why Michael Caine?" I was asked when I told a friend I was including him in this article. One reason: This Cockney son of a cleaning woman and a porter in the famed Billingsgate fish market in London has never allowed the fortune and fame to obscure his appraisal of himself and others.

Michael became a film star with "The Ipcress File," although I pegged him for acclaim when I saw his performance as the Eton-Oxford lieutenant in "Zulu." I did my bit to make him known in the U.S.—in fact to such an extent that one irate reader wrote me, "If you don't stop writing about Michael Caine, I'll stop reading your column."

But it isn't only his talent as an actor that makes Mr. Caine interesting; it's his conversation and character in real life. He has educated himself on the climb upward and knows a great deal about music, painting, literature, politics and what is going on in the world today. He is a brilliant speaker and is the first to laugh at his mistakes where his films and ladies are concerned.

He also has the simplicity of a nice man. He had been courting Camilla Sparv, the beautiful Swedish model, in London, New York and Hollywood, but had broken it off in London when it was printed that they were going to marry. He and I were dining together in a Chelsea restaurant, and who should be sitting at the next table but Camilla with a man and another couple. The laughter at her table almost killed him, and when she passed by without a word, I thought he would explode. Of course they resumed the friendship. But he did not marry her.

Mr. Caine has always known what he has wanted—a big career, a big home in the country and a wife and kids to go with them. He has it all.

Decorator June Gussin:

"Forget All the Rules— I Do!"

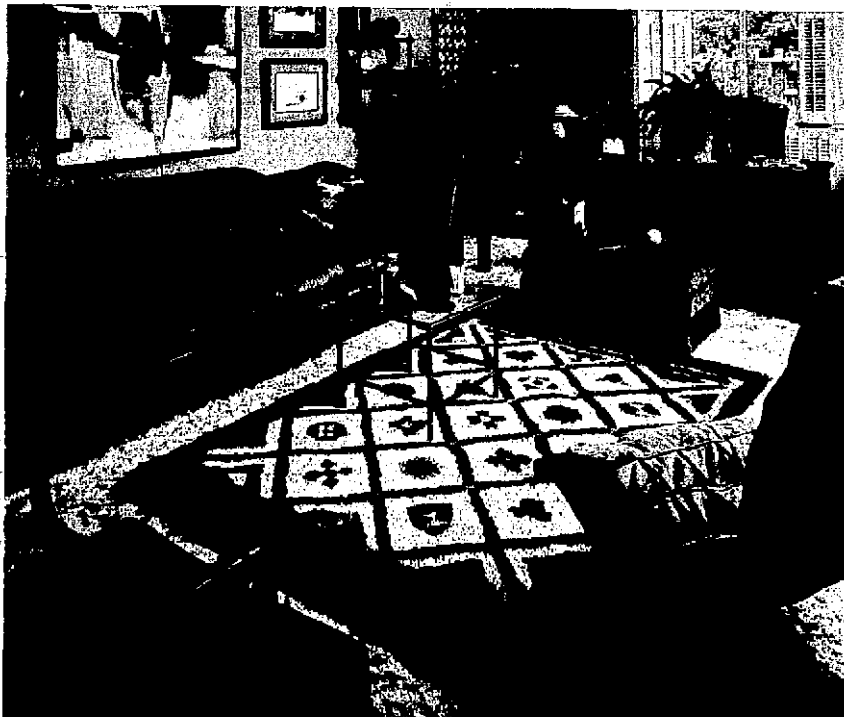

How does an interior designer live? Does she have the same space problems we all do? June Gussin (left) lets you into her home and shares her decorating philosophy—one you can use right now.

An area rug marks the activity center of the room.

Combination Guest-Hobby Room

How to make your college student's room multipurpose: Turn the bed into a sofa; soften one corner with screens and finish with an Art Nouveau rug by Ege Rya.

You can ignore the rules for mixing furniture styles—as long as the pieces are of good quality and design. The mix: a contemporary sofa, a French desk and a Chinese Chippendale chair (in foreground).

Don't be afraid to break or modify decorating rules! Your house should convey a personal feeling, should be a reflection of you, not of some designer or store."

So advises decorator June Gussin, who is in a position to know. Mrs. Gussin, highly regarded in the home furnishings industry for her creative showroom and store displays, urges you to select furnishings that will look as good in your first home as in your last.

"My furniture, which is a mix of hand-me-downs, good basic furniture and things I've picked up while traveling, has worked in every house and apartment I've lived in," she observes. June, married to a home furnishings executive whose company has offices and plants scattered across the country, has moved nine times in nine years!

Stressing that you don't need family heirlooms to create a personal look, Mrs. Gussin suggests that when you purchase new things, you should buy what you really like. This will give the pieces special meaning for you. Then you can start your own handing down!

She goes on to advise that you should

How to "Pull the Room Together"

Solid beige colors warm the living room, along with the bold rug pattern, tying the furniture together. The design is strong enough to carry the proportions of the sofa and complement the graceful Chippendale chair. Decorative objects add to the character of the room. The wool rug is from Ege Rya's Berber Deluxe collection.

Entertain in a Foyer

A hallway closet was converted into an entertainment oasis, while a pass-through to the kitchen provides extra space for buffet service. As Mrs. Gussin dramatizes with art in the entrance foyer (not shown), she does so here with the lively patterned area rug, which provides an interesting entrance to the living room and draws the eye invitingly into the room beyond.

Look out for "found space." Convert a little-used closet.

avoid things that are faddish. Steer away from bizarre or overwhelming fabric designs and bright, garrish colors. If you don't know what colors you prefer, buy a clutch of fabric remnants or some inexpensive scarves in the desired colors. Tape them to a wall or to the back of a chair or sofa for a few days. If you live with them for a while, you'll soon get a sense of whether they please you or not.

She offers other decorating tips: In the living room, the larger a piece of upholstered furniture, the more understated its style should be. Then smaller chairs and wood pieces, such as chests, tables or a breakfast, can be added for more dramatic and ornamental interest.

As to rules for mixing furniture, Mrs. Gussin is very reassuring: "There are no rules as to how many styles can be mixed. Combine any piece in the world as long as the furniture is of good quality and design. The only caution is that the piece be compatible in scale. Don't mix big, boldly scaled furniture with delicate, fragile-looking accessories or furniture."

Two of her favorite decorating devices are the use of area rugs and screens. "They do so much for design schemes and can be readily moved," she explains.

Area rugs in particular make a dominant pattern statement in a room. She recommends them for wall hangings, too, because they provide important color, design and textural interest.

"I've used them in most of my interiors. In our daughter's room (which doubles as a guest room and workroom when she's at school), I've placed one over the broadloom. In this instance, you must be sure that an area rug has a color that picks up the carpeting shade. Since it's a strong pattern, other patterns in the room must remain small," she cautions.

Screens are also problem solvers. "I had some made for my first home and I take them with me wherever I go," she says. "I often like using screens in corners, which seem such an abrupt end to a wall! They're softening. But screens have other virtues. They can camouflage all kinds of architectural difficulties and they're a wonderful substitute for draperies. With all the moves I've made, I haven't had time to order draperies—and I haven't missed them at all. You can use screens for a headboard, too, just by fastening them to the wall."

An inveterate collector, Mrs. Gussin suggests that few things add a more personal touch than art. "But it doesn't have to be expensive. There's a gold mine of good, inexpensive art available almost everywhere. Local colleges and art schools often have sales of student and faculty work, and many shows now exhibit the work of talented, local artists and craftsmen."

Mrs. Gussin's entrance foyer particularly reflects her interest in art and includes some of her own graphics and ceramics. A dark dreary spot when the Gussins moved in, it is now an intriguing gallery that beckons visitors into the warmth and very personal interior beyond.

In this instance, you must be sure that an area rug has a color that picks up the carpeting shade. Since it's a strong pattern, other patterns in the room must remain small," she cautions.

Screens are also problem solvers. "I had some made for my first home and I take them with me wherever I go," she says. "I often like using screens in corners, which seem such an abrupt end to a wall! They're softening. But screens have other virtues. They can camouflage all kinds of architectural difficulties and they're a wonderful substitute for draperies. With all the moves I've made, I haven't had time to order draperies—and I haven't missed them at all. You can use screens for a headboard, too, just by fastening them to the wall."

An inveterate collector, Mrs. Gussin suggests that few things add a more personal touch than art. "But it doesn't have to be expensive. There's a gold mine of good, inexpensive art available almost everywhere. Local colleges and art schools often have sales of student and faculty work, and many shows now exhibit the work of talented, local artists and craftsmen.

Mrs. Gussin's entrance foyer particularly reflects her interest in art and includes some of her own graphics and ceramics. A dark dreary spot when the Gussins moved in, it is now an intriguing gallery that beckons visitors into the warmth and very personal interior beyond.

Ballet Stars Patricia and Jean-Pierre: How We "Collect" All Our Furnishings

Putting Attic Treasures to Work—Even in a Modern Apartment

Husband-and-wife team, Patricia and Jean-Pierre Bonnetous, both principal dancers of the New York City Ballet, live in a duplex apartment with an enormous living room, revealing a ceiling two stories high. Picture an exposed brick fireplace, a comfortable Victorian armchair and two muted-red velvet sofas drawn up to it and great expanses of oak flooring that lead to handsome "finds" collected by the couple. It's a room which, reflecting its owners, is warm and inviting.

Patricia's husband influenced her to become a collector and she has the enthusiasm of a true convert. For her first "bachelor apartment," she bought all the furniture at once, just to have the rooms filled. "I would never do that again," she says. "Now I feel you should take time, even years, to get exactly what you want. I really enjoy waiting until I find just the right piece."

Many of their treasured pieces are chosen spontaneously. "I don't have to spend a lot of time picking out something," Jean-Pierre says. "It's an emotional choice. We only ask if this is something we want to have around us all the time, if this is something we can relate to."

Some pieces in their apartment (the mahogany Victorian chair, for example) come from rather chic auctions and shops. Others—like a beautiful oak chest they have—were found in basements, flea markets and barn sales when they weren't really looking.

"We first saw this chest in a neighbor's basement," Patricia says, opening the doors that expose two shelves inside. "It was covered with soot and dirt." "That man didn't know what he had," Jean-Pierre interjects. "But we knew," Patricia says. "He told us it was solid oak, so we figured it must be beautiful underneath."

The neighbor named a nominal fee for the piece and gladly parted with what he thought was junk. Patricia and Jean-Pierre took it home and washed it. They knew from experience that oak, like other genuine hardwoods, can be given a bath without fear of damaging the surface, provided it is carefully dried afterward. Then they began waxing (with paste wax) and buffing it. Usually you only have to wax wood furniture twice a year, but since their piece had been neglected for so long, they waxed moderately every few weeks or so, with plenty of buffing in between. The chest began to thrive under their care.

Ordinarily, Patricia and Jean-Pierre don't buy furniture needing repairs or a complete refinishing job. But their beloved 7-foot-tall walnut clock, purchased in Paris, was damaged enroute, and they had to learn something about repairing. "You know," says Jean-Pierre, "when it is a fine wood piece, you can usually repair parts that have been broken, or replace them. It's not like some plastic thing, where you need a whole factory to start all over again."

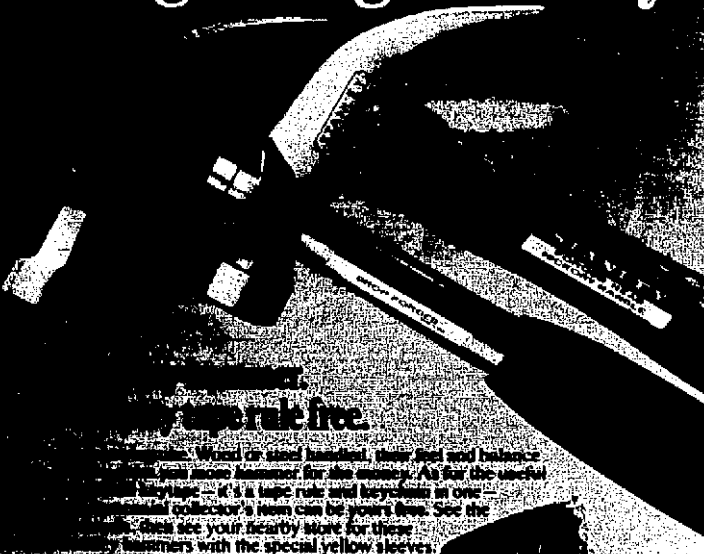

The couple say they don't worry about mixing styles and periods. They just look for complementing tones of wood. "After all," says Jean-Pierre, "the trees grow together in nature—so I know

Best Buys for the "Bi" Year

The best of American furniture design is being brought back in this Bicentennial year—scaled for today's interiors. If you're looking for a storage or serving piece or a piece of musical equipment, there are notable suggestions here, especially culled from the market by our editors. Take your choice!

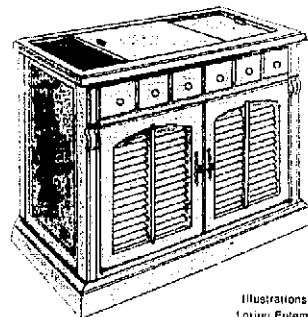

A Serving Cart Classic

An 18th-century design is easily adaptable to 20th-century living. Heritage's American Tour serving cart in pine finish adds warmth and extra shelf space to a modern dining or breakfast nook. The cart's go-anywhere proportions (45 x 18 x 35½ inches) plus the bonus of three drawers assure its long-term usefulness. About $349.

Commemorative Love Chest

From the 13th to the 18th century, the chest evolved from a simple unit for a bride's dowry to a more versatile piece of furniture. This beautifully appointed cedar-lined chest, made of select hardwood solids and pine veneers, recalls tradition with silk-screened American motifs on the front and top and antique brass pulls on its sides. It measures 40¾ x 19 x 18 inches. By Lane. About $200.

Illustrations by Loring Eulamey

Spice-Chest Stereo

A stereo console serves as an attractive buffet table while providing listening pleasure. This cabinet, with decorative spice "drawers" and convenient sliding top, is available in antiqued butterscup yellow, grained maple, pine or pecan. It houses a solid state stereo FM-AM radio, automatic record changer, a built-in 8-track tape player with storage space and a four-speaker system. The console is on concealed swivel casters and measures 36½ x 19¼ x 26½ inches. Magnavox. About $300.

And the projects are simple to build—especially when you use Georgia-Pacific quality building materials."

Here's a typical project

"This outdoor planter is a beauty. You can put it on the patio. On that patch of lawn that doesn't want to grow grass. Or anywhere you want a burst of flowers. To build it, all you need is a piece of plywood, a couple of 2"x2"s, nails, hammer, saw, and a little elbow grease."

Paneling adds value to your home

"Of course, there's a section on paneling projects. Because putting up paneling is one of the easiest and most worthwhile things you can do. In just a few hours, you can turn a drab room into a dream room. And Georgia-Pacific has so many different kinds of paneling, you can get any look you want."

Everything you need is here

Taste Barrier Broken.

Struggle to get taste into low tar smoking ends suddenly with new 'Enriched Flavor' discovery for 9 mg. tar MERIT.

For years, dependency on tar for taste has created a taste "barrier" for low tar cigarettes.

A limit on how good a low tar smoke could taste.

Now that barrier has been broken.

Broken by a remarkable cigarette called MERIT.

MERIT packs 'Enriched Flavor.' A radical new taste discovery so effective at fortifying tobacco with extra flavor that MERIT actually delivers as much—or more—taste than cigarettes having higher tar.

Up to 60% higher tar.

Yet MERIT has only 9 mg. tar. One of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

Lower, in fact, than 98% of all cigarettes sold.

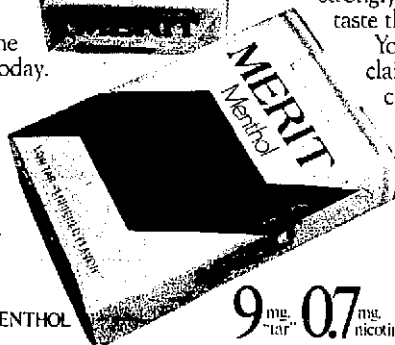

Thousands of smokers were tested. The results were conclusive.

If you smoke, you'll be interested.

Smokers Report MERIT

Delivers More Taste

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar cigarette brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, all tested at home.*

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette.

Gary Burghoff of "M*A*S*H"

Is There Really a "Radar" Off-Screen?

Ellen Graham

Family Weekly readers love him—you voted him your second-favorite second banana in all of television last year. And that makes him the champion second banana on his own "M*A*S*H." But is Gary Burghoff anything at all like "Radar"?

In the Malibu area along the Pacific Coast Highway lives Gary Burghoff who, after his club dates as a drummer-singer-dancer, starred in the long-running off-Broadway hit, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Later he was cast as the meek, mild-mannered underdog Radar O'Reilly, first in the film "M*A*S*H," then in the TV series based on the movie. Except for being a small fellow (5-6), he was, I soon discovered, not at all what he seemed on the screen.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Are you anything like the character Radar?

BURGHOFF: No, I'm basically a hostile person. I hate people. End of interview.

FW: Is that why you live way out here?

BURGHOFF: I bought this dead-end canyon because it was exclusive—not economically exclusive, but because of the nature of people. I want to be left alone. I don't want to have neighbors talking over the fence.

FW: Aren't you social at all?

BURGHOFF: My wife and I don't go out much. We have a normal family existence. Where we were raised (he's from Bristol, Conn.; Janet's from Santa Monica, Calif.) there weren't parties two times a week. We go out maybe once in three months.

FW: How do you spend your time away from the series?

BURGHOFF: Right now, I'm appearing in clubs across the country in a song-and-dance routine. And during my spare time, I've developed a system which will allow a family to raise trout in their own yard. Instead of raising a victory garden, they can be protein gardeners. There'd be no food shortage if we'd compensate for our mistakes. Population and ecology have to work together. We expect bureaucracy to get us out of problems, but it mostly gets us into them. The individual does count, especially in this country, and the individual has to make an effort. Organizations are not the best way. Individual action is.

FW: Is your fish farm your individual effort?

BURGHOFF: My wife and I also had a bird sanctuary. That was a big individual action. I did that for myself. For self-respect. I knew if I organized and brought in other bird people, we'd be so tied up with newsletters and things we wouldn't be saving birds.

FW: How did you happen to get involved with a bird sanctuary?

BURGHOFF: It started when a little boy found a wounded pelican and his mother wouldn't let him keep it. The Fish and Game Department and the Animal Control Shelter couldn't come get it, so I decided to try to save it. It died in less than an hour. But word got around, and people began bringing birds they'd found. I had to have a vet help me be-Triptych II is available in either hand-antiqued pewter or 24 karat gold-on-pewter. Actual diameter size is 9 inches.

A CLASSIC TRADITION

In the central panel of the triptych, a bust of Christ is fashioned in delicate bas-relief. The humility and beatitude of the individual is expressed in the calm and gentle gaze of the eyes. Superbly etched aside the portrait are the dual scenes of the Passion and the Glory: Christ crucified and Christ resplendent in Resurrection. In the tradition of ancient craftsmen, antique pewter plates are individually struck and finished solely by hand. Gold-on-pewter plates retain the rich luster of gold in a satin-frost finish.

Each Easter Plate is housed in a specially-designed case. The plush lining exhibits, to the highest advantage, the intense glow of the plate. The outside of the box is grained and hand-rubbed to create a distinguished impression.

cause I wasn't licensed to set bones. I also had to have a permit to keep sick and injured birds. I even had to file reports on injured birds. You can get all tied up in bureaucratic procedures. Everything was contributing to my frustrations. I finally sent then-Gov. Ronald Reagan a five-page telegram complaining that the ocean stinks, wildlife dies and nobody cares.

FW: What was his reply?
BURGHOFF: Well, it was very unsatisfactory.

FW: Why did you quit taking care of birds?

BURGHOFF: After two years, the sanctuary was a drag. I didn't cop out. I just wanted something else to turn me on, and went into this trout thing. I have no sense of guilt; I saved 4,000 birds, and I helped other people set up sanctuaries.

FW: How did you and your wife, Janet, meet?

BURGHOFF: When I was building my aviary for the birds. She was visiting next door and heard my bawling. She was looking for a cat she'd lost.

FW: Does Janet want a career?

BURGHOFF: She doesn't talk about herself. I don't know where she's at, whether she wants to be a nurse or a housewife. She studied to be a surgical technician. But she could do anything she pleases. Right now she's being a mother to Ginn (born last July 20).

FW: I understand you had a rather unusual honeymoon...

BURGHOFF: Yes—the pilot for "M*A*S*H" financed it. Instead of sitting around wondering if the network would go for it, we took off on our honeymoon to the back country of British Columbia. I bought an old International milk truck, made a bed in it, put in a stove, icebox, an original oil painting, a Persian rug and an antique chair. But we didn't have any heat. It got down to 19 degrees. We nearly froze to death. At least after that we knew if our sex life was good in weather like that, it would be O.K. for the rest of our lives!

FW: How well do you get along with your co-stars?

BURGHOFF: We all yell at each other; it's like a marriage.

FW: Do you yell at your wife?
BURGHOFF: Sure. We're very much alike. We fight like crazy. All the time, I'm past 30, and I'm only beginning to channel my anger into positive actions. It's great then. It's my heritage. My mother is Italian. I had a great-grandma who spoke only Italian. She used to throw the spaghetti on the wall. If it stuck, it was done. Groovy.

FW: You are one of the old-timers from the original film "M*A*S*H." aren't you?

BURGHOFF: Three of us from the movie were used for the TV pilot, but I was the only one to continue in the series.

FW: Do any of the actors on "M*A*S*H" have a star complex?

BURGHOFF: We all feel we are stars, if getting mail has anything to do with it. We each get over 200 letters a week. And we get paid enough to feel good.

FW: Do you consider yourself a free spirit?

BURGHOFF: You've got to learn to feel O.K. with yourself and independent of others. I will not be controlled by my wife, neighbors, the film or TV industry or the Government.

FW: What about Government control? Do you believe in paying taxes?

BURGHOFF: I am a firm believer in paying taxes but not in seeing the tax money wasted, the way bureaucracy does.

FW: I've been told that like your character Radar you seem to have powers of ESP and can frequently foretell what's going to happen; for instance, you foresaw your winning an Emmy Award nomination. Is that true?

BURGHOFF: Yes, I did foresee winning the Emmy nomination, and I've had other experiences. But ESP is nothing new. It's one of mankind's oldest attributes. Animals have it—they can convey their feelings without words. If you get tuned in to somebody's behavior, you can anticipate his thoughts. ESP is just a way of communicating.

FW: When you get vacation time, what do you like to do?

BURGHOFF: I do things for the sake of doing things. I've grown up. What I do now, I do for myself. If my only motivation were to be patted on the back, I'd be in for a disappointment. If I feel like it, I'll walk along the highway and pick up beer cans. That's living!

Jackie's Horoscope shows... super fame and fortune were her destiny!

by Barbara Walters

An astrological research team was recently assembled in Los Angeles to study Jackie's life. They found that at the very minute of her birth, her horoscope predicted that super-fame and super-fortune were her destiny!

Let's take a look at some of the actual facts revealed by Jackie's horoscope. Jackie's Sun is in Leo, indicating a ruling role in life — and in her adult life she became as close to a queen as an American could get — the First Lady of the land!

In her horoscope, Pluto 18° Cancer, predicts that the men in her life will be connected with the liquid elements. This prediction certainly came true. The late John F. Kennedy was an avid amateur sailor and in the Second World War he first gained national attention for his daring exploits as a P.T. boat captain. And Jackie's second husband, the late and fabulously wealthy Aristotle Onassis, built his legendary fortune by establishing a vast shipping empire. The planetary aspect Sun Sextile Jupiter in her horoscope shows that public service and publishing are major career interests. She won the Emmy Award for public service and has recently accepted an editorial position with a leading national publishing firm.

Jackie's rising sign is Ascendant 28° Scorpio, revealing that she loves travel and adventure. And her jet-setting life has been one of the world's most publicized adventures.

Venus 22° Gemini and Jupiter 10° Gemini in her horoscope indicate wealth in the house of partners — and both of Jackie's husbands have been wealthy.

One of the most telling predictions of all was the tragic day of John F. Kennedy's assassination. Transit Mars and Transit Venus were opposite Venus in Jackie's chart indicating grave danger to her husband. Transit Pluto was conjunct to her Mars, a fearful aspect of a dangerous situation in public groups.

HOW ASTROLOGY AFFECTS YOU

Jackie Onassis, of course, is not unique in the uncanny accuracy of her horoscope. Everyone born has a completely personal horoscope that is totally different from that of any other person in the entire world. To illustrate how astrology affects everyone, I'd like to share with you some of the research findings of the Institute for Applied Astrology.

"I had the most successful musician of all time had a full time astrologer. He advised them on every single step. He told them when and where to open. He got top credit right along with the writers and the director!"

In 1918, an astrologer, John Hazelrigg, said that every 20 years, when the Transit of Saturn and Jupiter are conjunct, come together the President who took office that year would die in office. Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Harding, Franklin Roosevelt and Kennedy did exactly that!

Carol Richter is astrologer to Hollywood. Hundreds of the famous have used his Transit astrology. People like Marlene Dietrich, Gloria Swanson, Ronald Colman, Tyrone Power and Danny Kaye. Carol Richter became an astrologer because Evangeline Adams, who was astrologer to Kings, Queens and financiers, told him astrology was his vocation according to the stars.

Hitler was conquering Europe

JACKIE'S ASTRO-PROFILE

Jackie is probably the world's best known woman. But like the rest of us, she was born into this world at a time and in a place over which she had no control. However, as shown in her horoscope cast by our astrological research group, fate had great plans for her future. To really get to know Jackie and her fabulous life you've got to read about what her horoscope says.

as long as he followed his Horoscope as prepared by Karl E. Kraft. But when Kraft's charts told Hitler it was not the time to turn East to Russia, Hitler fired him. That was the beginning of the end for Hitler. (See Wm. Shiras "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich".)

Countless brilliant scientists, writers and geniuses through the ages have believed in Astrology. Great men like St. Thomas Aquinas, Sir Roger Bacon (father of modern science), Shakespeare, Sir Isaac Newton, Carl Jung, Einstein, and J. P. Morgan have all openly agreed that astrology works!

MODERN SCIENCE PROVES ASTROLOGY WORKS

Recently in France a famous scientist named Michel Gauquelin decided to prove that Astrology was a fake. So he attacked it scientifically! In France the time of birth is on every birth certificate, so he was able to hire Astrologers to cast the horoscopes of 576 famous teachers of medicine. He was astonished to discover that most of them had Mars and Saturn heavily influencing their character! These are the signs that show a natural talent for healing. He refused to believe his own evidence, so he checked the horoscopes of famous lawyers, soldiers, politicians and artists. He found that in every single instance the people that were successful, were "doing what comes naturally" as shown on their astrological charts. Unfortunately the opposite also holds true. The people who fail at their work and in their lives are the ones who do the wrong things. They are square pegs in round holes; they are plowboys who should be doctors, mechanics who should be engineers, etc.

Limited Research Program Invitation

by Lois Rodden, A.F.A.—P.A.I. Chief Astrologer

There are a lot of computer horoscopes on the market — and most of them are okay as far as they go. But that's just it — they really don't do for you! Only the Institute for Applied Astrology can prepare your TOTAL HOROSCOPE for you because only we have "transits" stored in our giant computer.

Where the sun, moon and planets happen to be at the time of your birth is what makes up your Natal (birthdate) Horoscope. But that's only the beginning of a TOTAL HOROSCOPE, yet that's all you get from other computer horoscope companies. You see, the sun, moon and planets keep right on moving. They are in Transit. And day after day they keep forming new angles with your birth chart. These Transits show every single important period of your life! And no horoscope that does not include the Transits is not a TOTAL HOROSCOPE.

Now, for a limited time only, if you will help us with our research program, you can get your own personal TOTAL HOROSCOPE for just a duplicating charge. Since your TOTAL HOROSCOPE must be constructed anyway for our research you may have an exact duplicate copy for only $3.00 to cover our printing cost, plus just 55¢ for postage and handling. The preparation, the casting, and the professional analysis are provided without charge. To join our research program and get your TOTAL HOROSCOPE, here's all you do. Write down your time and place of birth, as exact as possible, on a piece of paper and send it to me. I'll cast and analyze your

TOTAL HOROSCOPE as part of our current astrological research program.

Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will run from 14 to 18 pages — up to 10,000 words (three to four lines larger than ordinary Natal [birthdate] Horoscopes) — and here are just a few of the important things it will do for you:

1 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will make you know yourself. That means you can make use of your strong points and fight off your weak ones.

2 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will analyze your character in depth giving you psychological facts that some people pay analysts a fortune for.

3 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will give you new insights into the talents and abilities you've never before gave yourself credit for having.

4 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you how and when to use these talents to open up a better life and future.

5 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you how to get along with more people... thereby enriching your social, business and sexual life.

6 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you the people you are compatible with. It will make you understand how to use those people to get ahead. This covers every aspect of living — family, friends, business associates, partnerships, romances, etc.

7 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you how to form meaningful and exciting personal and sexual relations with the right partners —

and how to keep these relationships strong and satisfying.

8 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will not only give you practical vocational and career advice but will show you the best times to use that information for maximum effect.

9 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will be loaded with beneficial advice on money matters. It will tell you when to take chances and when to be careful. This is exceptionally important if you have a tendency to take risks.

10 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE covers all the matters relating to your body and your health. It tells you the things to do and the things to avoid in order to enjoy the maximum in good health, normal weight and high energy.

11 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE gives you positive information. When it tells you a possible bad period it also tells you how to avoid or overcome them.

The Institute needs your horoscope to help complete our huge research program looking into the practical applications of astrology (Applied Astrology). This research program has been going on for some time and has been presented in COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, FAMILY WEEKLY MAGAZINE, THE LOS ANGELES TIMES HOME MAGAZINE, THE NATIONAL ENQUIRER and other papers and periodicals. Right now, for a limited time only, if you help us by providing your birth date, you can benefit by becoming eligible to get horoscopes for yourself and even your family and friends.

HERE'S HOW ASTROLOGY WORKS

Most people have heard about the rich, famous and successful people who use astrology practically full time. But they still think that astrology is the "fortune cooking" horoscope they read in their daily paper. The Natal horoscope that they can buy for a few dollars. But this is not true, for astrology is an exact and demanding science.

To prepare a true, in-depth, total personal horoscope for you, an astrologer must first make a chart showing the sun, the moon, and all eight planets as they were at the time and place of your birth. This is where all other computer horoscope companies stop. But that is only half the job.

Next, the astrologer must relate "Transits" to your basic chart. "Transits" are the changes in the positions of the sun, moon, and planets as they move away from the positions they were in at your birth. And only the Institute for Applied Astrology does this!

When this Total Chart is finished it is completely personal, completely different, and completely about you! And the written evaluation is what astrologers call your Total Horoscope. Natal astrology alone is like reading a good book about big game hunting and then going to darkest Africa on your own. "Total" astrology is like having a top professional hunter to help guide you through the jungle. The special knowledge contained in this horoscope can change your life in many wonderful ways. We all know, for example, that while none of us are good at everything, each of us are good at something. Your horoscope will tell you what you're good at. And armed with that knowledge you can forge ahead and be at ease and happy while you do it.

Your horoscope delves deeply into your personality, revealing your hidden talents. It will tell you about the areas where you have ability but may have been uncertain and afraid to try — things like writing or acting, art, sex, leadership, public relations, advertising, athletics, etc.

Think of it this way: you only have one life to live, so why not get everything from it that you can? Why waste your time charging down blind alleys that can easily be avoided? You have a real duty to yourself and to your loved ones to make the most of each precious moment. And your Total Horoscope can give you the edge you need to see your opportunities and take advantage of them.

For a limited time only, while the internationally known Institute for Applied Astrology is carrying on its extensive research program, you can get your Total Horoscope for only a duplicating cost. The casting and analyzing are done FREE! The article below tells you now to get your Horoscope. For the sake of your own personal happiness — don't pass up this unique opportunity. It's the kind of news you can't get anywhere that comes along only once in each person's life.

The planetary aspect Sun Sextile Jupiter in her horoscope shows that public service and publishing are major career interests. She won the Emmy Award for public service and has recently accepted an editorial position with a leading national publishing firm.

Jackie's rising sign is ascendant 28° Scorpio revealing that she loves travel and adventure. And her jet-setting life has been one of the world's most publicized adventures.

Venus 22° Gemini and Jupiter 10° Gemini in her horoscope indicate wealth in the house of partners — and both of Jackie's husbands have been wealthy.

One of the most telling predictions of all was the tragic day of John F. Kennedy's assassination. Transit Mars and Transit Venus were opposite Venus in Jackie's chart indicating grave danger to her husband. Transit Pluto was conjunct to her Mars, a heavy aspect of a dangerous situation in public groups.

HOW ASTROLOGY AFFECTS YOU

Jackie Onassis, of course, is not unique in the uncanny accuracy of her horoscope. Everyone born has a completely personal horoscope that is totally different from that of any other person in the entire world. To illustrate how astrology affects everyone, I'd like to share with you some of the research findings of the Institute for Applied Astrology.

Hair — the most successful musical of all times had a full time astrologer. He advised them on every single step. He told them when and where to open. He got top credit right along with the writers and the director!

In 1908, an astrologer, John Hazelrig, said that every 20 years, when the Transits of Saturn and Jupiter are conjunct (come together) the President who took office that year would die in office. Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Harding, Franklin Roosevelt and Kennedy did exactly that!

Carol Richter is astrologer to Hollywood. Hundreds of the famous have used his Transit astrology. People like Marlene Dietrich, Gloria Swanson, Ronald Colman, Tyrone Power and Danny Kaye. Carol Richter became an astrologer because Evangeline Adams, who was astrologer to Kings, Queens and financiers, told him astrology was his vocation according to the stars.

Hitler was conquering Europe

JACKIE'S ASTRO-PROFILE

Jackie is probably the world's best known woman. But, like the rest of us, she was born into this world at a time and in a place over which she had no control. However, as shown in her horoscope cast by our astrological research group, fate had great plans for her future. To really get to know Jackie and her fabulous life you've got to read about what her horoscope says.

as long as he followed his Horoscope as prepared by Karl E. Kraft. But when Kraft's charts told Hitler it was not the time to turn East to Russia, Hitler fired him. That was the beginning of the end for Hitler. (See Wm. Shirers "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich".)

Countless brilliant scientists, writers and geniuses through the ages have believed in Astrology. Great men like St. Thomas Aquinas, Sir Roger Bacon (father of modern science), Shakespeare, Sir Isaac Newton, Carl Jung, Einstein, and J. P. Morgan have all openly agreed that astrology works!

MODERN SCIENCE PROVES ASTROLOGY WORKS

Recently in France a famous scientist named Michel Gauquelin decided to prove that Astrology was a fake. So he attacked it scientifically! In France the time of birth is on every birth certificate, so he was able to hire Astrologers to cast the horoscopes of 576 famous teachers of medicine. He was astonished to discover that most of them had Mars and Saturn heavily influencing their character! These are the signs that show a natural talent for healing. He refused to believe his own evidence, so he checked the horoscopes of famous lawyers, soldiers, politicians and artists. He found that in every single instance the people that were successful, were "doing what comes naturally" as shown on their astrological charts. Unfortunately the opposite also holds true. The people who fail at their work and in their lives are the ones who do the wrong things. They are square pegs in round holes: they are plumbers who should be doctors, mechanics who should be engineers, etc.

Limited Research Program Invitation

WHY WE GIVE YOU THE WORLD'S ONLY TOTAL HOROSCOPE FOR JUST OUR DUPLICATING COST

by Lois Rodden, A.F.A.—P.A.I. Chief Astrologer

There are a lot of computer horoscopes on the market — and most of them are okay as far as they go. But that's just it — they really don't go far enough! Only the Institute for Applied Astrology can prepare your TOTAL HOROSCOPE for you because only we have "transits" stored in our giant computer.

Where the sun, moon and planets happen to be at the time of your birth is what makes up your Natal (birthdate) Horoscope. But that's only the beginning of a TOTAL HOROSCOPE, yet that's all you get from other computer horoscope companies. You see, the sun, moon and planets keep right on moving. They are in Transit. And day after day they keep forming new angles with your birth chart. These Transits show every single important period of your life! And no horoscope that does not include these transits is a TOTAL HOROSCOPE.

Now, for a limited time only, if you will help us with our research program, you can get your own personal TOTAL HOROSCOPE for just a duplicating charge. Since your TOTAL HOROSCOPE must be constructed anyway for our research you may have an exact duplicate copy for only $3.00 to cover our printing cost, plus just 55c for postage and handling. The preparation, the casting, and the professional analysis are provided without charge! To join our research program and get your TOTAL HOROSCOPE, here's all you do. Write down your time and place of birth, as exact as possible, on a piece of paper and send it to me. I'll cast and analyze your

TOTAL HOROSCOPE as part of our current astrological research program.

Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will run from 14 to 18 pages — up to 10,000 words (three to four times larger than ordinary Natal [birthdate] Horoscopes) — and here are just a few of the important things it will do for you:

- 1 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will make you know yourself. That means you can make use of your strong points and fight off your weak ones.
- 2 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will analyze your character in depth giving you psychological facts that some people pay analysts a fortune for.
- 3 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will give you new insights into the talents and abilities you never before gave yourself credit for having.
- 4 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you how and when to use these talents to open up a better life and future.
- 5 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you how to get along with more people... thereby enriching your social, business and sexual life.
- 6 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you the people you are compatible with. It will make you understand how to use those people to get ahead. This covers every aspect of living — family, friends, business associates, partnerships, romances, etc.
- 7 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will show you how to form meaningful and exciting personal and sexual relations with the right partners — and how to keep these relationships strong and satisfying.

8 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will not only give you practical vocational and career advice but will show you the best times to use that information for maximum effect.

9 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE will be loaded with beneficial advice on money matters. It will tell you when to take chances and when to be careful. This is exceptionally important if you have a tendency to take risks.

10 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE covers all matters relating to your body and your health. It tells you the things to do and the things to avoid in order to enjoy the maximum in good health, normal weight and high energy.

11 Your TOTAL HOROSCOPE gives you positive information. When it tells you of possible bad periods it also tells you how to avoid or overcome them.

The Institute needs your horoscope to help complete our huge research program looking into the practical applications of astrology (Applied Astrology). This research program has been going on for some time and has been presented in COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, FAMILY WEEKLY MAGAZINE, THE LOS ANGELES TIMES HOME MAGAZINE, THE NATIONAL ENQUIRER, and other papers and periodicals. Right now, for a limited time only, if you help us by providing your birth data, you can benefit by becoming eligible to get horoscopes for yourself and even your family and friends.

many wonderful ways. We all know, for example, that while none of us are good at everything, each of us are good at something. Your horoscope will tell you what you're good at. And armed with that knowledge you can forge ahead and be at ease and happy while you do it.

Your horoscope delves deeply into your personality, revealing your hidden talents. It will tell you about the areas where you have ability but may have been uncertain and afraid to try — things like writing or acting, art, sex, leadership, public relations, advertising, athletics, etc.

Think of it this way: you only have one life to live, so why not get everything from it that you can! Why waste your time charging down blind alleys that can easily be avoided? You have a real duty to yourself and to your loved ones to make the most of each precious moment. And your Total horoscope can give you the edge you need to see your opportunities and take advantage of them.

For a limited time only, while the internationally known Institute for Applied Astrology is carrying on its extensive research program, you can get your Total Horoscope for only a duplicating cost. The casting and analyzing are done FREE! The article below tells you how to get your Horoscope. For the sake of your own personal happiness — don't pass up this unique opportunity. It's the kind of new chance for success that comes along only once in each person's life.

INFORMATION CAREFULLY ON A PIECE OF PAPER — IN THIS ORDER — (1) Name; (2) Full Mailing Address; (3) Month / Day / Year / Time of Birth; and (4) City, State and Country of Birth. Send it to us with the $3.00 copying charge and 55c for postage and handling, for each person's horoscope you want. Note: If you don't know your exact time of birth use 12:00 noon. You may even charge it to your BankAmericard, Master Charge, or American Express by including the following: (1) Name of Card; (2) Card Number; (3) Card expiration date; (4) Cardholder's Signature.

We will, at no cost to you, feed your birth information into our giant computer. The computer will then calculate your Natal Chart including the sun, moon and planetary aspects. Then it will calculate the transit positions of the heavenly bodies as they move through those positions. Next, it will examine 54 million possibilities in order to create your TOTAL HOROSCOPE! All you pay for your TOTAL HOROSCOPE is the cost of making a copy for you.

Your horoscope is covered by a full one year money back guarantee of complete satisfaction. If you have questions write or call Sanford Richter, (213) 276-2151, Research Director, the Institute for Applied Astrology. Act at once and avoid disappointment. Send for your horoscope before you forget. Thank you.

What in the World!

How one family turned a handicap into a source of strength: Jean Hines—the mother of 5-year-old Kerri, who suffers from cerebral palsy—talks about the effect Kerri's disease has had upon their family life: "Most people feel sorry for us, but they shouldn't. We haven't had to give up anything, or if we did, it was so unimportant in the larger scheme of things that it doesn't matter. We were a close-knit family to begin with (the Hineses also have an 5-year-old son), but now we're even closer because we have to be. We have gained in insight and compassion for the rest of the world. We have learned to look beyond our own limited environment and become aware of what's going on elsewhere. Sure, we have to depend on each other more than most families, but I see that as an advantage. We have a common purpose—we're working toward the day when Kerri can lead a more normal existence." What's the most difficult part of Jean's job as mother of a disabled child? "I have to remind myself that the handicap doesn't come before Kerri. I can't treat her differently from my son because if she thinks she's special, she won't try as hard to overcome her disability. Our whole family has had to learn to set realistic goals and take one day at a time, but wouldn't every family benefit from that instruction?" Kerri Hines lives in Waterford, Mich., and is this year's National Easter Seal Child.

VACATION HAUNTS

Did I leave the water running?
Did I double-bolt the door?
Did I, with all care and cunning,
Do each crucial little chore?
Did I water all the plant life?
Did I also feed the fish?
Did I spray the sink for ant life?
Did I wash that dirty dish?

Did I leave a light on, burning,
Lest some burglar know.
I roam?

One more question, with some yearning:
Why then didn't I stay home?

I wish they wouldn't get so tricky with packaging. This morning my wife broke open an egg, dropped the contents into the pan and fried a pair of puntyhase sunnyside up!

After 15 years of labor and a ton of material, the world is about to see a reconstructed elephant. The beast was shot in southern Africa, and the skin, which alone weighs half a ton, was shipped to Rowland Ward, a London taxidermist. It is destined for the Royal Scottish Museum. The elephant is stuffed with fiberglass, wire netting and wood wool. When it is completed, the ears will be outstretched to a span of 11 feet across, and the whole thing will stand 10 feet, 8 inches tall. The taxidermist says his next project is an even taller order . . . a giraffe.
